PROPOSED OHIO MINIMUM WAGE LAW IS SCORED

SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE CLAIMS PLAN WOULD BE 'PREJUDICIAL'

Recommending Rejection of Measure, Investigators, After Two Years' Study of Problem, Charge Legislation in States Where Acts are Enforced "Has Not Brought About Remedial Results Sought."

REPRESENTATIVE SAMUEL I. LIPP, CINCINNATI, REPORTS TO ASSEMBLY

So-called Mandatory Law is Unconstitutional, and Should Not be Enacted, While Massachusetts Pattern is Dependent Upon Public Opinion for Enforcement, are Conclusions of Members of House.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—Recommendations rejecting proposed minimum wage legislation for Ohio are made by a special legislative committee, which for two years has studied the problem, in a final report to be transmitted to the state legislature this afternoon by Representative Samuel I. Lipp, Cincinnati, chairman.

Minimum wage legislation in states where the acts are enforced "has not brought about remedial results sought," the report finds. Warning is given that such legislation along lines advocated by Ohio sponsors of this proposed legislation would be "prejudicial to industry."

The conclusions reached by the committee are:

"The so-called mandatory minimum wage legislation is unconstitutional, and, therefore, should not be enacted by the general assembly.

"The non-mandatory law, similar to that which is in operation in Massachusetts, is of little effect because its provisions can not be properly enforced, the only weapon of enforcement being public opinion."

Claim No Necessity For Law.

"The minimum wage legislation in other states has not brought about the remedial result which was sought, and has not been enforced in several of the states which enacted it.

"Such legislation would have a serious effect upon Ohio's industries and employees in competition with those of other states if a minimum wage were fixed at a point above the wages paid in other states.

"There is no necessity for enacting minimum wage legislation for the State of Ohio because women employees of this state are receiving wages equal to those paid in states where the law is in operation."

The report was signed by five of the six members of the committee, including Chairman Lipp, Mrs. Nettie B. Loughead, State Senator from Hamilton county, and former Senator Frank B. Burch, Akron, and Earl T. Ferguson, Van Wert, and by Mrs. Nettie M. Clapp, State Representative from Cuyahoga county. Former Rep. W. T. Roberts, Bellaire labor member, in a letter to Chairman Lipp, said illness prevented him from attending the hearings. He asked that a copy of the report be sent him so that, if he wished, he could file a minority report.

Study Three Plans

The committee began its labors February 6, 1924, and devoted most of its inquiry to a study of the minimum wage acts of Massachusetts, Wisconsin, and California.

The committee in its report, said it

Young Donahey ended a three-day sentence in city prison shortly before midnight. He had pleaded guilty to driving Adjutant General Henderson's auto about 40 miles an hour here last Friday. The governor's son slept late this morning at the governor's mansion. He planned to "rest up" today, it was stated, and expects to resume his class work at Capital university here Wednesday morning.

PAY DOG TAX, SHERIFF WARNS; DEPUTY NAMED

County Acts to Bolster Board of Education Fund.

INQUIRY BEGINS

But 1,445 Licenses Issued; 8,000 Dogs are Harbored.

As a result of a shortage of funds for the county board of education, steps were taken today to collect taxes on all dogs in Columbiana county.

The decision followed a conference Monday between County Auditor Charles E. Hamilton and the County Commissioners. Sheriff George Wright attended the meeting.

The balance remaining in the dog license fund after the payment of sheep claims goes to the county board of education.

Burbon on Job.

Because no deputy sheriff has been making house-to-house collections of dog licenses, dog owners have been unusually slow in applying for tags. The licenses cost $1 and $2.

Following the conference Sheriff Wright announced the appointment of Henry Burbon, of Salem, as a deputy sheriff. Burbon, who has been sworn in, will devote part of his time to collecting the dog license.

There will be no "branch" offices for the collection of dog taxes this year. Applications must be sent to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton. A few days' grace will be given for the payment of this tax which is now nearly eight weeks past due.

The county auditor's records show 1,445 dog licenses issued to date, and it is declared that between 7,000 and 8,000 dogs are harbored in the county. This license fee should have been paid January 1, last.

It was a "Gold lace wedding", preparations for which have interested social London for weeks.

The bride was resplendent in a seamless dress of rose point lace over white satin. She carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies as she entered with Mlle. Fedora Stancioff, sister of the bridegroom.

King Boris of Bulgaria sent a wedding gift. Madame Stansioff, the bridegroom's mother, gave the bride the well-prized old silver which was given her at her wedding by King Ferdinand.

EMMONS' STATE PARK PROPOSAL DROPPED INTO HOUSE HOPPER

Calls for Purchase of 500-acre Guilford Dam Site.

HATCHERY PLAN

Any Attempt to Commercialize Project Will Nullify it.

A bill providing for the purchase of approximately 500 acres of farm land in the vicinity of Guilford dam, Center township, as the site for a state park, was introduced in the house of representatives at Columbus yesterday by State Representative Ralph O. Emmons of East Rochester.

The measure instructs the director of public works to purchase the acreage and also provides for such repairs and improvements as are necessary to develop the land after it becomes the property of the state.

Any attempt to commercialize the state park project or attempts by owners to advance the prices of the land required for the resort will defer consideration of the bill and probably kill the measure so far as this session of the legislature is concerned.

Committee To Inspect Site.

Petitions urging the legislature to establish the state park have been in circulation in East Liverpool, Lisbon Salem and other parts of the county for several days. These petitions have been placed in Emmons' hands.

As soon as the site is acquired, the proposed state fish hatchery, covering the site of the old dam, will become a certainty.

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the project is that no state parks are located in the eastern section of Ohio.

It is likely that a committee from the state legislature will come to Columbiana county before the bill is reported to inspect the site. The project is being sponsored by The Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective Association.

Trades and Labor Council May O. K. Municipal Court

Attorneys F. E. Grosshans and W. F. Lones Will Explain Measure at Session Wednesday.

Trades and Labor council is expected to endorse a proposed municipal court for East Liverpool at a meeting in the Golding building, Washington street tomorrow night.

Responding to invitations, Attorneys Frank E. Grosshans and W. F. Lones will discuss the bill which State Representative R. W. Emmons, of East Rochester, has promised to introduce in the Ohio assembly.

Two years ago, the labor council approved the measure which was vetoed by Gov. A. V. Donahey.

Judging from expressions at last week's session of the trades body, when attacks made upon certain alleged practices in justice of the peace courts, the bill is favored.

The proposal would abolish justice of the peace courts in Liverpool township and relieve the mayor of police court duties.

In addition to a discussion of the municipal court measure, a motion picture, showing methods of operation in the Lenox China company's plant in Trenton, N. J., will be exhibited.

The police are searching for a one-ton Ford truck, belonging to Nathan Waldman, junk dealer, which disappeared from the alley back of the Smith Hardware store, Sunday night. The machine carried 1925 Ohio license No. T-112-389.

STATE SENATE MAY VOTE TO CONFIRM DUFFY

Industrial Commission Re-appointment Decision Likely Today.

HOUSE CONTESTS

Debate Promised on Bible Reading and Bus Bills.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—Two spirited contests are expected when the house this afternoon reaches final consideration of the Bible reading and the Collister city home rule bus bills. Crowded galleries are expected to listen to the debates.

Indications are that an attempt will be made to prevent a record vote on the Bible bill, which requires reading of at least ten verses of Scripture daily in the public school but without sectarian comment. Many members of the house are understood to desire to avoid being recorded on the measure. An attempt will be made to pigeon hole it, it was intimated.

The house also is expected to divide sharply on the Collister bill, which will give cities control of bus companies, operating for hire wholly within their limits. Operators of interurban buses have vigorously fought this additional regulation. A vigorous fight is expected against the measure which has already passed the senate. The Bible and bus bills are special orders for 2 o'clock.

Senate Faces Long Calendar.

FLOYD COLLINS' BODY REMAINS IN ROCK GRAVE AS WORK ENDS

Fear Digging Would Result in Further Loss of Life.

COFFIN SEALED

Acting Coroner Recognizes Victim and Declares Him Dead.

By CARL W. HARRIS

SAND CAVE, Ky., Feb. 17.—All operations to recover the body of Floyd Collins from the Sand cave tomb in which he was trapped 18 days ago, were abandoned at 11:30 o'clock today, after four friends of Collins and a coroner's jury of experienced men had verified the declaration of H. T. Carmichael, general supervisor, that further efforts were futile and would result in further cost of human life.

Coroner's Jury Acts.

The last members of the coroner's jury came from the shaft at 11:25, and H. C. Tucker, acting coroner, announced that he had seen Collins, recognizing him, was certain that he was dead and was equally sure there is no way of removing the body without probably further loss of human life."

His two jurymen, T. J. Gorby and Claude Monroe, corroborated his statements.

M. E. E. Posey, state highway engineer, then entered the shaft for a final inspection and following his report the official announcement was made that operations were to be suspended definitely.

Work of dismantling the shaft was immediately started. The huge canvas covering, which has roofed the pit, was taken down and the workmen began preparations for hauling the heavy machinery up the steep rock runway to the cliff.

Only the formal verdict of the coroner's jury was wanting to place the official stamp of finis on Sand Cave's tragedy and this, it was expected, would be delivered within a few hours.

It seemed probable at noon that simple funeral services would be held over the shaft today, the shaft closed with rocks and earth and Collins left

ROTARY HEARS F. B. LAWRENCE

Cooperage Business is Discussed at Noon Luncheon.

The cooperage business and its relation to manufacturing business, particularly pottery, was the subject of a talk delivered by Fred B. Lawrence, Manager of the Lawrence Cooperage company and secretary of the North American Manufacturing company, at the noon meeting of the Rotary club in the Y. M. C. A. today.

Lawrence briefly traced the history of the barrel-making industry from medieval days until the present time. Skins of animals, he declared were the first containers ever used and because of this the medieval man or woman can be regarded as the first cooper. Later, vessels of clay came into use as containers, being used mainly in the manufacturing of wine.

History records wood being used for the first time in the manufacture of barrels by the Gauls in 238 A. D. The barrel made in the eleventh century, was much the same looking container as it is today, he declared. The speaker pointed out the many advantages which barrels, casks and kegs have over other recepticles and of their particular adaptability for the shipping of fragile articles, such as pottery and glassware.

President C. R. Boyce presided and introduced the speaker. In the absence of Attorney Blaine Cochran

PRIVATE PEAT TO SPEAK HERE

Canadian War Veteran on High School Lecture Program.

Harold R. Peat, better known as Private Peat, internationally known lecturer, will appear at the high school auditorium, Wednesday night in the fourth number of the High school lecture course. He will lecture on the subject, "The Inexcusable Lie," a stirring appeal for understanding, peace and harmony among nations.

Peat served with the Canadian forces during the World War. He has toured the world, lecturing in Australia, New Zealand and British West Indies and has visited South America, England, France, Germany and other European lands and is now beginnig his tour of the United States with the Redpath chautauqua.

Peat does not believe in warfare as a means of adjusting differences between nations, but points to more sane and feasible methods of settling trying consequences and insuring permanent peace. He has had interviews with and carries letters from ministers of education in such countries as England, Canada, Mexico, Spain and other European countries.

But one more number remains in the lecture course after the appearance of Private Peat. The Hipple Concert company, four talented instrumentalists, will visit here on Friday, March 20.

Abandon Search

alone for his eternal sleep at the edge of the beautiful cavern from which he had dreamed of deriving a fortune.

Possibilities of another attempt to recover Collins' body, perhaps by private individuals, were ended with a statement of Lee Collins, father, after the abandonment had been announced.

"I will never permit any second attempt to be made to get Floyd out," he said. "I am satisfied with the situation as it is."

SAND CAVE, Ky., Feb. 17 The threat of sudden death crept over Sand Cave again today as workmen at 9:45 fought against time and sagging rock in an effort to burrow through a new side drift to Floyd Collins' feet that his body might be brought from its narrow rock-bound coffin before another fall of earth and rock which might take its toll of human life definitely closed the lane to rescuers.

Workers Risk Lives.

The new side draft was started about half way between the end of the manhole and the shaft, from where the lateral tunnel takes off. It will take a circular course through laminated limestone ledge and, it is estimated, will require at least six hours drilling.

Until possible obstacles which may confront the new attempt are determined, other plans regarding Collin's body will be held temporarily in abeyance.

No amputation will be necessary to remove the body if the new side drift is successful.

The rocks which spelt death to Collins shroud him forever.

This became apparent early today when engineers consulted on whether the bringing of the body out of the cave might mean death to many living men. Work during the night on extricating Collins from his casement of rock proceeded among plumping stones and shifting mud. Workers cut closer to the head of the dead man, joining the narrow tunnel and the natural passageway at the end of which the explorers body lay.

Fail To Pull Body Out.

It became apparent early that it would be impossible to tunnel around Collins, to pry off the pinioning rock and then to bring him to the surface. It meant the endangering of lives and H. T. Carmichael, superintendent of operations, recommended that the Collins' family grant permission to amputate either one or both legs of the body to accelerate its freeing.

Lieut. Gen. H. H. Denhardt had announced that C. C. Howard, a local physician, would sever the limb. Dr. William Hazlett, who was sent from Chicago to perform the delicate operation while Collins was still living, went down into the shaft later, accompanied by Dr. E. D. Turner and Dr. Howard and the three agreed that it would be impossible to perform the operation because of the fact that rocks buried the body almost to the shoulders. Lieut. Ben Wells and Dr. Hazlett then undertook to pull the body out by attaching a harness to it. This failed.

Carmichael's Statement.

At 3 a. m. an official bulletin was issued to the effect that work would be discontinued until 9 a. m., giving all the engineers an opportunity to consult on this baffling problem. Carmichael then made a supplementary statement.

"I have been in the excavating business for 20 years and I have never learned to say that I was licked," he said, "but there may come some time in any man's life when he has to admit that he is licked. I am not ready to admit it yet, but to tunnel down to Collins' feet would be risking too many other lives. We will have to wait until morning and try to figure out some other way."

In the meantime Adjutant General James A. Kehoe had consulted with Governor William Jason Fields over long distance telephone on the question of holding an autopsy to determine whether or not Collins' body contained poison. Clate Turner, Cave City coroner, objected to the procedure, but the governor directed the adjutant to take any steps which would be necessary that this autopsy might be held without fail.

Act on Engineer's Advice

Shortly after 4 o'clock General Denhardt and his staff went into conference at Cave City with General Kehoe and again the adjutant called Governor Fields to explain the extremely precarious situation existing.

It was then decided that the findings of the engineers' conference would be awaited before taking any definite steps that would endanger the lives of living men.

"We will never risk lives for a dead body," he stated. "Men went into death because there existed a hope that a living man awaited them to the end. If the engineers can not solve the problem presented in the tunnel without danger to the workers, we will not attempt to bring Collins to the surface."

To Establish Corpus Delecti.

Three methods of establishing the corpus delecti remained aside from the actual presence of the body.

1—It was suggested by General Kehoe that fingerprints be taken of the man in the rock wedge and compared with those of Floyd Collins now filed at Washington with his records as a soldier. This appears entirely feasible as Collins' right hand is doubled up on his chest and is accessible.

2—Friends of the family had suggested that they, who had known Floyd intimately through childhood, boyhood and manhood, go down and identify the body at the bottom of the shaft.

3—Dr. Hazlett and newspaper photographers suggested that the death mask method and close-up photographs might add to the mass of evidence presented at the inquest to establish the corpus delecti.

Court of Inquiry to Meet.

The court of inquiry will convene today to make the findings of Floyd Collins a matter of record. It is possible that this will close the routine court of inquiry and a finding be returned.

If the tunnel shall become Floyd Collins' grave, a few simple folk will gather about the shaft, listen to simple words of a man of their faith and the boy who has brought the world to Sand Cave shall rest unforgotten for a time. But if the fates are kinder then they have shown themselves to be to Floyd Collins, he will be laid by the hands of his father in the Cathedral of Crystal Cave, there to brood in silence with things he loved.

Somehow today's dawn was different. It lacked the flare of angry red. It lacked the confusion of man's emotions. Peace and rest had come with certainty and the hills and valleys lay serene.

Ducks were so plantiful in Ireland in the last season that they were sold for as low as four cents a pound.

U. S. Watches French Crisis as Fall Of Herriot Looms

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The serious condition facing the French government, which may cause the swift fall of the Herriot ministry, is being watched with closest attention in Washington, because of the bearing it inevitably must have on the war debt controversy.

While administration officials refrained from public comment today for obvious reasons, it is an open secret that there exists in Washington no very great sympathy for France over the plight in which she finds herself.

Government financial experts merely pointed out today that the present situation is the logical and predicted outcome of French policy during and since the war in balancing her budget by continuing loans instead of by domestic taxation, as Great Britain and the United States have done.

The company withdrew from the East Liverpool field about two weeks ago after Sheriff George Wright seized the machines used here on a suit of replevin brought by the Checker Taxicab company, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The stock market today displayed considerable nervousness at the start, but fluctuations in opening prices were narrow and industrial leaders showed a tendency to rally.

Baldwin's annual statement showed a deficit of $1,479,974 after dividends on the common stock, but most of the selling had been completed before the report was issued. The situation in the stock was strengthened by the announcement that provision had been made from surplus for the full 1925 dividends. Consequently the stock displayed more stability and sold one point higher in the first period.

The strength of the industrial leaders, including American Can, United States Steel and Cast Iron Pipe and of New York Central, Atchison and other leading railroad stocks had a stimulating effect on the market in this period. American Locomotive sold up two points at 119½ and U. S. Steel crossed 128.

As a group the oil stocks continued under liquidation and prices of many of the active stocks showed slight declines from the previous close.

Developments in the oil industry included a decline in crude oil production in Wortham pool to 53,000 barrels a day.

Reports of further advances in crude oil prices by the Prairie Oil and Gas company and rumors of the discovery of another promising oil field in Texas.

As a rult the independent steel shares followed the lead of U. S. Steel though gains were small. Motor stocks were irregular with the exception of Mack Truks which gained 2 points on short covering. General Motors was in supply and sold down to 74½, the lowest price since the dividend was raised to six per cent. Chandler was strong.

The grain markets suffered another relapse, wheat declining 2 to 9 cents a bushel; rye 1 to 2½ cents; corn 1 to 1¼ in Chicago and Winnipeg; cotton opened steady and advanced about 12 points; French Francs made a slight gain and Paris markets were more settled; call money four per cent.

"Frame-up," Kearns' Attorneys Charge In $200,000 Suit

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 17—"Jack Kearns was framed."

This was in effect the charge made today by attorneys for Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, boxing king, in the suit for $200,000 brought against the pugilistic director by Mrs. Mary C. Tenney, also known as Francis Marion Emerson, film actress.

Charges of Mrs. Tenney that she was drugged and then attacked by Kearns in a Hollywood residence May 3, 1924, were branded as false by Kearns' attorneys who said they would prove the charges were an attempt to obtain money from the champion's manager.

"He told me he would make me a film star," Mrs. Tenney charged on the witness stand. "Then he ordered a drink, which I thought was water but after drinking it I became drowsy. Then Mr. Kearns attacked me and sometime later in the night after he left I called the police."

Later she said Kearns telephoned her and offered to pay for her dress if it had been torn.

In a deposition by the champion's manager it was revealed that efforts will probably be made to show that Mrs. Tenney, if attacked, was the victim of a Filipino servant, employed in the home of Lor Wertheimer, New York Stock Broker.

MITCHELL HITS BACK AT FOES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Hitting back at his foes and critics, Brig. General William Mitchell, assistant chief of Army air service, appeared again before the house aircraft investigating committee and declared that a group of enemy airplane could "wipe out New York in a day".

Mitchell gave his opinion to one committee almost at the same time that Theodore Roosevelt, exassistant secretary of the Navy, was telling another committee that aircraft was a supplimentary arm of national defense, and should be kept that way.

Mitchell vigorously denied that his advocacy of a unified air service was inspired by hope of personal reward or advancement.

"Do you hope for personal reward", bluntly asked Representative McKenzie, Republican of Illinois, chairman.

"No", snapped Mitchell. "I only want to have America realize the vital importance of airplanes as a unit of offense and defense".

FRAMES ANSWER TO MANDAMUS

Solicitor to Make Next Move in Stone Damage Case Saturday.

The next move in the Jesse W. Stone mandamus action against the city of Wellsville is scheduled for common pleas court on Saturday when City Solicitor George D. Ingram will file his answer.

As a result of injuries he alleged he sustained over two years ago in a fall in Third street, Stone sued the city.

In common pleas court at Lisbon Stone obtained a judgement of $1,500.

The judgement has never been paid, it is claimed. Recently, counsel for Stone filed a mandamus against City Auditor Fred Eckfeld asking that he be compelled to certify to council the necessity of meeting the judgment rendered in the case.

City Solicitor Ingram appeared yesterday before Judge James M. Moore and was allowed until Saturday to file answer. Solicitor Ingram is asking that the judgement be set aside on the ground of fraud.

Similar action, it is expected, will be taken in the Friedman case, in which $3,000 damages are sought.

Why A Woman's Age Shows In Her Hands

A noted beauty specialist recently said that she could invariably judge a woman's age by her hands. Worry and hard work often shows in the hands when it does not show in the face, and as a rule women give more attention to their face than to their hands. The hands however, should not be neglected because pretty, soft, white hands are really the true marks of refinement, and they should be cared for. Any woman can have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands, regardless of the work she has to do, if she will simply spend a minute or two just before retiring, rubbing a little plain Ice-mint on them. In the morning she will be greatly surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does, she should have pretty hands. As the hands, if neglected are bound to show the hard work nad worry of our lives. A few applications of Ice-mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb.—A jury in City Circuit court here decided that Police Lieutenant W. S. White will have to pay Otto Foerster, a bluejecket stationed at Hapton Roads Naval Base, $35 for alleged unlawful arrest as a vagrant.

Foerster charged, in a suit for $1,500 damages, that the officer arrested him and detained him for two hours, and "greatly exposed and injured his credit and circumstances and caused him great pain." And it was not until he produced papers to show he was a United States sailor that Foerster was acuitted in police court.

BLIND TEACHER HAS CLASSES AROUND WORLD

Stricken in Midst of Work, He Opens Correspondence Course.

LESSONS FREE

Winnetka, Ill., Generously Supplies Funds to Meet Expense.

WINNETKA, Ill., Feb. — To her other laurels of having, as attested by a recent university professorial survey, the best-managed town of its size in the United States, as well as a school system that excels in methods and achievements most of the larger cities, Winnetka, a north-shore lake suburb, 16 miles from Chicago, has added a third wreath of commendation. It is a correspondence school for the blind. Its pupils include residents of all sections of this continent and of far-off India and China. Twenty-four separate courses are taught. The pupils choose their own courses, with the aid and suggestion of the school. They include grade school, high school and college work.

The pupils receive the instruction without any cost.

The institution is called the Hadley Correspondence School for the Blind. It takes its name from its founder and head, William A. Hadley, an eminent educator, of Chicago, who was suddenly stricken with blindness in 1915.

Was Stunned.

Professor Hadley was stunned. For five years he sat in darkness and in thought. After the first years of slightlessness began to be somewhat assuaged in the readjustment of his life and his affairs, and in the growing belief that his loss might be made a gain to others because of his former studies and experiences as an instructor, he decided to try an experiment. It was the starting of his correspondence school for the blind. The seed was planted when an old friend asked one time if it would not be possible to teach the Braille system by mail.

Publishers of the Matilda Ziegler Magazine, a publication for the blind, were interested in the project. A three-line paragraph in that periodical announced that Professor Hadley would be glad to correspond with anyone interested in receiving instruction, without any cost.

The response was an avalanche of replies. Dr. Hadley's friends in Winnetka were appealed to on the plea that in such a cause all who asked for is should be given the instruction. Winnetakans generously supplied the necessary funds.

For the first year there was necessary some little haphazardness in the financing of the school. Since then, however, the school has been put on a firm organization structure, with some of Chicago's most eminent men, residents of Winnetka, serving as advisory officials. But the roster of pupils grows faster than resources. Steps are now being taken to remedy this. In this connection there is some discussion as to whether Chicago University will take over the school as a branch of that great institution.

There is a world of human interest in the personal letters exchanged between pupils and the school, which is located on the second floor of a small building at No. 584 Lincoln avenue, Winnetka. One of the first blind students to take a course in short story writing expressed her gratitude by writing:

"When the light went out of Professor Hadley's eyes, the windows of Heaven were opened for the rest of us!"

And Professor Hadley himself recently expressed the thought behind his work when he remarked to the writer:

"If I had to choose between having my sight back or my work, I would choose my work."

Banana flour and dried bananas, or "figs," are being prepared from the fruit.

Cough Remedy Mother Gave Us Still Best

Pine Tar and Honey Beat All Modern Drugs

In thousands of families it has been the custom for many years to keep pine tar and honey always on hand for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, and throat irritations. Our mothers knew that it was good, that it often broke up the worst cough in 24 hours, and that it could be given to young and old alike, as it contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

And now we are told that in spite of modern medical discoveries there is still no better or quicker cough remedy. Doctors say the pine tar quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion that cause the coughing, also healing soreness, while the honey not only gives a pleasant taste, but helps soothe irritation.

The original compound, made up many years ago and used by millions of people, was Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This is scientifically composed of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in quick relief. If you want the original and the best, be sure you get Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey and no other. Only 30c. at any good druggists.

Music Flourishing

"Music," says an observer of public amusements, "can hardly be said to be a neglected art in the United States."

Verily not, if the figures he quotes are correct. The nation's music bill is said to be $600,000,000 a year, not counting the cost of radio sets, which are really the leading musical instruments today.

Also consider this fact: There are 13,000 music clubs in the country. Twenty-five years ago there were only 38, and musical writers were despairing of the musical soul of America.

And East Liverpool, with the Civic Music association, the Male chorus, Ohio Valley Choral society and several clubs, shows her keen interest.

Artistically, America is certainly coming along. There is great progress in literature, and much fine activity in painting and architecture. Sculpture lags, but even that shows some promise.

Starving Mosquitoes

At the recent twelth annual convention of the New Jersey Mosquito Extermination association at Atlantic City, a new method of ridding any community of this pest was set forth by a bio-chemist.

This is to starve the mosquito larvae to death by putting certain chemicals in the ponds and tiny creeks where the infant anopheles spend their babyhood.

The mosquito larvae feeds on bacteria and other minute forms of animal life in the water, all of which can be killed by these chemicals without in any way affecting the visible vegetation or fish.

In the past the method was to kill the eggs or larvae outright by pouring kerosene into the water. But this was hard on harmless fish or plant life there.

It sounds a little complicated to the layman, who wonders at the chemist's cleverness in determining exactly how much of the chemical substance must be used to destroy only the mosquito's food without injuring anything else in the water. But if this works successfully in New Jersey, as it is said to do, it should promptly be introduced at several summer resorts we know of.

New Health Records

As a health year, 1924 is expected to rank high. Statistics disclosed by a life insurance company indicate that the general death rate for the past year will be the lowest in its history. Specific facts are as follows:

A new minimum death rate for tuberculosis and typhoid fever has been established; the diphtheria rate is lower than ever before; deaths from measles are fewer than in 1923; mortality from influenza is less than half that of 1923; diabetes deaths have declined 11.4 per cent; and mortality from causes incidental to maternity has reached a new low level.

Even violent deaths among the 15,000,000 policy holders of the company have decreased. These include suicides, homicides and accidents.

It is a distinctly encouraging report, not simply because of the lower death rates for these and other causes, but because it proves that health education and public health work are effective.

Child Labor in Argentina

A national child labor law was enacted in Argentina last September. It makes 14 the minimum age for industrial and commercial employment all over the country. It restricts the gainful employment of children under 18 to six hours a day, six days a week, and prohibits night work in certain dangerous occupations for boys under 18 and for girls and women of all ages.

This law is said by the children's bureau at Washington to set a higher standard than exists in any state in our union.

Evidently Anglo-Saxon civilization in this hemisphere will have to hump itself to keep up with Latin civilization in the matter of safeguarding its young people.

That world flight of American aviators cost Uncle Sam $177,000, and was cheap at the price, when you consider that Sir Thomas Lipton usually spends more than that to be beaten in a yacht race.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The world is said to be in such a hopeless state of strife and distrust that it appears almost impossible that any lasting understanding and feeling of good will can exist among the grownups of the nations. Therefore many advocates of world peace are pinning their hopes upon the youth of the universe.

The Junior Red Cross is working toward this goal. There are at the present time 35 or 40 countries in the world which have Junior Red Cross organizations. The object of all of these is two-fold: First, to teach service; and, second, to promote understanding and friendship among the various nations. Most of the organizations publish a monthly magazine which is subscribed to by the members. Many of these magazines contain not only stories of the activities of the Junior Red Cross in the countries in which they are published, but of others.

The American Junior Red Cross had its origin after the United States entered the world war. It was decided by educational leaders that the children of the nation could participate profitably in the work of making surgical dressings, socks, sweaters and similar articles for the comfort and care of our soldiers. It would make them feel that they had an active part in the solution of national problems, and would create a greater interest in current events. More than 12,000,000 children enrolled and they sent money and materials amounting to more than $10,000,000 for the use of our soldiers and for the relief of suffering children in foreign countries.

After the war a National Children's fund was established for the purpose of rebuilding the schools in the devastated areas. In Belgium and France part of this money was also used to furnish hot lunches for the school children.

EXCHANGING PORTFOLIOS

The peace-time activities of the Junior Red Cross are even more interesting and equally important, particularly the exchange of portfolios between the school children of the world. This not only establishes a personal interest among the children, but it brings to their minds a clearer vision of the countries of the world, their customs and their history. In this way it aids in the study of geography and history.

These portfolios are intensely interesting. They are made under the supervision of the teacher and are sent from school to school, instead from one individual pupil to another. They contain letters, which may tell about the city, the games played, or other activities; photographs or pictures clipped from newspapers or magazines; samples of school work and sometimes even simple little girls. A portfolio received from a school in Austria contained several unusual and vivid cover designs. Another from Belgium included a colorful sketch of a church in the city in which this school was located. Red Cross authorities say that the art work of some of the pupils in these European schools is remarkable.

The distribution of these portfolios is made in the following fashion: After the school has prepared the portfolio it is sent to the American Red Cross headquarters in Washington, D. C., and thence to the League of Red Cross societies in Paris. There the contents are translated into the native language of the country or province to which the portfolio is to be sent.

The following excerpt of a letter written by an American junior to a European illustrates how this correspondence may be co-ordinated with the work of the classroom:

"We have read with particular interest what you wrote about the form of your government. Naturally, we have read all this in our history lessons, but it is so much more interesting to read those things in a personal letter than in a book composed a long time ago."

Some children in Holland wrote to children in Washington: "How strange that you in America should think that we all wear wooden shoes. Why only the people of certain of our provinces do."

In reply the Washington children wrote: "But we always see the children of Holland pictured as wearing wooden shoes. But after all, mistaken ideas are common to both of us, for you seem to think that Indians and cowboys are ever in our midst, and we have never seen any of them excepting at the circus."

A LETTER FROM POLAND

A school in Zolkiew, Poland, writes to one in North Dakota: "We read the description of your town with great interest. Our town, like yours, has over 10,000 inhabitants, is situated beautifully and possesses many historical places. Our houses are not tall; so many storied houses prevent us from seeing the sun. Automobiles are not often seen in the streets, nor the aeroplanes in the air. We don't feel the feverish hurry, or the whirl of the great city's life; it flows here quietly, undisturbed.

"Our favorite game is football. We have also some literary evening parties, some theatrical plays which give rest to our minds."

Certainly such a letter as the last would impress more forcibly the town of Zolkiew upon a child's mind than would a black dot on a map.

In addition to preparing portfolios for exchange, the Junior Red Cross has many other activities. Each school which is enrolled has its own fund which it uses locally. There is no membership fee and contributions are voluntary. The only object which the Junior Red Cross as a national organization presents to the schools for their voluntary support is the National Children's fund for foreign service projects. Since the foreign program is a rapidly diminishing one, the collections and expenditures are decreasingly yearly.

Some of the local uses to which the school fund may be put are flowers for a sick member, baskets for the poor and milk for undernourished children. The organization in Porto Rico, reported such activities as glasses for several children with defective eyes; scholarships to schools and colleges in the United States, and in one instance a student was loaned $500 with which to pursue his study of medicine. The stipulation was made that he should repay this when he began practicing.

In some of the manual training schools pupils are making bed-side tables for the sick in hospitals. This not only stirs in them a sense of rendering service, but creates more interest in their manual training course than they would probably have if they were simply making models which would be of no use to anyone.

During the past year the Indian Reservation schools have enrolled with the Junior Red Cross and the instructors are pleased and enthusiastic over the result. It has given a new impetus to the beadwork and basketry. It had been noted that in many instances the Indian children seemed ashamed of this work, and were endeavoring to copy designs which they found on magazines. Upon receiving many requests from their white correspondents asking for information regarding their legends and customs, and samples of their basketry and pottery, they again became interested in their inherited art. The head of one school says that they now have two of the best potters of the tribe teaching and many fine specimens have been evolved.

The European director of the Junior Red Cross says, "If we can link together the children of all nations in world-wide bonds of understanding and friendship, there will have been achieved an unrivaled power for the future welfare of nations, and for the guaranteeing of international justice and peace."

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By WILLIAM R. CURRY.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Whether you are a blond or a brunette doesn't matter. It has nothing to do with personality. It is merely a pigmentary accident. Out of 300,000 blonds that have been psycho-analyzed about half of them had the "come hither;" the other half didn't. The same was true of 250,000 brunettes.

These are random sentences taken from the lecture of Pauline Dunston Belden, personality architect, delivered here recently before members of the Women's Athletic club. Miss Belden's subject was "Building a Personality."

"Line, color and clothes and manner may be necessary to personality," Miss Belden said, "but they are not of the essence of it. They are important, but they are expressive of personality rather than creative of it.

"That elusive, intangible, much desired thing about us that makes people love us, or hate us, or simply not know we are around, and which we call personality and interpret as charm, or the lack of it, is something quite other," Miss Belden continued.

"It cannot be put on from the outside. It is an emanation. It is the 'song the inner spirit sings,' and the body is its instrument.

"The personality that charms, that wins, that goes out and gets and comes home with the goods, spiritually speaking, is outgoing, not ingrowing. It is colorful, not gray. It doesn't just give you its fingertips to shake. It gives you its whole hand, and it holds on an instant for good measure. It doesn't make its bow and hand its 'how-do-you-do' off the edge of its lips. It looks at you, and its greeting comes from a locality much nearer the heart.

"It doesn't look at the mezzanine when it enters a building, but directs its gaze somewhere on the main floor. You don't hustle the family skeleton into the closet when it rings the doorbell, nor lock up the records when it enters your business office, because its curiosity is noble and intellectual, rather than animal and instinctive. It is curious about ideas and not about the weaknesses or the possessions of its fellow beings.

"There is no definition for personality; but the woman who is interested in people—not in dogs—is on the way to possessing it. If she 'sells' her husband a good cup of coffee, a downy couch, a comfortable and 'slippered' corner of the living room—if she doesn't neglect her home and just takes it out in loving the whole world, she's camping on the trail"—Miss Belden is from the west—"of personality, if she does not actually possess it."

There are three types of personality, according to Miss Belden. These she defined as "the mental, the emotional and the vital."

"Each may be attractive," she continued, "but each is incomplete unless it is balanced by the other two.

"Does your husband pound the table?" Miss Belden asked. "That means he has a temper, but it doesn't necessarily mean that he is a bad husband.

"On the contrary, provided he has developed control, he's the making of a very good husband. He has a big heart, and of all people in the world he's the least vindictive and, very likely, the most sympathetic. He's the kind of husband, too, that brings home the beautiful things that make the home-nest soft and downy and attractive."

Life as the wife of a strong and strenuous chiropractor is all right when one does not talk and live shop, but when the practice is carried into the home it is time to call a halt.

The above is the tenor of a divorce suit on file here in behalf of Mrs. Blanche Alberta Dennis, wife of Dr. Cyril Clark Dennis, of Port Huron, Mich. Cruelty is charged.

Among other incidents of alleged cruelty set out in the petition is that the chiropractor husband "twisted my arm, massaged my face with his fists and clasped his hands about my neck and held me tight. I call that choking."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Motoring in New York is like a football game. You make a few yards and come to a full stop. Then you wait again for the signals and buck the line again. Traffic increases at the rate of 20 per cent a year.

During the rush hours it requires five minutes to travel a short block. Either New York must return to the old-fashioned habit of walking or the main streets will become clogged and inert. Solving the traffic problem is one of the most serious problems the metropolis faces.

The idea of going out for a spin in a pleasure car is what the chorus girls call "ridic." It cannot be done. The skip stop and one way street plans have done very little to help. The city loses $1,250,000 daily by traffic congestion in shipping delays and the burning of gasoline.

Just now there seems to be only one worthwhile plan. This is to triple deck the streets—a lower and higher level from the surface. This will cost millions but not a million aday, as it does now. All hotels display warnings for patrons to walk to the stations.

Otherwise, they warn, one is more than likely to miss the train. Empty taxicabs are immediately ordered from Fifth avenue. Only three buses are permitted at the same time in a block and the street has the most highly perfected traffic system in the world. Yet it is always clogged.

Columbus circle, the biggest local point of traffic, cannot stop congestion with 20 policemen on duty from 8 in the morning until midnight. The entire situation results in New York being unfit for either pedestrians or motorists. (Voice: "Why don't you get out of it?")

Fire wagons have to go at a snail-like pace through mid-town despite their bell clanging and sirening. Police are unable to get the traffic out of the way for them and this entails the danger of a heavy loss of life and property.

Patterson McNutt is William McSlaven McNutt's "kid" brother. McNutt has won great prominence as a writer. Now his "kid" brother comes along and writes a Broadway play that is a wow and is also a frequent contributor to the magazines. The crowning insult happened one day last week when a lady was introduced to the elder McNutt.

"O!" she said, "I wonder if you are a relative of Patterson McNutt?"

"Just his sappy brother," replied Bill.

The sunburn parlor of West Forty-third street, which was opened to give cliff dwellers a gentle tanning in 15 minutes, has closed. No explanation was offered. The big idea was to give people a chance to be sunburned and to appear as though they had just returned from Miami or Palm Beach.

There is a pleasant spot above Riverside Drive called Inspiration Point. At the peak there is a beautiful view of the Hudson and purpling Palisades. It is an inspirational point for lovers and many young men inspired by the breath-taking beauty of it all pop the question. This happens so often that there is a group of "marriage runners" who hang about the point and pass out cards showing where young couples may go to be speedily wed.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

COOLIDGE HORSE

President Coolidge, to get exercise necessary for work, rides an electric horse. It is an imitation, and remains in one place, but gives you the walking, trotting, galloping exercise of a live horse.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as becomes a man, at least twice as rich as the president, rides an electris horse and also an electric camel. The latter, a true ship of the desert, shambles, rocks and lurches, exercising the liver and spleen as well as any osteopath can do. And you don't have to go to the desert of Sahara. You can ride your camel between directors' meetings.

Samuel Johnson, on his trip to the Hebrides, wrote Mrs. Thrale that a ship has all the disadvantages of a prison, with the additional disadvantage of being unsafe. An electrical camel has the same advantages of a real camel, with the additional advantage of being safe.

ROCKEFELLER CAMEL

On the west bank of the Hudson, near the Catskills, only two generations ago, Mr. Rockefeller's great-uncle would go out trading horses, usually starting with two second-class horses, and coming back with two first ones.

Little did he dream that his great-nephew would live to ride an electric camel and be the richest man in the world.

What will the Rockefellers be doing two generations from now? Not all the power of money can control that.

DON'T SELL FRANCS

France is alarmed about another serious drop in the value of the franc. French financiers have sold, according to a dispatch from Edwin L. James, of the New York Times, 14,000,000,000 francs in foreign countries. If accurate, this means that Frenchmen are exchanging French money for foreign money.

But no matter what French and foreign financiers may do, the wise man will remember that 999 out of 1,000 Frenchmen have absolute faith in their country. The French people are thrifty and enormously rich. Gambling in the franc to diminish its value is not only a hostile act to a friendly nation, but also a very dangerous game.

NEXT SUMMER'S WAR GAME

A "war game" this summer will test Hawaii's defenses. The United States Atlantic and Pacific fleets combined will try to take the Hawaiian islands. Theorists will decide which side won.

The main idea is to test the Hawaiian islands' protection for the Panama canal in case of war starting from Asia.

If war should come from Asia, the Hawaiian islands would be no more important than Timbuctoo, so far as defending the United States is concerned.

Attack from Asia would come through the air, far above Hawaii and the Hawaiians wouldn't know anything about it.

The government might better make experiments as regards the defense of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, New York, Chicago and other cities, all open to airplane attack.

The general staff says the Hawaiian islands could not be captured if well supplied with fighting airplanes. That shows at least a gleam of intelligence. But the main supply of airplanes is needed on the American continent, on both sides and in the middle, not merely off in Hawaii.

If this country had not been painfully foolish at the Washington conference we should have our great protective battleships for airplanes at Guam, maintaining there at all times an airplane force sufficient to serve as a permanent warning to all Asia.

This continent ought to be able to point to Guam as the leading airplane base of the world and say "strike at the United States, and from this point we shall destroy you."

Instead we became sloppily sentimental, shed silly tears down the backs of the British, the Japanese and everybody else, lent them our money, agreed to protect them permanently in their Pacific island possessions. We crowned our display of idiocy by agreeing not to fortify Guam, which should have been our most valuable possession in the way of defense, and is now utterly wasted.

The eastern states soon will witness the birth of a gigantic power concern, harnessing up various power sources and supplying many states. In the beginning the great enterprise, which promises "a smokeless age and smokeless cities" will probably be divided into two huge concerns that will fight each other for supremacy.

Rates, of course, will be agreed upon, as high as the public will stand.

It may seem strange to you that Niagara, created come time ago, should be harnessed to pay profit to a few private individuals, instead of being used to supply power at the lowest possible rates, to all the people. But console yourself.

There is no use worrying about the inevitable. For many years to come you will live in a country managed by and for intelligent minds that understand finance and organization.

But years pass, other generations come. What has been taken from the people in one generation can be taken back by the people in another. A handful of Indians once owned all of New York. A handful of royalty, nobility and clergy once owned all of France. That has changed. Other things will change. Common sense and the majority rule in the end. And, meanwhile, individual selfishness builds up useful organizations.

DINNER STORIES

The city kid was roaming about in the country when he came upon a dozen or so empty condensed milk cans. Greatly excited, he yelled to his companions:

'Hey, fellers, come here quick! I've found a cow's nest!"

He risked his life to rescue the fair maid from a watery grave, and, of course, her father was duly grateful.

"Young man," he said, "I can never thank you sufficiently for your heroic act. You incurred an awful risk in saving my only daughter."

"None whatever," replied the amateur lifesaver; "I am already married."

A lady who took great interest in her servants and their welfare recently engaged a new maid.

"Have you any special interest, Mary?" she asked, in her kind way. "Anything you are taking up or that you care about?"

"Well, mum," replied the simple Mary, "I 'ave been taking up with the baker's boy, but I don't know as 'ow I cares for 'im much!"

This mud treatment for complexions is no new thing. A thick coat of face powder, plus a warm day, amounts to the same thing.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

'SINNERS IN HEAVEN," AT CERAMIC, SCORES WITH MOVIE FANS HERE

Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix Portray Two Leading Roles in Latest Cinema Opus From Paramount Organization.

The blue ribbon as the week's best picture goes to "Sinners in Heaven," the latest cinema opus from the Paramount organization, which opened last night at the Ceramic Theatre for a three days run. For dramatic strength of story, excellent characterization, pictorial beauty and able direction, this picturization of the famous novel of the same name by Clive Arden, adapted to the screen by James Creelman and produced by Alan Crosland, is miles ahead of many of the recent screen offerings.

If the word "super-film" had not fallen into disrepute because of misuse and abuse, we would be sorely tempted to apply it to this photoplay. As it is we will have to content ourselves by heartily recommending it to each and every motion picture "fan."

The usual theme of the story made its transfer to the silver sheet a delicate operation, so to speak: and the fact that it has been accomplished with admirable finesse, so that even the most rabid puritan will find nothing to criticize, reflects great credit on scenarist and producer. And yet, all the vitality and dynamic dramatic power of the story, which won the prize in England as the best novel of the year, has been preserved intact. Personally we believe that "Sinners in Heaven" as a picture will be even more enthusiastically received than was "Sinners in Heaven" as a book.

Briefly, the plot unfolds the adventures of a man and girl who find themselves cast away on a desert island with no apparent hope of rescue. Bound by a lifetime of conventions and tradition and loyalty to her fiance back in England, the girl struggles against her overwhelming love for the man—but in vain! And the manner in which these two work out their salvation provides some of the most gripping drama ever flashed on the screen.

Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix portray the two leading roles, and to say that each scores a distinct personal triumph is but stating a fact. The other members of the excellent cast include some of filmdom's most popular favorites. Montague Love, Holmes Herbert, Florence Billings, Betty Hilburn, Effie Shannon and Marcia Harris.

By all means see "Sinners in Heaven." It is screen fare de luxe!

KOA, DENVER RADIO, SPANS BOTH OCEANS

Heard in New Zealand and by English Listener.

BREAKS RECORDS

Previous Distances Were Alaska and Peru.

DENVER, Feb.—Heard in New Zealand, on the west, and in England on the east, Station KOA, at Denver, latest Western broadcasting radio station, built at a cost of approximately $200,000, has successfully spanned the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans and has established its record long distance for program reception.

From New Zealand, approximately 8,000 miles from Denver, word has just been received that the newly opened broadcasting station first was heard on New Year's Eve. Report of reception was received from E. F. Blackwood, Tilt street, Omaru, in the State of Otago. Omaru is on the east coast of the South Island of New Zealand.

Frank Bartlett, of Birmingham, England, wrote his cousin in Denver, Dr. M. F. Bartlett, that he remained up until 4 a. m. recently listening to a Denver orchestra—a regular Saturday night feature over KOA. The distance from Denver to Birmingham, England, is 5,700 miles. Officials pointed out that the total distance between New Zealand and England embraces half the globe.

Previous high records for KOA were Alaska, on the north, and Arequipa, Peru, in South America. From the latter point L. Ancliaux wrote an appreciation for KOA's concert December 26, 1924. He reported cloudy weather and heavy atmosphere, but good volume. The distance to Denver is 5,200 miles.

"Just a few lines from little old New Zealand to let you know that your transmission of New Year's Eve was received here with good volume on the loud speaker," reads the letter from Amaru. "The jazz music came through fine, as also did the cheering and the calls for encores.

"Your volume was splendid, and modulation just perfect."

KOA staff members declare that words of praise from radio listeners have reached them in letters written in several different languages, in addition to English.

Since the opening date of KOA the new international radio voice has been heard in virtually every important point on the North American continent, Central America, Cuba, the West Indies, Hawaii and points in Suoth America.

A recent innovation at KOA was the broadcasting of the Roman Catholic mass services and the sermon from the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception here.

The Prince of Wales' use of a cigarette holder while visting in this country caused such a demand for the once-popular article that one London firm was almost swamped with orders from New York tobacco dealers.

Waited on Customers in Stocking Feet Until "Blue-jay" Put On Her Shoes

Mrs. Clara E. Patterson, 6403 Superior Ave., a saleswoman in one of Cleveland's largest department stores, tells an interesting experience. She says:

"I've had to walk behind the counter in my stocking feet, because my corns pained so. Now, I buy 'Blue-jay' Corn Plasters and get immediate relief. An unfailing remedy. I would recommend them to anybody."

"Blue-jay" is made in liquid and in plaster form. For INSTANT RELIEF, we recommend the PLASTER, because the soft felt ring encircles the corn and at once removes the painful shoe pressure.

In this soft ring is the "Blue-jay" preparation, prescribed by a famous chemist. Not too much—not too little—just the right amount to remove the corn GENTLY. Leave it on 48 hours. The corn lifts right out. Sometimes a stubborn corn requires a second plaster. Apply immediately after soaking off the first.

To avoid infection corns should never be pared except by skilled chiropodists. For corn removal at home, our advice is to try the safe "Blue-jay" Plasters. For a liquid cannot remove shoe pressure; you may get on too much, or not enough, or drop it a little off the corn. So ask for the shapely, comfortable "Blue-jay" Plasters. So much in demand all druggists sell them. Package of six, 25c. Then write us your experience. "Blue-jay" Laboratories, Chicago, Ill.

BIG ESTATE FOR UNKNOWN HEIRS

CHICAGO, Feb.—Unknown heirs, believed to be "somewhere in Ohio," will inherit a fortune of $25,000 left by Enos J. Walker, aged "mystery man," if these relatives can be located, according to W. B. Cox, probate genealogist, here. Cox, whose vocation is the tracing of family trees in connection with settlement of estates, took up the Walker case—one of the strangest on record—after attorneys failed to penetrate the dead man's past. Cox has started an intensive search in Ohio for Walker's heirs. Unless he unravels the paradox, the money left by Walker will revert to the state, it was announced.

Walker is believed to have been born in Ohio in 1844. Family quarrels are blamed for his leaving his "Ohio home" when he was 24. A daughter of a United States senator in Springfield it was said, was Walker's sweetheart. He claimed to have been educated at Columbus, O., in his youth, and became a school teacher and surveyor. He, also, is said to have had relatives about 50 years ago at Springfield and Lima, Ohio, and in other Ohio and Kentucky towns, and a cousin in Philadelphia, who was a lawyer. Walker is believed to have changed his name and settled in Illinois a short time before drifting further west, eventually acquiring land in Mexico.

KOENIG SOUNDS WARNING NOTE

County Health Physician Points Out Danger From Colds.

Dr. Charles A. Koenig, county health officer, has sounded a warning on the danger of colds, which, he asserts are prevalent at this season of the year.

His statement follows:

"This is the season for 'colds.' Many people with 'colds' are serving customers in stores, especially groceries, restaurants, confectionery, and other food handling establishments. That is how many 'colds' are brought into the homes. Such people must stay out of the food handling establishments. The use of a good handkerchief in such cases is filthy. A handkerchief full of mucous and pus is dangerous to handle. In any case, food handlers should use a handkerchief only once. That could be either cloth or paper. It should then be burned, and the hands washed. Customers should refuse to be served by the sick storekeepers."

The petition asking for another officer was unanimously approved. The business men agree to pay half the salary of the patrolman who will be named at the next meeting if a suitable applicant is found.

YOUNG BLOOD

How I Keep Feeling Young and Vigorous at Nearly Sixty.

"I am near 60 years, but I feel as young as I did at 30. I take a cupful of Bulgarian Herb Tea once or twice a week. It keeps me healthy and strong and makes me feel young again," said H. H. Von Schlick, manufacturer of Bulgarian Herb Tea.

Phosphorus In Food Aids Broken Bones to Mend

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR COPELAND

FROM Johns Hopkins Hospital the scientific world has received much valuable information. The latest report from there relates to the effects of diet in hastening the knitting of broken bones.

The experiments were conducted by a famous expert on foods, Prof. E. V. McCollum, and by Dr. Henry A Petersen. Twenty dogs were submitted to the dietary tests. The conclusions were founded on facts established in some cases by six or eight weeks of treatment of the dogs.

It appears to be established by these tests that the rapidity of healing of the broken bones depends on the quantities of phosphorous taken in the food. By well directed dieting the phosphorus in the blood can be reduced or increased. If there is not enough phosphorus the bones become brittle. They are easily broken and do not heal as they should.

On the contrary, if the phosphorus content of the blood is increased, the broken bones heal promptly. To accomplish this in the dogs under test they were fed food rich in phosphorus and in addition were given cod liver oil.

The progress of the experiments was under constant observation by the aid of the x ray.

If experience verifies the conclusions this knowledge will prove of the greatest value to the human family. For instance fracture of the hip bone in old persons is very serious because of the failure to heal. The knitting is delayed and perhaps never takes place. If phosphorus food will help it is certainly in easy way to overcome the lack of an important mineral and its use will make broken bones in elderly persons an accident of less moment than it is at present.

So that you may know some of the foods rich in phosphorus will name a few. Among such are lean beef, yolk of egg, liver, cheese, milk, whole wheat, oatmeal, dried beans, carrots, cabbage, turnips, lettuce, prunes, oranges, peanuts, almonds and other nuts.

Soups or chowder containing some of these elements or other dishes may be included these will give the necessary supply of phosphorus. Of course most of the foods I have named are pretty hearty and good sense must be used in giving them to a bed patient.

Cod liver oil can be had in palatable form and according to the Baltimore tests should be added to the diet in liberal quantities.

I am giving you this recently acquired information hoping if it is really useful that somebody may be benefited by it. I shall send a copy of this little talk to the doctor of a friend of mine who fell down last week and broke his hip. I want this friend to have the immediate benefit of the Johns Hopkins tests and I pray that he and other sufferers may be helped by the work of Doctors Peterson and McCollum.

Art Paints Hard to Make

Paints used by artists are quite difficult to make and many of the pigments are not found in the United states, but are imported from Europe. In grinding these pigments they are placed between two soapstone disks and ground down to a butter-like smoothness to break down all crystalline structures.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause — Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the REAL cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

POEMS THAT LIVE

On thy cold gray stones, O Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay!

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.

At the foot of thy crags, O Sea!
But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.

—Tennyson.

Niagara Falls Backing Up.

Water falling at Niagara Falls eats away about a foot of cliff each year. In this way a deep cleft has been cut back from Queenstown for a distance of seven miles to the place where the falls now are located. At this rate it is figured it took more than 35,000 years to dig out the seven mile channel that now exists.

BOARD ORDERS ROAD SURVEY

Grading of Highway In St. Clair Township Seems Assured.

County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk has been ordered by the county commissioners to make a survey of the East Liverpool-East Palestine road from the northern terminus of the paved road northeast of Calcutta northward to the St. Clair-Middleton township line.

This is taken to indicate that this road in St. Clair township will be graded this year, and will be a continuation of the grading job now in progress in Middleton township on this highway.

The commissioners have been informed indirectly that St. Clair township trustees and farmers living along the route of this road look with favor upon this grading project upon plans that were followed in Middleton township. In the latter instance the commissioners and Middleton trustees aided by farmers put over this grading project, and because of the donation work the job is being completed at a very low cost.

It is likely that the county steam shovel will be used on any grading on this road in St. Clair township, but the work will be under the direction of County Curveyor Lloyd C. Kirk.

County Commissioners Order New Shovel for Work on Highways

At a cost of upwards of $8,000 the county commissioners have awarded the contract to the Erie Shovel Co., for the delivery to this county of a model "A" Erie steam shovel, which will replace the steam shovel that has been in service in this county several years.

For a while the board was of the opinion that a gasoline shovel would meet the requirements of the road jobs in this county, but following an inspection of several types of shovels, it was the opinion of the board that the Erie type would be the best for all needs at this time.

Delivery is to be made before the opening of spring, it being the intent of the commissioners to keep this shovel working at least eight months in the year if possible.

Grace Rumberger, through her counsel, Cochran and Crawford has filed an action for divorce against her husband, George C. Rumberger, whom she married at Alliance, Oct. 24, 1900. Gross neglect of duty is charged in the petition, which also relates that the whereabouts of Rumberger are unknown to the plaintiff.

Cochran and Crawford has filed a divorce petition for Mary Collums against her husband Herbert Collums, whom she married at East Liverpool, October 16, 1919.

LODGE FOUNDING TO BE OBSERVED

The Lisbon Knights of Pythias will observe the founding of this fraternal organization with a banquet in the K. of P. auditorium next Monday evening. Judge Lyon of Youngstown, the Rev. B. R. Johnson and Attorney Samuel W. Crawford of East Liverpool will be the speakers during the evening.

A committee on arrangements recently appointed has announced that this event will be the most elaborate of the character ever put on by the K. of P. lodge of Lisbon.

Seek To Transfer Money.

An application has been filed in common pleas court by L. M. Kyes, as attorney for the township trustees of Unity, asking permission of the court to transfer $1,000 from its general fund to its road fund.

"There are 71 miles of township roads in need of immediate attention in Unity township,' the petition discloses, "and the transfer of $1,000 is a matter of necessity."

Marriage License.

John Frazier, a rubber worker of East Liverpool, but a former resident of Elizabeth, W. Va., and Miss Mabel Galloway, also of East Liverpool, but who formerly resided at Friendly, W. Va., have been granted a marriage license, and were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon Presbyterian church by the Rev. P. M. Macaulay.

Divorce Case Entry Made.

Another entry has been made in the divorce case of Irene Lutton, who was granted a decree against her husband, George R. Lutton Feb. 4. The case, as to the child in this action, has been now certified to the juvenile court, for such action as the law may hereafter permit. Attorney Charles Boyd represented Mrs. Lutton in this action, while the defendant was represented by Attorney George S Thompson.

STACY IS NAMED MOTOR CYCLE COP

The letter of Mayor F. E. Albright of Lisbon to the county commissioners, asking for the appointment of Robert Stacy as deputy sheriff, following his appointment as motor cycle police of Lisbon was placed on file during a meeting of the board Monday.

It was suggested by Mayor Albrecht that the village of Lisbon be given the preference when arrests were made for violation of the state traffic laws.

The commissioners took action upon the suggestion of Mayor Albrecht, and now that Henry Burbon of Salem has been appointed for this particular purpose, it has not been indicated what future action will be taken upon the suggestion made in the letter from Mayor Albrecht.

Case Appealed.

An appeal bond of $50 has been filed in common pleas court by Elmo Roe, who was sued in the court of Justice of the Peace P. V. Mackall of East Liverpool by Cordelia Witherow, who claimed the defendant was indebted to her in the sum of $6 for a board bill. Judgment by default was rendered by the court, and then Roe appealed the case.

Judgment Claimed.

Claiming a judgment of $2,300 on a promissory note secured by a mortgage on a piece of property in Columbiana, George Pine, through Attorney W. E. Warren, have filed a petition in common pleas court against Harry Innman and others. The petition recites that the note for $2,300 was given Sept. 23, 1921.

Frew Funeral Services.

The funeral of Miss Florence Frew, sister of D. H. Frew and J. Press Frew of the Journal Publishing company, Lisbon, was held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. J. M. Cameron, of the United Presbyterian church, officiating. Miss Frew was born in Lawrence county, Pa., in 1857.

Asked To Improve Road.

The State Highway Department has been asked to improve that section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road known as No. 502 north of the Cox highway in Fairfield township on a 50-50 basis with the county. This improvement would take an improved road to the Columbiana-Mahoning county line where an improved road into Youngstown would be tapped.

All work on this road in Fairfield township has been held up on account of the weather. The southern end of this road will be the last to be finished, all of which lies in St. Clair township.

Improving Home Building.

Considerable progress is being made in the stucco work at the county home, and the county commissioners have blackboarded a proposal to stucco the milk house at this institution.

The contract for this improvement was awarded to an Alliance concern after the commissioners advertised for bids twice. It is the opinion of Supt. John P. Neill that the stucco contract will be finished within the next six weeks.

A. The assistant secretary of the University of Michigan says: "I presume the person making the inquiry of your office means the University of Michigan. There is no Ann Arbor college. No gold mine in Ontario, worthless or otherwise, has been given to the University of Michigan, so far as we know. Some time ago the newspapers referred to some lands in the Garden River Indian Reserve in Ontario, which is near the Canadian Soo, as 'valuable copper lands.' This land was given to the university about fifteen years ago. The deed especially reserves gold and silver to the Province of Ontario. It undoubtedly contains copper ore, but this ore is, as far as we know, low grade and not suitable for mining under the present processes in commercial use."

COMMON SENSE IN SMALL DOSES

He who lives by the undrained pond
Waves a magic mosquito wand.

A heavy diet and a heavy head.

While it's mighty fine to be able to apply proper first aid, preventing the accident is of greater importance.

If your weight is two-twenty
And you look like a tub,
To accomplish reduction
Begin on the grub.

Most of us who do not perform manual labor could subsist very well on just one of the three big meals that we daily consume.

One well known authority recommends that the annual physical examination should include a careful examination for evidence of beginning cancer.

And another good way to prepare for war is to live so that we won't be rejected by the recruiting officer.

And it seemed such a pity,
So young and so fair—
When all that she needed
Was lots of fresh air.

Too many folks who keep up appearances don't pay their doctors.

Stuffy bed rooms in the night,
Windows down and fastened tight,
Things like this make doctors tight pneumonia.

The fellow who wants all he eats has a stomach that doesn't.

The prompt application of iodine or mercurochrome (a new substitute for iodine) to minor cuts and scratches, beats an application for a bed in the hospital.

Famous Racoon Is Caught.

"Old Ringtail," a giant racoon which has defied dogs and hunters near Hoopeston, Ill., for years, was finally caught recently by "Old Trailer," a hound owned by Carl Owens of Rossville, Ill. The hound overtook the coon in a cornfield and killed it after a desperate battle. Brought to bay numberless times in the last six years, it had always heretofore fought its way to freedom.

Although phosphate deposits of the Djebel-Onk fields of Algeria were discovered 20 years ago, and are known to contain 1,000,000,000 metric tons, work never has been started because rival efforts of Algiers and Tunisia have prevented construction of a railroad to the field from either city.

All Druggists Great Offer To Chronic Rheumatic Sufferers

Money Back If Allenrhu Fails to Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.

"It does not matter to me whether you are disabled with cursed rheumatism or have only occasional twinges," says James H. Allen. "I know that Allenrhu, my own discovery, will stop the agony, do away with the gnawing pains and reduce the swollen joints."

"I know it will dissolve the uric acid deposits that have become deeply imbedded in joints and muscles and quickly drive every trace of rheumatism from your body. I know this because I was crippled for years and many times was unable to work, and Allenrhu made a well, robust, healthy man of me."

"I know because since I cured myself, hundreds have taken Allenrhu and speedily rid themselves of this agonizing disease."

Allenrhu is no laggard; it starts right in at once; it gets into the blood, searches out the poisonous uric acid deposit and in two days starts to drive the concentrated impurities that cause rheumatism, out of the body through the natural channels.

It's marvelous how quickly it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two days—even in cases where the suffering has been most painful all traces have disappeared in a few days.

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases.

With this understanding he has instructed all druggists everywhere to guarantee it in every instance.

"During 60 years of Married Life"...

Three Generations Kept Healthy and Happy

"Beecham's Pills were always considered indispensable by my parents during sixty years of married life and I am never without them in my home, as they are used when required by myself (aged sixty-one), and wife and children. This covers a period of over eighty years.

My wife and sons also believe there is no remedy for constipation and biliousness equal to Beecham's Pills.

So many so-called "cures" for biliousness and kindred troubles leave after effects that are certainly injurious, but Beecham's Pills give prompt relief and leave one in a healthy and happy condition." N. J. M. Ramsay, N. J.

They didn't know anything about vitamines in those days or that Cod Liver Oil was full of them but after bronchitis or a heavy cold or pneumonia or any illness that saps vitality they took it religiously. It was nasty and some folks say vile and it made the grown-ups gag, and the kids yell in protest and many times it turned delicate stomachs almost inside out—then there was trouble.

But now, thank goodness, all that has passed—and McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are praised and blessed from one end of this broad land of ours to the other.

Do You Believe In Health-Enough?

If so, Your whole family can have it, Always!

The Holland System for Good Health

After cleaning air, and warming it to the desired temperature, and moistening it properly, the Holland Heating System circulates it, besides—circulates it all through the house. And as the air is humidified, the ashes are dampened to eliminate dust, and the fuel steamed to get the maximum heating efficiency.

Do you know of any other heating system, AT ANY PRICE, that does all of that? Is it any wonder that hundreds of thousands of people are repeating so frequently that "Holland Furnaces Make Warm Friends"? And the average heating system costs much more than the Holland.

The Holland is not a pipeless furnace. It is a complete pipe system, with cold air returns from rooms above the basement.

Why pay an unnecessarily high price for a heating plant? Why waste fuel and then not have enough warmth? And why breathe dry, stale air when circulated air, properly moistened, actually costs less?

The New Holland Humidifier

The Holland Heating System is equipped now with an air-moistener that is not only highly efficient, but is so extremely simple that it positively can not get out of order.

Everyone who has had the experience of going to California in February or March knows how it feels to leave bad weather and the train's stuffiness on the eastern side of the mountains, and glide down into the delightful atmosphere of the valleys where the air is balmy and fresh and inviting and so marvelously cheerful, that you just take big, deep breaths and smile even when you're all by yourself, just for the very joy of living.

It is much this same feeling that you have, now, when you step into a Holland-heated home.

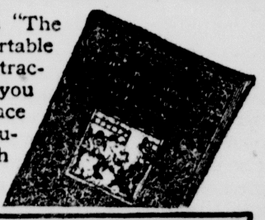

Recommended By Doctors

The Holland Health Heating System is highly recommended by physicians. Ask your own doctor. You and the family can and do catch colds and sore throats because of dry, stale air. So why not think seriously about such an important matter right away?

The Holland is sold on the easy payment plan, if you prefer, or there is a fair discount for cash.

You will enjoy the call of a Holland representative. He is a gentleman and one who knows his business.

"Is it generally known that Mrs. Dascome is living?" Rossiter asked drily.

"Not yet. Mr. Dascome thinks that if it gets talked about it will make it more difficult to discover the criminals." Karesia's anger was rising. It was cruel to hate a man as Rossiter hated Dascome. Dascome had never harmed him; if there was a fault, it was hers.

"They've not been told at the hospital who she is, I suppose?"

Karesia controlled herself with difficulty. "I don't know how much they know of the circumstances—they call her Mrs. Bliss."

Rossiter had been speaking with face turned; now he looked at Karesia and his tone was different, genuinely affectionate and concerned. "Poor Kara! It's no fun, loving and then having to relinquish, is it? Don't I know! I'm darned glad this has happened, though—it'll be best for you in the end. It was horrible, the thought of your marrying him. No, don't go off with a wrong idea now! I'm not saying that because I'm jealous! You were right in what you said to me that night—we should never have been happy together. I know that now. I care enough for you yet, though, to rejoice over his not having taken you in. You saved yourself from that!"

Karesia did not grasp what he meant. "Saved myself?" she asked, too surprised and puzzled to be angry. "What do you mean by 'his not having taken me in'?"

Rossiter quieted suddenly. "Just that I'm glad it's all off, Kara. You won't marry him, and you're too straight to be led into anything else. We won't talk about it."

It occurred to Karesia what he had meant. She rose. "Did you mean to insinuate that John Dascome knew—that his wife was living?"

Rossiter had seen Karesia angry, defiant rather, but he had never seen her like this, literally white-hot, utterly and profoundly enraged. He possessed an inflammable temper; besides, his conviction was an honest one. "I mean exactly that!"

"Your hatred of him is beneath contempt," she said in level tones. "I am sorry I came into your house."

Rossiter grew white. He spoke very deliberately. "You have your conviction—I have mine. There were numbers who followed those trials who thought as I did. I was convinced that John Dascome was a very clever, utterly unscrupulous man who was capable of ridding himself of his wife and taking possession of her millions by any means that he thought safe. I think so still. Apparently, he did not murder his wife—I think he did something to her that was worse than murder, and, on the whole, I think that what he did was more in keeping with his character. I have no doubt that there was a 'plot,' but of his own making. It miscarried—he had not calculated on the presence of that boy, Jimmy Calhoun, that was all. I believe, as I always have believed, that Herbert Colt helped him in his bit of work, and there may have been another man in with them who, when he was afraid of being implicated, put that body in the other lake and did his best to finish John Dascome. Colt was in Proctorville on that sixth of April, doing Dascome's work, that was proved in the trial, but the other man was on the bank above the Dragon's Pool. It was he who took Elaine Dascome away, and I believe it was he who put that body in the lake—any one Dascome would employ would not be choice in his methods, he probably saw a chance at the ten millions, for himself, a huge ransom at any rate. He held off till the trials were over, then thought he could cope with John Dascome. He may have bled him, but I doubt it—I think that John Dascome saw to it that his wife 'incapacitated and unable to administer her own affairs,' or he may simply have been assured that she had been 'incapacitated' and rendered unrecognizable by the man from whom she either escaped or by whom she was turned loose to wander. I believe the latter—that the man was afraid to keep her, that his own plans miscarried.

"A mysterious crime is usually uncovered because of some strange chance, Kara. Chance, or purpose rather—for I believe this is not a haphazard world—brought Elaine Dascome out to this part of the country. Dascome learned of it, and Colt, 'the long-faced man, waiting and watching and peering' at that poor soul through the garage window, drove her to you. What happens then? Mr. Dascome appears promptly and takes your house. Then he furnishes you with her history—she was born half-witted—there is nothing in particular that can be done for her. I have no doubt that he told you it would be best to find some place for her where she could have care; he must have had some plan for getting her out of your house, cautiously, of course.

"Dascome wanted you, Kara, if he could get you. He didn't tell you his history, he left you to find it out, knowing perfectly well that you were growing more and more in love with him every day and that, when you did make the discovery, you would believe in him. His next step would have been to remove his wife from your home. Then you find that proof. It was a pretty severe shock to him, I fancy! There was nothing left for him to do but just what he has done. You wouldn't have stood for anything else. But he didn't dare to come out publicly with the truth, there are too many who would think just as I do. Do you suppose for a moment that Mrs. Ormsby will not reopen this thing—give him all the trouble she can? She hates John Dascome, and she loves money quite as dearly as he does. He plotted to get that ten million, in the first place, and he'll plot again to keep it, but I fancy his days and night haven't been pleasant. Give the thing to the public! Not until he has to—he's sparring for time. I'll wager he has Colt busy covering up their tracks. I didn't mean to say all this, and I'm sorry if I've hurt you, but I have a perfect right to my conviction. When I sat in that court room, I didn't hate John Dascome; in a way, I admired him—he was so clever and such a superb actor! I wouldn't have touched his hand though, not for a good deal! I have exactly the same feeling now, only, in addition, I utterly detest him for what he has done to you, scheming himself into your house and your heart—a fine, clean woman like you! I am not forcing my convictions on you, I have simply stated them."

ADA MAY HERE IN "LOLLIPOP"

Big Musical Comedy Comes to Ceramic on March 3.

A South Bend, Indiana, dramatic critic praises "Lollipop," the Henry W. Savage musical comedy production which comes to the Ceramic on March 3. He says:

Bright, pleasing and tuneful, "Lollipop" was danced and sung into the affections of playgoers at the Oliver theatre Tuesday night by Ada May and a chorus of London Tiller girls as the most entrancing musical comedy of the season. "Lollipop" is as sweet as its name.

Ada May, the youthful star, perhaps better known in these parts as Ada May Weeks, who several years ago was featured in "Listen Lester," has advanced during the intervening time into the foremost rank of musical comedy stars. Always a finished dancer who performed as though inspired by sheer delight, she now possesses a magnetic and tuneful voice, which is one of the features of "Lollipop." Certain it is that Miss Ada May now yields precedence to no one.

While other musical shows have had choruses, "Lollipop" is distinctive in being one of the very few whose chorus is featured along with the star. Ziegfeld's "Follies" compels admiration with its beautiful members who use their looks chiefly as a pleasing background for stately poses; but the London Tiller girls are not only pleasing to the eye but are living proof that a chorus can be made one of the animate entertaining features if the members are chosen for ability and trained carefully. The Tiller girls have gained fame because they are all finished dancers.

Dancing Especially Good.

"Lollipop" charms with tuneful music, unusually good dancing, considerable clean fun and a dainty libretto with just enough of a thread of a story to hold interest in itself. When one leaves the theatre, it is with a sense of exhilaration and enjoyment that lingers long after the final curtain has descended. More praise than that can not be accorded a musical comedy for not always are they an unstinted delight.

Vincent Youman wrote the score and Zelda Sears was responsible for the libretto. Ada May is surrounded by a capable cast, including Gus Shy, Walter Craig, Mark Smith, Florence Webber, Leonard Ceiley, Marie Stagg, Evelyn Bennett, Adore Andrews, Leonard Lea, Rita Townsend, Williams Bolds and William Gordon, all of whom ably contribute with song, dance and laughter. In addition to the 12 Tiller girls is a large ensemble of American dancers who ably uphold the honors of this side of the Atlantic.

Ada May Charms.

Dancing, all kinds of it, is one of the features of the show. Ada May has some of the most amusing eccentric dances seen here in a long time. Mention should also be made of the dancing "plumbers," Guy Shy and Walter Craig, the latter Ada May's partner in many specialties, who provides a wholesome supply of laughs. In fact, the entire company is unusually good.

It should be stated that Ada May, in addition to her dancing and singing ability, has become a comedienne of distinctive merit. She makes the most of every situation, without having to resort to too many "gags."

The libretto concerns one Laura Lamb, an orphan, otherwise known as "Lollipop" who is an inmate of an orphan asylum. She is adopted by a wealthy woman and forced to perform the work of a drudge. Suddenly she finds she is the heiress of her uncle, with a fabulous income at her command. The junior member of the "plumbing" firm, played by Mr. Craig, is in love with her, and needless to say, in the end they are happily mated. Incidentially, "Lollipop" is his nickname for the loveable Laura.

Every tune in the show is a lifting one, though there are few that the audience will hum for many days after they have left the theater. Probably the favorites with the Oliver audience were two, "Tie a String Around Your Finger," and "Take a Little One Step." There are several others that have a more decided appeal than the rest, but none that lasts quite as long as "Tie a String."

Good voices abound in the cast, an unusual distinction in our present day musical shows. While Ada May carries the burden of the songs she is not left to do so alone and there are probably twice as many numbers divided among the rest of the cast, but no other individual has an allotment as large she.

"Lollipop" remains at the Oliver for two performances today, a matinee and the evening performance, and if you desire real wholesome entertainment, you should see this, one of the real hits of the season in every city in which it has played.

Saying that it is now safer to fly than to motor in England, the Earl of Kinnoull has purchased an airplane to travel between his country place and London, and plans to teach his wife to operate the plane.

Circuit Court Rules College Frats Exempt From State Taxation

CHICAGO, Feb.—College fraternities, being "corporations not for profit, but organized and existing for charitable educational use and purposes," are exempt from State taxes, according to a decision of the Circuit court in a test case brought by Omega chapter of the Use Upsilon Fraternity at the University of Chicago.

The fraternity, taxed $1,500 on its building, refused to pay.

Many College Romances Last.

Miss Agnes Husband, dean of women at the University of Kansas, has come forward with the statement that college romances which result in marriage seldom end in divorce. Miss Husband does not agree with the popular misconception that the principal function of a dean of women in a college is to smash up college love affairs, but on the other hand maintains her function is partly to encourage marriage between college men and women.

VERSE AND WORSE

By Larry Flint

Art story.

They never could have painted them,
the tables and the walls
That line my house and beautify its parlors and its halls—
The greatest of the painters; for a touch of charm is theirs
That only little children leave on cabinets and chairs.
And beauty lingers with them that is more than artist's touch,
A beauty that is mine to claim and cherish over-much.

A finger print has fallen here and
smudged the painted top;
A dinge is there where baby toe in force had chanced to stop;
A chip is sadly missing where a block
of wood has hit;
And here a heel has landed down and
And there are untold beauties left by some one passing by
That never artist painted or could do
if he should try.

They never could have painted them
—the wizards of the brush;
For dinges in mahogany or tears in silk or plush
Are never made by artists; and 'tis better thus, for oh!
We should have never caught their charm or ever loved them so.
And as their marks from off the wood
can never quite depart,
So dreams of those who put them
there lie printed on my heart.

Walter Johnson Reported to Be Nat Club Holdout

Menke's Daily Sport Letter

By Frank G. Menke

(Copyright, 1925, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The hoi polloi which hunted around for the Golden Fleece never concentrated more feverish energy into the task than baseball leaders now are doing in questing for third sackers and backstops.

Only a few seasons ago the world seemed to be cluttered up with great guardians of the difficult corner, and with receivers who deserved ranking with Ewing, Flint, Bennet, Kling, Archer, Bresnahan and other satellites of long gone days.

But now—how vastly changed is everything. For, of a sudden, the Major leagues are depleted of catching stars and within the 16 clubs of today, there are only a few third basemen who can be regarded as above the ordinary.

Groh, Traynor, Dugan, Hale, Blenge—when you've mentioned them you have embraced about all who really are stars. Pinelli, of the Reds, is a good man and he's improving. But it is unlikely that he has enough native ability ever to blaze a trial into immortality.

Kamm is a worth while citizen—but if he were placed on the auction block he wouldn't command anything grand in the matter of offers. Lutzke is a brilliant fielder who cannot hit. Stock is growing old—and slowing up. Forberg, Wrightstone, Forgaue, Padgett, Jones—they do well. But there isn't one of that group who could refain a regular job if a rookie came along with the fundamental greatness of a Collins, a Bradley, a Cross, a Groh, a Dugan or a Traynor.

Those men, therefore, are big leaguers today not because they are of greatness or because they measure up to the definite standard but because there's an appaling scarcity of third sackers who are worthy of hire.

It seems but yesterday when Ray Schack was regarded as one of the greatest catchers of all time; when Walter Schmidt was a wonder of wonders; when Steve O'Neil was lauded in song and story; when Ivy Wingo was performing brilliantly; when Hank Severeid was a marvel; when Wallie Schang was on his heydey and Frank Snyder was a great youngster.

Then every club in each circuit semed to have not merely one great backstop but a youngster or two who seemed able to stop behind the plate and perform in ways that were glorious. In those days the catching department of each club was the least of a manager's worry. Now it is the greatest.

Schalk, O'Neill, Schang, Snyder, Severed—all have slipped near to the zero hour of baseball lifetime. They've grown old in the game, they are bowing under the impress of the years. They have slowed—and yet they still remain because a whim of baseball fate has ruled that just now there shall be none to take their places.

In other years, managers ever assumed that a kindly fortune would care for them; that it wasn't necessary for them either to seek or to attempt development of young catchers, of greatness would just happen along.

Now they realize the folly of that thought. They've scoured the bushes for backstopping youngsters, found many—but only a few could stand the big league gaff. As elderly and as slow as the Schalks, the O'Neills and the Severeds may be, they are still a dozen jumps better than most of the catching youngsters who have been given tryouts through the past two seasons.

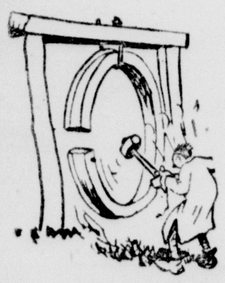

There aren't in the big leagues today more than six young catchers who can be reckoned as really worth while. The Dodgers have a star in Taylor; the Cubs have a peppery fighting kid in Hartnett; the Pirates have a great one in Gooch. Beyond those are Bassler of the Tigers, Henline of the Phillies, Hargraves of the Reds. But the latter trio are making good only after their second trials—and all are far beyond the initial voting age.

So in this era of baseball, the managers have sidetracked the old slogan of "Pitchers—and more pitchers" and have demanded of their scouts:

"Get catchers—and third basemen."

Cannot Dodge Law.

CHILLICOTHE, Feb.—Pearly Groves was arrested recently, shortly after arriving here. He had been absent from Athens almost a year. A warrant, charging him with theft of clothing, valued at $40, was issued last May by Grace Payne, who alleged that Groves stole clothing and shoes from her husband.

Burning Question of the Day Is Did Dundee Duck This Battler?

Acting on the request of French boxing authorities or on facts printed in news dispatches boxing officials of a score of states and cities have barred Johnny Dundee from appearing within their jurisdictions until he explains satisfactorily why he failed to go through with his battle with Fred Bretonnel, French lightweight champ, in Paris. Dundee "ran out" of the bout to hasten home, ostensibly to claim the world title when Benny Leonard retired.

RICKEY SAYS CARDS NEED AN INFIELDER

St. Louis Manager Makes no Pennant Claims for His Team This Season.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Show Branch Rickey the left side of an infield and a pitcher or so who can win more than ten games and he will show you a ball club. At least, that is how Branch himself views the matter.

"That's all I need," he said, with the manner of one who mentions a scarcity of sleeve garters. "With Bottomley on first base and Hornsby at second, is it hardly necessary to comment on the right side of the infield. They are the best two-man combination in baseball.

"My pitchers will have to do better. Allan Sothoron was the best last year and he won only ten games. I can't go anywhere with a staff like that."

More Experimenting.

In brief, Rickey will do more experimenting than the bright man who is taking a post-graduate course in a barber school. For third base, he has Lester Bell, who hit .365 in the American Association last year. But Lester seems to have only a vague idea of the location of first base when making a throw and may have to be shifted to shortstop.

In the event he must do battle with one Cooney. And as Rickey says: "May the best man win."

Howard Freigau, ex-water boy, and George Toporcer, the man behind the spectacles, are candidates for third base. Toporcer is a fine utility man, but seems to be a trifle short of making the grade at steady employment. Freigau, like Bell, is inclined to throw them far away. Tomy Thevenow, ex-Syracuse short-stop, probably will not linger long. He can't hit the size of his neckband.

Outside of Sothoron, the Cards have prospective winners in the pitching averages, but their actual performance is open to doubt. Rated in the order of their importance, they are:

Cardinal Pitchers.

Walter "Dusty" Mails, who left-handed the Indians into a pennant with seven straight victories in 1920. He had a big year with Oakland and is said to be on his way back.

Flint Rhem, strike-out king of the Western Association last year.

Clyde Day, who pitched and won five double headers for Muskogee in 1924.

Southpaw Hallahan, of Kalmazoo; Shields, from Nova Scotia; Wigington, from New Haven, and Allyn Stout, a St. Louis semi-pro.

Holdovers on the staff are Eddie Dyer, Lee Dickerman, Bill Shordel, Jesse Haines, Johnny Stuart and Sothoron.

Of outfielders there is quantity without particular quality. The list includes Ray Blades, Heinie Mueller, Jack Smith, Roscoe Holm, Chick Hafey, a slugger from Houston; Taylor Douthit, from St. Joe; Ralph Shiners, ex-Giant from Toledo, and Charley Hughes, a callow young man from the University of Kentucky.

Mike Gonzales remains as dean of the catching corps, which shows not a new face. Charley Niebergall, Ernie Vick and Al. Boel make up the rest of the staff.

Wheeling Fighter Arrives in City Looking for Bout

The city today boasts an addition to its pugilistic ranks, which at the present time happen to be well thinned out, with the arrival of one Al. Williams, better known in some places as Battling Reno.

Williams' home is in Sistersville, W. Va. During the past year he has been boxing out of Wheeling. In recent months he has been mingling with the lightweights successfully, Bobby Stafford, of Tacoma, Wash., and Bob Jones, of Pittsburgh, being included among his recent opponents.

Efforts are being made to steam up a scrap for Williams under auspices of a local club, it is said, the bout depending upon the success of promoters in obtaining a suitable opponent.

Stribling to Meet Delaney In Garden Go

Agrees to Fight Slattery's Substitute on Feb. 26.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—With the withdrawal of Jimmy Slattery from the negotiations, owing to his desire for a brief rest, the prospects today were that Jack Delaney would be substituted for the Buffalo entry against Young Stribling in the proposed bout at Madison Square Garden on February 26. The match will be closed this afternoon if Stribbling can extricate himself from a previous ring engagement to meet Warnie Smith of Oklahoma, who is laid up in a local hospital with a broken jaw. The Stribling-Smith bout was to have been held in Milwaukee on February 27.

Pirates to Try Out Semi-pro Hurler of Tri-state District

Alf Schmidt, semi-pro hurler and ex-University of Pittsburgh pitcher, who at various times in recent years did slab duty for the former Cord Tires and Man O'War teams, has been given a contract by the Pirates and will accompany the club to the Pacific Coast.

Schmidt, who possesses one of the best records in Tri-State semi-pro and college baseball, is 22 years old and a right hander. He weighs 170 pounds.

Schmidt attracted notice when he won four no-hit games for Allegheny high school in 1921 he signed with Bellevue. He also hurled for Jeanette, Wheeling Bauers, Chester and East Liverpool clubs and others in the district.

Mountaineer Squad Is Due For Shakeup

Shift is Rumored After Team Suffers Eighth Reverse.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 17.—West Virginia cagers have dropped eight straight games and unless they mend their ways the string of reverses will reach ten this week when they meet Washington and Jefferson college at Washington, Pa., Friday and Grove City college at Grove City, Pa., Saturday evening.

The Mountaineer losing streak is a month old, their last victory having been registered at the expense of the University of Pittsburgh on January 16.

As the defeats mount the sport curb here is alive with gossip and today there were strong rumors of another change in the lineup. After six games had been dropped Coach Stadsvold shifted Oliker, a guard, to forward for Graham and placed Ed Morrison alongside Natus Rohrbaugh. It was a wise move. Morrison has more than made good at guard and Rohrbaugh's play has also improved. The offense, however, is still shaky and if Stadsvold makes a change this week it will be at the forwards.

The Murrin brothers, Clarence and Julian, have done well when injected into games this season and many of the team's followers believe that if they are given an opportunity to start they will make good. Although in the Wesleyan game last Friday for only a few minutes Julian Murrin did some fine work and scored the only points made by West Virginia in the last eleven minutes of play. The senior Murrin, Clarence, has acquired the aggressiveness he lacked last year and when the Mountaineers take the floor against the Presidents at Washington this week he may be at one of the forward posts.

At no time this year has Fred Funk, veteran forward, shown the caging ability that made him so valuable in 1923 and 1924. His friends believe that a short rest will enable him to windup his collegiate career with a burst of his old form.

Columbiana Quint Defeats Fairfield Squad Decisively

COLUMBIANA, Feb. 17.—Columbiana High school broke even in their game Saturday evening at Fairfield Centralized High, the suburban girls winning 22 to 15, while the Columbiana boys won to the tune of 29 to 15, the second team playing the first and last quarters. Burkle starred for the first team in the second and third quarters. The local boys have now won sixteen of their twenty games played.

Fairfield girls ran away with the game in the first half, the low ceiling and small floor greatly hampering the Columbiana lassies. However, they staged a comeback in the second half and held their opponents about even. Capt. Gleckler and Elizabeth Orr played best for C. H. S.

Only one game is booked for local teams this week, Lisbon being played at Lisbon Friday night. Salem was to have been played at Salem on Saturday night but that was cancelled by Salem authorities on account of the smallpox scare there. This game may be played later if the situation should improve within the next few days.

Veteran Slab Star Said to Value His Efforts At $25,000

Muddy Ruel, Peckinpaugh and McNeeley Also Listed Among Those Who Would Make Overtures on Griffith's Pocketbook.

By David J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—According to the best and most recent advices, Clark Griffith is beginning to pay the first installment on the price of success, an ante that all pennant winners of recent years, particularly the New York Yankees have been forced to meet.

The good word from the fried ham belt is to be the effect that Walter Johnson has come out in the open as a holdout for the first time in his career and wants $25,000, no less, for another season under the senatorial yoke. Walter is merely one of several of Mr. Griffith's young men obsessed with expensive ideas.

Muddy Ruel, star catcher; Roger Peckinpaugh, short-stop, and Earl McNeely, outfielder, are among those who ilve only to harrass Mr. Griffith with thoughts of foreclosure of the mortgage on the old homestead. Even Stanley Harris, the boy manager, put the financial slug on Clark at a very early moment and possibly it was Harris' initial success that inspired the others if a ball player ever needs monetary inspiration.

It is the old Army game, to wit: you got yours, now give me mine.

And, as such, it is entirely justified, according to the standards of human instinct. Yet, if you happen to be looking out and not in, through the paymaster's window, the justification might seem slightly out of focus.

Johnson, for example, is not worth $25,000 as he stands today. He is nearly at the end of his rope and might not last another season as a headliner. So much for the commercial side of it. But taking the matter from its human angle, it is a fact that Johnson never got the money he deserved during the years he pitched his arm off for Griffith. We wants it now, particularly since his cherished ambition to buy a minor league club has been thwarted.

It is understood that Johnson has become slightly miffed because Griffith didn't rush to the rescue with assistance in the project. However, one doesn't buy the cleaver for the gent with designs upon one's right arm.

Peckinpaugh's case is similar to Johnson's. Roger came through for Griffith last season after several years of mediocrity. But his future hangs in the balance. He also is slightly aged, and no one knows whether his breakdown in the last world's series will be repeated this season.

He, of course, is entitled to an increase. So is Muddy Ruel, and in fact every regular on a championship team. The size of the increase forms the difficulty. Ruel should get a good one. Never a heavily paid young man, he developed into what many critics hailed as the best catcher in baseball in 1924 and is just about due to collect dividends.

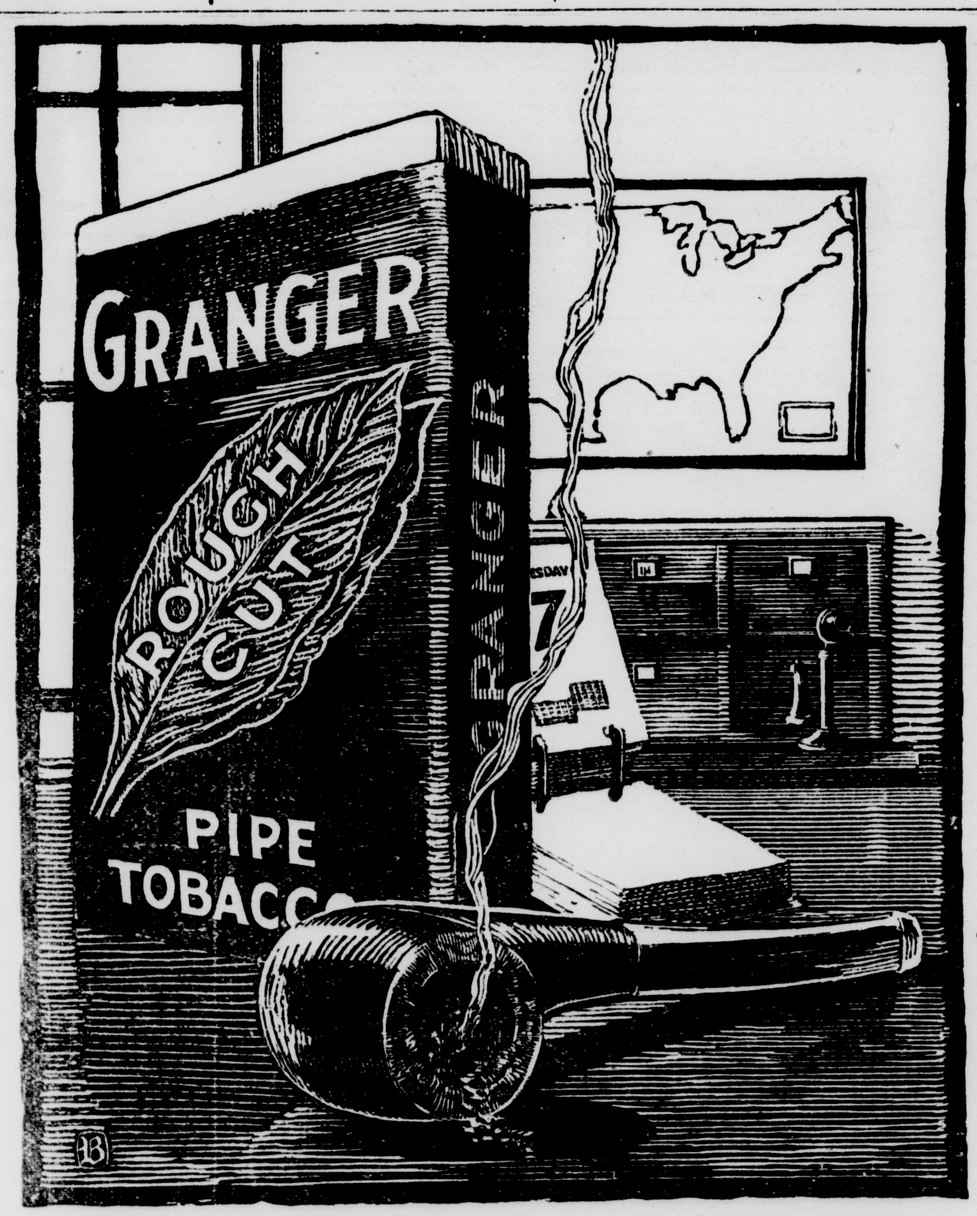

As for McNeeley, it looks as though he has placed an immoderate value on a series-winning base hit that only became finite because a convenient stone caused a bad bound.

Rock Kansas Trims New Orleans Boxer But Fractures Hand

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 17—Rocky Kansas, Buffalo, gave Redcap Wilson of New Orleans, a bad beating in six rounds here last night but suffered a broken hand that may keep him out of the lightweight tourney. Bob Tracey, Buffalo, defeated Pal Moran of New Orleans in six rounds.

Speedsters Await First 1925 Event

Altoona Saucer Being Polished Off for June 13 Race.

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 17.—Spring is here even though the proverbial first robin hasn't yet appeared. Although four months must pass before the first of the season's two great events, squads of workmen have already started preparing the famous Altoona speedway for the sensational racing classics of 1925.

Waiting only for the first early thaws, carpenters are swarming over the huge grandstands and mammoth mile-and-a-quarter broad saucer renewing and repairing everything in readiness for the starter's flag of the first championship event on Saturday, June 13. Snorting tractors and steam rollers are working from morning until night that when race day dawns the renowned bowl here will be the finest in the history of this most thrilling of sports.

Although the wild swept turns of the massive racing course are still banked deep in snow, the fans already are braving the weather to watch the preparations. Interest has been aroused to the highest pitch since the track was built as automotive engineers predict that the remarkable record established at the new Culver City, Calif., track by Bennie Hill of 126 miles an hour will be shattered here as the Altoona saucer has been firmly established as the world's fastest speedway. Every new record made at the other four great bowls of the country has been beaten here in past seasons.

When Fred J. Wagner, internationally known starter of world's championship classics, lines up the cars on June 13 he will face the greatest roster of racing pilots ever entered in one event. In addition to the stellar drivers of the American continent headed by Tommy Milton, Ralph De Palma, Earl Cooper, Bennie Hill and others, the management is now arranging with European representatives for the appearance of the most noted of French, Italian, German and English cars and drivers.

With the settlement of the reparations question, the German racing car manufacturers can ship their mounts to this country without the risk of seizure that withheld them in recent years. None dared the national barrier last season because four machines, valued at more than $100,000, were virtually interned here in 1923 when they couldn't pass back through the French occupation zones without heavy risks.

Last Night's Fights

At Kenton—Maxie Holub, Akron, drew with Mutt Snyder, Dayton, ten rounds. Frankie Bobb, Toledo, defeated Tommy Warren, Lima, eight rounds. Young Maxwell, Lima, scored technical knockout over Young Protzman, Lima, in second round. Young Irwin, Columbus, drew with Gene Sheeney, Sheldon, Kenton, four rounds.

AT BUFFALO—Rocky Kansas, Buffalo, defeated Red Cap Wilson, New Orleans, six rounds. Bobby Tracy, Buffalo, defeated Pal Moran, New Orleans, six rounds. Luke Carr, Buffalo, defeated Phil Gusmano, New York, six rounds. Fred Mueller, Buffalo, defeated Chris Newton, Toronto, six rounds.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Frankie Genaro awarded judge's decision over Kid Wolfe, of Philadelphia, 10 rounds. Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore, outpointed Joe Coletti, of Jersey City, 10 rounds. Marty Gold, of New York, outpointed Bobby Green, New York, 10 rounds.

AT CANTON—John Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, knocked out Wild Bart Kenney, New York, in seventh round. Young Jeff, Canton, stopped Young McFadden, Pittsburgh, in third round.

Oxford-Cambridge Track Stars Will Run in U. S. Meets

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 17.—The joint track teams of Oxford and Cambridge universities will journey to this country and will appear in meets with Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Cornell.

The English athletes will meet the combined teams of Harvard and Yale at the Harvard stadium, and the following week they will meet Princeton and Cornell, probably in or near New York.

The exact dates of the meets have as yet not been determined, but it is believed the meet with Harvard and Yale will come early in July. The time depends on the dates of their final examinations, which have not yet been announced.

It is expected that the events to be contested will be the same as those at the last meet between Oxford and Cambridge and Harvard and Yale, held at Wembley in July, 1923.

These were twelve in number, as follows:

Flat races: 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards, one mile and two miles.

Hurdle races: 120 yards, high; 220 yards, low.

Field events: Shot, pole vault, broad jump, high jump.

First places only will count in the scoring, except in case of a tie, when second place and, if necessary, third places will be counted.

Lutherans to Meet Presbyterian Five In League Contest

The Lutherans and Chester Presbyterians will clash in a Sunday school league engagement this evening at 8:15 on the high school court.

The Lutherans easily defeated the Chester five earlier in the season but will have something more difficult to reckon with tonight, inasmuch as the Presbyterians have become stronger and will make a more determined bid for victory.

The two teams are tied with the Park Boulevards for third place in the circuit. Both are confident of winning.

The Lutheran Juniors and the M. E. Juniors will meet in the preliminary at 7:15.

Following the two Sunday school league contests, a third engagement will be put on by the Power class five of the M. E. church and the Trotter Chevrolets.

The Park Boulevards will tackle the M. E. five and the U. P. quint will meet the Presbyterians in contests carded for the M. E. court. These games were postponed from Monday night.

Hoppe Consistent And Goes Into Lead Over Bob Cannefax

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Having uncovered the best billiards either champion has shown since the start of the match in winning the third and fourth blocks, Willie Hoppe, balkline king, today made ready for the fifth block of his three cushion match with Champion Bob Cannefax entrenched behind a lead of 740 to 227. The sudden shift in honors from Cannefax to Hoppe created a small sensation in billiard ranks and the Friars' Club was prepared to play host to a capacity house for the fifth and sixth blocks this afternoon and tonight.

The match is to go six hundred points and, unofficially, will decide the championship of the world at the angle game.

Hoppe trailed by 120 to 100 when he entered the third block yesterday, but playing consistently and even brilliantly at times he won the third block, 65 to 60, and in the evening fairly buried Cannefax under a score of 75 to 47.

The balkline champion abandoned his conservative, safety first game of the first two blocks and went after every point without hesitancy. His best run was six. Cannefax had a seven but lacked Hoppe's consistency.

THIS WOMAN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Entirely Due To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Forest City, Iowa. — "My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when we had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound." —Mrs. OSCAR F. BORGELIN, Route No. 5, Forest City, Iowa.

HOW TO TAKE OFF THAT FAT

See what a difference a few pounds make

Let "SAN-GRI-NA" show you how you can easily and safely lose 5 to 6 POUNDS A WEEK.

It's Simply Wonderful !

Why do you look funny and much older than you really are? Why do you get over-heated, so red in the face and uncomfortable? Why is it your clothes never look right? Why do you puff and feel all in? Why are your slender friends getting all the attention, and you have to take a back seat? Because YOU ARE TOO FAT! To-day to be a success, a woman must be slender, attractive and full of pep. Competition is keen all over, but more so among women!

No matter how fat you are, nor how many things you have already tried to reduce, and how many times you have been disappointed, you cannot be worse off than I was. For years I was burdened with pounds and pounds of fat. I suffered with high blood pressure, dizziness, weak heart, puffing, and all the troubles fat people know only too well. I had tried everything sold to reduce, but did not succeed. Then one day in Paris a friend told me about SAN-GRI-NA—discovery of a well-known French physician. I was afraid to take anything to reduce, and just like you to-day, I hesitated. Finally I spoke of SAN-GRI-NA to my own family physician, and he advised me to try it. I did. In eight weeks I lost exactly 53 pounds. I never regained a pound. I am in the best of health and feel I must let all fat people know about SAN-GRI-NA, as it is the only thing which ever did me any good, and I know of hundreds of men and women in America to-day who could tell you the same thing. Many physicians now are prescribing SAN-GRI-NA not only to their patients, but to their own immediate family.

If you want to lose only a few pounds, you will be surprised how quickly SAN-GRI-NA will do it. If you need to lose 50 pounds or more, you may have to take it a little longer, but when SAN-GRI-NA is used as per directions, THERE IS NO CHANCE FOR FAILURE. Get one box of SAN-GRI-NA to-day from your druggist and make this test: Weigh yourself. Take two small tablets before your meals, and watch the scale go down! Almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA you will feel better and lighter—more pep, more ambition. Your clothes will be more comfortable. Your health will improve, and so will your looks. Do not hesitate. YOU HAVE BEEN FAT TOO LONG NOW. Get SAN-GRI-NA to-day. IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS. Sold with a money-back guarantee.

NOTICE—Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has been endorsed and is used by American Physicians, Nurses and Beauty Specialists. Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, has issued a statement recommending it to all fat people as a positive, quick and harmless way to reduce.

MARK TWAIN AND ABRAHAM LINCOLN WERE FEAR-RIDDEN, AUTHOR SAYS

Charles Milton Newcomb, of Chicago, Declares False Idea of God Frightened Them All Their Lives.

CHICAGO, Feb.—Abraham Lincoln and Mark Twain were obsessed by fear all their lives, according to Charles Milton Newcomb, author, lecturer and newspaper columnist, who, by the way, wasn't one bit scared when the addressed 300 members of the Chicago Executive club.

"They had to watch Abraham Lincoln when he was a child to keep him Efrom committing suicide," Newcomb said "Lincoln was afraid. He wasn't afraid of war or failure or sudden death. He was afraid of God.

"Mark Twain was also afraid of God. Both were afraid of an angry and avenging God.

"Twain absorbed this fear obsession at his mother's knee. Lincoln had it preached into him during his backwoods boyhood by a 'hell-fire' evangelist. Neither was ever free from its shadow as long as he lived.

Carnegie Unafraid.

"This fear showed in the fair lines in their faces. Andrew Carnegie, on the other hand, had been taught to believe in a loving and merciful God. There were no fear lines in his face. His was a happy face."

Fear, Newcomb explained, had a biological origin. We owe our lives to the fact that our ancestors were afraid, he said.

"There are two glands that respond to the emotion of fear," Newcomb continued, "the thyroid and adrenal. When danger threatened primitive man it lay with his discretion to do one of two things. He could fight or he could run. The emotion of fear organized him to do either efficiently."

"Men are afraid of five things," Newcomb said at another point in his talk. "They fear (1 mental or bodily harm; (2) they fear loss; (3) fear group displeasure; (4) fear failure and (5) soul fear."

Classifies Fear.

Explaining his classifications of fear, Newcomb said:

"We live in a machine age and the law of averages works. The machine gets us in about the proportion in which it is entitled to get us.

"Disease and insanity are, within limits, legitimate subjects of fear. The one lays waste and destroys the body the other the mind. But it is well to remember the horrible example of the man who worried all his life lest he die of hardening of the arteries and finally passed away from softening of the brain.

"The fear of loss includes loss of material possessions, or friends, or loved ones.

'Fear of group displeasure comes in for a little more discussion. What will the neighbors say?

Neighbor's View.

"Neighbors of three kinds, of course—the Jeremiahs, the fixers and the dirt washers. The Jeremiahs are perpetually discouraged. The fixers suffer from chronic dissatisfaction. They are the something-ought-to-be-done about-it people.' The dirt washers, of course, are the character destroyers. They keep all the commandments except the one that says: 'Thou shalt not bear false witness.'

"But after all, why worry about what the neighbors will say? They will say it anyway.

"Fear of failure is really fear of self. It is the fear type that keeps one in a rut, that forever keeps its victims from venturing, from achieving.

Soul fear is the fear that Lincoln and Twain had. It comes invariably from a false idea of God.

"The antidotes of fear are knowledge and faith. We live in a universe governed by law. If we know the law we are not afraid. Man stands in a circle of light. Faith is the thing that enables him to step out of this circle of light into the surrounding darkness."

Man Found Dead.

Missouri Woman Constable.

PROPOSED OHIO MINIMUM WAGE LAW IS SCORED

SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE CLAIMS PLAN WOULD BE 'PREJUDICIAL'

Recommending Rejection of Measure, Investigators, After Two Years' Study of Problem, Charge Legislation in States Where Acts are Enforced "Has Not Brought About Remedial Results Sought."

REPRESENTATIVE SAMUEL I. LIPP, CINCINNATI, REPORTS TO ASSEMBLY

So-called Mandatory Law is Unconstitutional, and Should Not be Enacted, While Massachusetts Pattern is Dependent Upon Public Opinion for Enforcement, are Conclusions of Members of House.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—Recommendations rejecting proposed minimum wage legislation for Ohio are made by a special legislative committee, which for two years has studied the problem, in a final report to be transmitted to the state legislature this afternoon by Representative Samuel I. Lipp, Cincinnati, chairman.

Minimum wage legislation in states where the acts are enforced "has not brought about remedial results sought," the report finds. Warning is given that such legislation along lines advocated by Ohio sponsors of this proposed legislation would be "prejudicial to industry."

The conclusions reached by the committee are:

"The so-called mandatory minimum wage legislation is unconstitutional, and, therefore, should not be enacted by the general assembly.

"The non-mandatory law, similar to that which is in operation in Massachusetts, is of little effect because its provisions can not be properly enforced, the only weapon of enforcement being public opinion."

Claim No Necessity For Law.

"The minimum wage legislation in other states has not brought about the remedial result which was sought, and has not been enforced in several of the states which enacted it.

"Such legislation would have a serious effect upon Ohio's industries and employees in competition with those of other states if a minimum wage were fixed at a point above the wages paid in other states.

"There is no necessity for enacting minimum wage legislation for the State of Ohio because women employees of this state are receiving wages equal to those paid in states where the law is in operation."

The report was signed by five of the six members of the committee, including Chairman Lipp, Mrs. Nettie B. Loughead, State Senator from Hamilton county, and former Senator Frank B. Burch, Akron, and Earl T. Ferguson, Van Wert, and by Mrs. Nettie M. Clapp, State Representative from Cuyahoga county. Former Rep. W. T. Roberts, Bellaire labor member, in a letter to Chairman Lipp, said illness prevented him from attending the hearings. He asked that a copy of the report be sent him so that, if he wished, he could file a minority report.

Study Three Plans

The committee began its labors February 6, 1924, and devoted most of its inquiry to a study of the minimum wage acts of Massachusetts, Wisconsin, and California.

The committee in its report, said it

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—"I'm through with speeding. I've learned my lesson," declared Hal Donahey, 18-year-old son of Governor Donahey, today.

Young Donahey ended a three-day sentence in city prison shortly before midnight. He had pleaded guilty to driving Adjutant General Henderson's auto about 40 miles an hour here last Friday. The governor's son slept late this morning at the governor's mansion. He planned to "rest up" today, it was stated, and expects to resume his class work at Capital university here Wednesday morning.

PAY DOG TAX, SHERIFF WARNS; DEPUTY NAMED

County Acts to Bolster Board of Education Fund.

INQUIRY BEGINS

But 1,445 Licenses Issued; 8,000 Dogs are Harbored.

As a result of a shortage of funds for the county board of education, steps were taken today to collect taxes on all dogs in Columbiana county.

The decision followed a conference Monday between County Auditor Charles E. Hamilton and the County Commissioners. Sheriff George Wright attended the meeting.

The balance remaining in the dog license fund after the payment of sheep claims goes to the county board of education.

Burbon on Job.

Because no deputy sheriff has been making house-to-house collections of dog licenses, dog owners have been unusually slow in applying for tags. The licenses cost $1 and $2.

Following the conference Sheriff Wright announced the appointment of Henry Burbon, of Salem, as a deputy sheriff. Burbon, who has been sworn in, will devote part of his time to collecting the dog license.

There will be no "branch" offices for the collection of dog taxes this year. Applications must be sent to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton. A few days' grace will be given for the payment of this tax which is now nearly eight weeks past due.

The county auditor's records show 1,445 dog licenses issued to date, and it is declared that between 7,000 and 8,000 dogs are harbored in the county. This license fee should have been paid January 1, last.

American Bride Claimed by Son of Bulgarian Diplomat

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Miss Marion Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mitchell of Birmingham, Ala., and New York, and Ivan Stancioff, son of the former Bulgarian ambassador to London, were married just before noon today at Brompton Oratory.

It was a "Gold lace wedding", preparations for which have interested social London for weeks.

The bride was resplendent in a seamless dress of rose point lace over white satin. She carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies as she entered with Mlle. Fedora Stancioff, sister of the bridegroom.

King Boris of Bulgaria sent a wedding gift. Madame Stansioff, the bridegroom's mother, gave the bride the well-prized old silver which was given her at her wedding by King Ferdinand.

Colvin escaped from jail in Lima by sawing the bars off his cell window February 5. He was captured in a farm house near Whitehouse by local officers.

Any Attempt to Commercialize Project Will Nullify it.

A bill providing for the purchase of approximately 500 acres of farm land in the vicinity of Guilford dam, Center township, as the site for a state park, was introduced in the house of representatives at Columbus yesterday by State Representative Ralph O. Emmons of East Rochester.

The measure instructs the director of public works to purchase the acreage and also provides for such repairs and improvements as are necessary to develop the land after it becomes the property of the state.

Any attempt to commercialize the state park project or attempts by owners to advance the prices of the land required for the resort will defer consideration of the bill and probably kill the measure so far as this session of the legislature is concerned.

Committee To Inspect Site.

Petitions urging the legislature to establish the state park have been in circulation in East Liverpool, Lisbon Salem and other parts of the county for several days. These petitions have been placed in Emmons' hands.

As soon as the site is acquired, the proposed state fish hatchery, covering the site of the old dam, will become a certainty.

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the project is that no state parks are located in the eastern section of Ohio.

It is likely that a committee from the state legislature will come to Columbiana county before the bill is reported to inspect the site. The project is being sponsored by The Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective Association.

Trades and Labor Council May O. K. Municipal Court

Attorneys F. E. Grosshans and W. F. Lones Will Explain Measure at Session Wednesday.

Trades and Labor council is expected to endorse a proposed municipal court for East Liverpool at a meeting in the Golding building, Washington street tomorrow night.

Responding to invitations, Attorneys Frank E. Grosshans and W. F. Lones will discuss the bill which State Representative R. W. Emmons, of East Rochester, has promised to introduce in the Ohio assembly.

Two years ago, the labor council approved the measure which was vetoed by Gov. A. V. Donahey.

Judging from expressions at last week's session of the trades body, when attacks made upon certain alleged practices in justice of the peace courts, the bill is favored.

The proposal would abolish justice of the peace courts in Liverpool township and relieve the mayor of police court duties.

In addition to a discussion of the municipal court measure, a motion picture, showing methods of operation in the Lenox China company's plant in Trenton, N. J., will be exhibited.

Another car, parked in front of the Gamble drug store, corner Fourth and Market streets, about 9 o'clock, was found at 2 o'clock this morning abandoned near the Buckeye garage, corner of Sixth and Walnut streets.

The police are searching for a one-ton Ford truck, belonging to Nathan Waldman, junk dealer, which disappeared from the alley back of the Smith Hardware store, Sunday night. The machine carried 1925 Ohio license No. T-112-389.

STATE SENATE MAY VOTE TO CONFIRM DUFFY

Industrial Commission Re-appointment Decision Likely Today.

Debate Promised on Bible Reading and Bus Bills.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—Two spirited contests are expected when the house this afternoon reaches final consideration of the Bible reading and the Collister city home rule bus bills. Crowded galleries are expected to listen to the debates.

Indications are that an attempt will be made to prevent a record vote on the Bible bill, which requires reading of at least ten verses of Scripture daily in the public school but without sectarian comment. Many members of the house are understood to desire to avoid being recorded on the measure. An attempt will be made to pigeon hole it, it was intimated.

The house also is expected to divide sharply on the Collister bill, which will give cities control of bus companies, operating for hire wholly within their limits. Operators of interurban buses have vigorously fought this additional regulation. A vigorous fight is expected against the measure which has already passed the senate. The Bible and bus bills are special orders for 2 o'clock.

Acting Coroner Recognizes Victim and Declares Him Dead.

By CARL W. HARRIS

SAND CAVE, Ky., Feb. 17.—All operations to recover the body of Floyd Collins from the Sand cave tomb in which he was trapped 18 days ago, were abandoned at 11:30 o'clock today, after four friends of Collins and a coroner's jury of experienced men had verified the declaration of H. T. Carmichael, general supervisor, that further efforts were futile and would result in further cost of human life.

Coroner's Jury Acts.

The last members of the coroner's jury came from the shaft at 11:25, and H. C. Tucker, acting coroner, announced that he had seen Collins, recognizing him, was certain that he was dead and was equally sure there is no way of removing the body without probably further loss of human life."

His two jurymen, T. J. Gorby and Claude Monroe, corroborated his statements.

M. E. E. Posey, state highway engineer, then entered the shaft for a final inspection and following his report the official announcement was made that operations were to be suspended definitely.

Work of dismantling the shaft was immediately started. The huge canvas covering, which has roofed the pit, was taken down and the workmen began preparations for hauling the heavy machinery up the steep rock runway to the cliff.

Only the formal verdict of the coroner's jury was wanting to place the official stamp of finis on Sand Cave's tragedy and this, it was expected, would be delivered within a few hours.

It seemed probable at noon that simple funeral services would be held over the shaft today, the shaft closed with rocks and earth and Collins left

ROTARY HEARS F. B. LAWRENCE

Cooperage Business is Discussed at Noon Luncheon.

The cooperage business and its relation to manufacturing business, particularly pottery, was the subject of a talk delivered by Fred B. Lawrence, Manager of the Lawrence Cooperage company and secretary of the North American Manufacturing company, at the noon meeting of the Rotary club in the Y. M. C. A. today.

Lawrence briefly traced the history of the barrel-making industry from medieval days until the present time. Skins of animals, he declared were the first containers ever used and because of this the medieval man or woman can be regarded as the first cooper. Later, vessels of clay came into use as containers, being used mainly in the manufacturing of wine.

History records wood being used for the first time in the manufacture of barrels by the Gauls in 238 A. D. The barrel made in the eleventh century, was much the same looking container as it is today, he declared. The speaker pointed out the many advantages which barrels, casks and kegs have over other recepticles and of their particular adaptability for the shipping of fragile articles, such as pottery and glassware.

President C. R. Boyce presided and introduced the speaker. In the absence of Attorney Blaine Cochran

PROPOSED OHIO MINIMUM WAGE LAW IS SCORED

SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE CLAIMS PLAN WOULD BE 'PREJUDICIAL'

Recommending Rejection of Measure, Investigators, After Two Years' Study of Problem, Charge Legislation in States Where Acts are Enforced "Has Not Brought About Remedial Results Sought."

REPRESENTATIVE SAMUEL I. LIPP, CINCINNATI, REPORTS TO ASSEMBLY

So-called Mandatory Law is Unconstitutional, and Should Not be Enacted, While Massachusetts Pattern is Dependent Upon Public Opinion for Enforcement, are Conclusions of Members of House.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—Recommendations rejecting proposed minimum wage legislation for Ohio are made by a special legislative committee, which for two years has studied the problem, in a final report to be transmitted to the state legislature this afternoon by Representative Samuel I. Lipp, Cincinnati, chairman.

Minimum wage legislation in states where the acts are enforced "has not brought about remedial results sought," the report finds. Warning is given that such legislation along lines advocated by Ohio sponsors of this proposed legislation would be "prejudicial to industry."

The conclusions reached by the committee are:

"The so-called mandatory minimum wage legislation is unconstitutional, and, therefore, should not be enacted by the general assembly.

"The non-mandatory law, similar to that which is in operation in Massachusetts, is of little effect because its provisions can not be properly enforced, the only weapon of enforcement being public opinion."

Claim No Necessity For Law.

"The minimum wage legislation in other states has not brought about the remedial result which was sought, and has not been enforced in several of the states which enacted it.

"Such legislation would have a serious effect upon Ohio's industries and employees in competition with those of other states if a minimum wage were fixed at a point above the wages paid in other states.

"There is no necessity for enacting minimum wage legislation for the State of Ohio because women employees of this state are receiving wages equal to those paid in states where the law is in operation."

The report was signed by five of the six members of the committee, including Chairman Lipp, Mrs. Nettie B. Loughead, State Senator from Hamilton county, and former Senator Frank B. Burch, Akron, and Earl T. Ferguson, Van Wert, and by Mrs. Nettie M. Clapp, State Representative from Cuyahoga county. Former Rep. W. T. Roberts, Bellaire labor member, in a letter to Chairman Lipp, said illness prevented him from attending the hearings. He asked that a copy of the report be sent him so that, if he wished, he could file a minority report.

Study Three Plans

The committee began its labors February 6, 1924, and devoted most of its inquiry to a study of the minimum wage acts of Massachusetts, Wisconsin, and California.

The committee in its report, said it

PAY DOG TAX, SHERIFF WARNS; DEPUTY NAMED

County Acts to Bolster Board of Education Fund.

INQUIRY BEGINS

But 1,445 Licenses Issued; 8,000 Dogs are Harbored.

As a result of a shortage of funds for the county board of education, steps were taken today to collect taxes on all dogs in Columbiana county.

The decision followed a conference Monday between County Auditor Charles E. Hamilton and the County Commissioners. Sheriff George Wright attended the meeting.

The balance remaining in the dog license fund after the payment of sheep claims goes to the county board of education.

Burbon on Job.

Because no deputy sheriff has been making house-to-house collections of dog licenses, dog owners have been unusually slow in applying for tags. The licenses cost $1 and $2.

Following the conference Sheriff Wright announced the appointment of Henry Burbon, of Salem, as a deputy sheriff. Burbon, who has been sworn in, will devote part of his time to collecting the dog license.

There will be no "branch" offices for the collection of dog taxes this year. Applications must be sent to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton. A few days' grace will be given for the payment of this tax which is now nearly eight weeks past due.

The county auditor's records show 1,445 dog licenses issued to date, and it is declared that between 7,000 and 8,000 dogs are harbored in the county. This license fee should have been paid January 1, last.

The bride was resplendent in a seamless dress of rose point lace over white satin. She carried a sheaf of Madonna illies as she entered with Mlle. Fedora Stancioff, sister of the bridegroom.

King Boris of Bulgaria sent a wedding gift. Madame Stansioff, the bridegroom's mother, gave the bride the well-prized old silver which was given her at her wedding by King Ferdinand.

PRIVATE PEAT TO SPEAK HERE

Canadian War Veteran on High School Lecture Program.

Harold R. Peat, better known as Private Peat, internationally known lecturer, will appear at the high school auditorium, Wednesday night in the fourth number of the High school lecture course. He will lecture on the subject, "The Inexcusable Lie," a stirring appeal for understanding, peace and harmony among nations.

Peat served with the Canadian forces during the World War. He has toured the world, lecturing in Australia, New Zealand and British West Indies and has visited South America, England, France, Germany and other European lands and is now beginnig his tour of the United States with the Redpath chautauqua.

Peat does not believe in warfare as a means of adjusting differences between nations, but points to more sane and feasible methods of settling trying consequences and insuring permanent peace. He has had interviews with and carries letters from ministers of education in such countries as England, Canada, Mexico, Spain and other European countries.

But one more number remains in the lecture course after the appearance of Private Peat. The Hipple Concert company, four talented instrumentalists, will visit here on Friday, March 20.

Abandon Search

alone for his eternal sleep at the edge of the beautiful cavern from which he had dreamed of deriving a fortune.

Possibilities of another attempt to recover Collins' body, perhaps by private individuals, were ended with a statement of Lee Collins, father, after the abandonment had been announced.

"I will never permit any second attempt to be made to get Floyd out," he said. "I am satisfied with the situation as it is."

SAND CAVE, Ky., Feb. 17—The threat of sudden death crept over Sand Cave again today as workmen at 9:45 fought against time and sagging rock in an effort to burrow through a new side drift to Floyd Collins' feet that his body might be brought from its narrow rock-bound coffin before another fall of earth and rock which might take its toll of human life definitely closed the lane to rescuers.

Workers Risk Lives.

The new side draft was started about half way between the end of the manhole and the shaft, from where the lateral tunnel takes off. It will take a circular course through laminated limestone ledge and, it is estimated, will require at least six hours drilling.

Until possible obstacles which may confront the new attempt are determined, other plans regarding Collin's body will be held temporarily in abeyance.

No amputation will be necessary to remove the body if the new side drift is successful.

The rocks which spelt death to Collins shroud him forever.

This became apparent early today when engineers consulted on whether the bringing of the body out of the cave might mean death to many living men. Work during the night on extricating Collins from his casement of rock proceeded among plumping stones and shifting mud. Workers cut closer to the head of the dead man, joining the narrow tunnel and the natural passageway at the end of which the explorers body lay.

Fail To Pull Body Out.

It became apparent early that it would be impossible to tunnel around Collins, to pry off the pinioning rock and then to bring him to the surface. It meant the endangering of lives and H. T. Carmichael, superintendent of operations, recommended that the Collins' family grant permission to amputate either one or both legs of the body to accelerate its freeing.

Lieut. Gen. H. H. Denhardt had announced that C. C. Howard, a local physician, would sever the limb. Dr. William Hazlett, who was sent from Chicago to perform the delicate operation while Collins was still living, went down into the shaft later, accompanied by Dr. E. D. Turner and Dr. Howard and the three agreed that it would be impossible to perform the operation because of the fact that rocks buried the body almost to the shoulders. Lieut. Ben Wells and Dr. Hazlett then undertook to pull the body out by attaching a harness to it. This failed.

Carmichael's Statement.

At 3 a. m. an official bulletin was issued to the effect that work would be discontinued until 9 a. m., giving all the engineers an opportunity to consult on this baffling problem. Carmichael then made a supplementary statement.

"I have been in the excavating business for 20 years and I have never learned to say that I was licked," he said, "but there may come some time in any man's life when he has to admit that he is licked. I am not ready to admit it yet, but to tunnel down to Collins' feet would be risking too many other lives. We will have to wait until morning and try to figure out some other way."

In the meantime Adjutant General James A. Kehoe had consulted with Governor William Jason Fields over long distance telephone on the question of holding an autopsy to determine whether or not Collins' body contained poison. Clate Turner, Cave City coroner, objected to the procedure, but the governor directed the adjutant to take any steps which would be necessary that this autopsy might be held without fail.

Act on Engineer's Advice

Shortly after 4 o'clock General Denhardt and his staff went into conference at Cave City with General Kehoe and again the adjutant called Governor Fields to explain the extremely precarious situation existing.

It was then decided that the findings of the engineers' conference would be awaited before taking any definite steps that would endanger the lives of living men.

"We will never risk lives for a dead body," he stated. "Men went into death because there existed a hope that a living man awaited them to the end. If the engineers can not solve the problem presented in the tunnel without danger to the workers, we will not attempt to bring Collins to the surface."

To Establish Corpus Delecti.

Three methods of establishing the corpus delecti remained aside from the actual presence of the body.

1—It was suggested by General Kehoe that fingerprints be taken of the man in the rock-wedge and compared with those of Floyd Collins now filed at Washington with his records as a soldier. This appears entirely feasible as Collins' right hand is doubled up on his chest and is accessible.

2—Friends of the family had suggested that they, who had known Floyd intimately through childhood, boyhood and manhood, go down and identify the body at the bottom of the shaft.

3—Dr. Hazlett and newspaper photographers suggested that the death mask method and close-up photographs might add to the mass of evidence presented at the inquest to establish the corpus delecti.

Court of Inquiry to Meet.

The court of inquiry will convene today to make the findings of Floyd Collins a matter of record. It is possible that this will close the routine court of inquiry and a finding be returned.

If the tunnel shall become Floyd Collins' grave, a few simple folk will gather about the shaft, listen to simple words of a man of their faith and the boy who has brought the world to Sand Cave shall rest unforgotten for a time. But if the fates are kinder then they have shown themselves to be to Floyd Collins, he will be laid by the hands of his father in the Cathedral of Crystal Cave, there to brood in silence with things he loved.

Somehow today's dawn was different. It lacked the flare of angry red. It lacked the confusion of man's emotions. Peace and rest had come with certainty and the hills and valleys lay serene.

Ducks were so plantiful in Ireland in the last season that they were sold for as low as four cents a pound.

U. S. Watches French Crisis as Fall Of Herriot Looms

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The serious condition facing the French government, which may cause the swift fall of the Herriot ministry, is being watched with closest attention in Washington, because of the bearing it inevitably must have on the war debt controversy.

While administration officials refrained from public comment today for obvious reasons, it is an open secret that there exists in Washington no very great sympathy for France over the plight in which she finds herself.

Government financial experts merely pointed out today that the present situation is the logical and predicted outcome of French policy during and since the war in balancing her budget by continuing loans instead of by domestic taxation, as Great Britain and the United States have done.

The company withdrew from the East Liverpool field about two weeks ago after Sheriff George Wright seized the machines used here on a suit of replevin brought by the Checker Taxicab company, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 17.—Albert E. Saratin of Columbus, O., formerly warden at the United States penitentiary here, took the witness stand in United States district court here today and denied he had solicited or accepted bribes while warden, as charged in indictments returned by a federal grand jury.

Sartin, L. J. Fletcher, formerly his chief deputy at the prison, and Lawrence Richl of Columbus, are also on trial.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The stock market today displayed considerable nervousness at the start, but fluctuations in opening prices were narrow and industrial leaders showed a tendency to rally.

Baldwin's annual statement showed a deficit of $1,479,974 after dividends on the common stock, but most of the selling had been completed before the report was issued. The situation in the stock was strengthened by the announcement that provisions had been made from surplus for the full 1925 dividends. Consequently the stock displayed more stability and sold one point higher in the first period.

The strength of the industrial leaders, including American Can, United States Steel and Cast Iron Pipe and of New York Central, Atchison and other leading railroad stocks had a stimulating effect on the market in this period. American Locomotive sold up two points at 119½ and U. S. Steel crossed 128.

As a group the oil stocks continued under liquidation and prices of many of the active stocks showed slight declines from the previous close.

Developments in the oil industry included a decline in crude oil production in Wortham pool to 53,000 barrels a day:

Reports of further advances in crude oil prices by the Prairie Oil and Gas company and rumors of the discovery of another promising oil field in Texas.

As a rult the independent steel shares followed the lead of U. S. Steel though gains were small. Motor stocks were irregular with the exception of Mack Truks which gained 2 points on short covering. General Motors was in supply and sold down to 74¼, the lowest price since the dividend was raised to six per cent. Chandler was strong.

The grain markets suffered another relapse, wheat declining 2 to 9 cents a bushel; rye 1 to 2½ cents; corn 1 to 1¼ in Chicago and Winnipeg; cotton opened steady and advanced about 12 points; French Francs made a slight gain and Paris markets were more settled; call money four per cent.

"Frame-up," Kearns' Attorneys Charge In $200,000 Suit

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 17—"Jack Kearns was framed."

This was in effect the charge made today by attorneys for Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, boxing king, in the suit for $200,000 brought against the pugilistic director by Mrs. Mary C. Tenney, also known as Francis Marion Emerson, film actress.

Charges of Mrs. Tenney that she was drugged and then attacked by Kearns in a Hollywood residence May 3, 1924, were branded as false by Kearns' attorneys who said they would prove the charges were an attempt to obtain money from the champion's manager.

"He told me he would make me a film star," Mrs. Tenney charged on the witness stand. "Then he ordered a drink, which I thought was water but after drinking it I became drowsy. Then Mr. Kearns attacked me and, sometime later in the night after he left I called the police."

Later she said Kearns telephoned her and offered to pay for her dress if it had been torn.

In a deposition by the champion's manager it was revealed that efforts will probably be made to show that Mrs. Tenney, if attacked, was the victim of a Filipino servant, employed in the home of Lor Wertheimer, New York Stock Broker.

MITCHELL HITS BACK AT FOES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Hitting back at his foes and critics, Brig. General William Mitchell, assistant chief of Army air service, appeared again before the house aircraft investigating committee and declared that a group of enemy airplane could "wipe out New York in a day".

Mitchell gave his opinion to one committee almost at the same time that Theodore Roosevelt, ex-assistant secretary of the Navy, was telling another committee that aircraft was a supplimentary arm of national defense, and should be kept that way.

Mitchell vigorously denied that his advocacy of a unified air service was inspired by hope of personal reward or advancement.

"Do you hope for personal reward", bluntly asked Representative McKenzie, Republican of Illinois, chairman.

"No", snapped Mitchell. "I only want to have America realize the vital importance of airplanes as a unit of offense and defense".

alone for his eternal sleep at the edge of the beautiful cavern from which he had dreamed of deriving a fortune.

Possibilities of another attempt to recover Collins' body, perhaps by private individuals, were ended with a statement of Lee Collins, father, after the abandonment had been announced.

"I will never permit any second attempt to be made to get Floyd out," he said. "I am satisfied with the situation as it is."

SAND CAVE, Ky., Feb. 17—The threat of sudden death crept over Sand Cave again today as workmen at 9:45 fought against time and sagging rock in an effort to burrow through a new side drift to Floyd Collins' feet that his body might be brought from its narrow rock-bound coffin before another fall of earth and rock which might take its toll of human life definitely closed the lane to rescuers.

Workers Risk Lives.

The new side draft was started about half way between the end of the manhole and the shaft, from where the lateral tunnel takes off. It will take a circular course through laminated limestone ledge and, it is estimated, will require at least six hours drilling.

Until possible obstacles which may confront the new attempt are determined, other plans regarding Collin's body will be held temporarily in abeyance.

No amputation will be necessary to remove the body if the new side drift is successful.

The rocks which spelt death to Collins shroud him forever.

This became apparent early today when engineers consulted on whether the bringing of the body out of the cave might mean death to many living men. Work during the night on extricating Collins from his casement of rock proceeded among plumping stones and shifting mud. Workers cut closer to the head of the dead man, joining the narrow tunnel and the natural passageway at the end of which the explorers body lay.

Fail To Pull Body Out.

It became apparent early that it would be impossible to tunnel around Collins, to pry off the pinioning rock and then to bring him to the surface. It meant the endangering of lives and H. T. Carmichael, superintendent of operations, recommended that the Collins' family grant permission to amputate either one or both legs of the body to accelerate its freeing.

Lieut. Gen. H. H. Denhardt had announced that C. C. Howard, a local physician, would sever the limb. Dr. William Hazlett, who was sent from Chicago to perform the delicate operation while Collins was still living, went down into the shaft later, accompanied by Dr. E. D. Turner and Dr. Howard and the three agreed that it would be impossible to perform the operation because of the fact that rocks buried the body almost to the shoulders. Lieut. Ben Wells and Dr. Hazlett then undertook to pull the body out by attaching a harness to it. This failed.

Carmichael's Statement.

At 3 a. m. an official bulletin was issued to the effect that work would be discontinued until 9 a. m., giving all the engineers an opportunity to consult on this baffling problem. Carmichael then made a supplementary statement.

"I have been in the excavating business for 20 years and I have never learned to say that I was licked," he said, "but there may come some time in any man's life when he has to admit that he is licked. I am not ready to admit it yet, out to tunnel down to Collins' feet would be risking too many other lives. We will have to wait until morning and try to figure out some other way."

In the meantime Adjutant General James A. Kehoe had consulted with Governor William Jason Fields over long distance telephone on the question of holding an autopsy to determine whether or not Collins' body contained poison. Clato Turner, Cave City coroner, objected to the procedure, but the governor directed the adjutant to take any steps which would be necessary that this autopsy might be held without fail.

Act on Engineer's Advice

Shortly after 4 o'clock General Denhardt and his staff went into conference at Cave City with General Kehoe and again the adjutant called Governor Fields to explain the extremely precarious situation existing.

It was then decided that the findings of the engineers' conference would be awaited before taking any definite steps that would endanger the lives of living men.

"We will never risk lives for a dead body," he stated. "Men went into death because there existed a hope that a living man awaited them to the end. If the engineers can not solve the problem presented in the tunnel without danger to the workers, we will not attempt to bring Collins to the surface."

To Establish Corpus Delecti.

Three methods of establishing the corpus delecti remained aside from the actual presence of the body.

1—It was suggested by General Kehoe that fingerprints be taken of the man in the rock wedge and compared with those of Floyd Collins now filed at Washington with his records as a soldier. This appears entirely feasible as Collins' right hand is doubled up on his chest and is accessible.

2—Friends of the family had suggested that they, who had known Floyd intimately through childhood, boyhood and manhood, go down and identify the body at the bottom of the shaft.

3—Dr. Hazlett and newspaper photographers suggested that the death mask method and close-up photographs might add to the mass of evidence presented at the inquest to establish the corpus delecti.

Court of Inquiry to Meet.

The court of inquiry will convene today to make the findings of Floyd Collins a matter of record. It is possible that this will close the routine court of inquiry and a finding be returned.

If the tunnel shall become Floyd Collins' grave, a few simple folk will gather about the shaft, listen to simple words of a man of their faith and the boy who has brought the world to Sand Cave shall rest unforgotten for a time. But if the fates are kinder then they have shown themselves to be to Floyd Collins, he will be laid by the hands of his father in the Cathedral of Crystal Cave, there to brood in silence with things he loved.

Somehow today's dawn was different. It lacked the flare of angry red. It lacked the confusion of man's emotions. Peace and rest had come with certainty and the hills and valleys lay serene.

Ducks were so plantiful in Ireland in the last season that they were sold for as low as four cents a pound.

U. S. Watches French Crisis as Fall Of Herriot Looms

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The serious condition facing the French government, which may cause the swift fall of the Herriot ministry, is being watched with closest attention in Washington, because of the bearing it inevitably must have on the war debt controversy.

While administration officials refrained from public comment today for obvious reasons, it is an open secret that there exists in Washington no very great sympathy for France over the plight in which she finds herself.

Government financial experts merely pointed out today that the present situation is the logical and predicted outcome of French policy during and since the war in balancing her budget by continuing loans instead of by domestic taxation, as Great Britain and the United States have done.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—The stock market today displayed considerable nervousness at the start, but fluctuations in opening prices were narrow and industrial leaders showed a tendency to rally.

Baldwin's annual statement showed a deficit of $1,479,974 after dividends on the common stock, but most of the selling had been completed before the report was issued. The situation in the stock was strengthened by the announcement that provision had been made from surplus for the full 1925 dividends. Consequently the stock displayed more stability and sold one point higher in the first period.

The strength of the industrial leaders, including American Can, United States Steel and Cast Iron Pipe and of New York Central, Atchison and other leading railroad stocks had a stimulating effect on the market in this period. American Locomotive sold up two points at 119½ and U. S. Steel crossed 128.

As a group the oil stocks continued under liquidation and prices of many of the active stocks showed slight declines from the previous close.

Developments in the oil industry included a decline in crude oil production in Wortham pool to 53,000 barrels a day;

Reports of further advances in crude oil prices by the Prairie Oil and Gas company and rumors of the discovery of another promising oil field in Texas.

As a rult the independent steel shares followed the lead of U. S. Steel though gains were small. Motor stocks were irregular with the exception of Mack Truks which gained 2 points on short covering. General Motors was in supply and sold down to 74½, the lowest price since the dividend was raised to six per cent. Chandler was strong.

The grain markets suffered another relapse, wheat declining 2 to 9 cents a bushel; rye 1 to 2½ cents; corn 1 to 1¼ in Chicago and Winnipeg; cotton opened steady and advanced about 12 points; French Francs made a slight gain and Paris markets were more settled; call money four per cent.

"Frame-up," Kearns' Attorneys Charge In $200,000 Suit

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 17—"Jack Kearns was framed."

This was in effect the charge made today by attorneys for Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, boxing king, in the suit for $200,000 brought against the pugilistic director by Mrs. Mary C. Tenney, also known as Francis Marion Emerson, film actress.

Charges of Mrs. Tenney that she was drugged and then attacked by Kearns in a Hollywood residence May 3, 1924, were branded as false by Kearns' attorneys who said they would prove the charges were an attempt to obtain money from the champion's manager.

"He told me he would make me a film star," Mrs. Tenney charged on the witness stand. "Then he ordered a drink, which I thought was water but after drinking it I became drowsy. Then Mr. Kearns attacked me and sometime later in the night after he left I called the police."

Later she said Kearns telephoned her and offered to pay for her dress if it had been torn.

In a deposition by the champion's manager it was revealed that efforts will probably be made to show that Mrs. Tenney, if attacked, was the victim of a Filipino servant, employed in the home of Lor Wertheimer, New York Stock Broker.

MITCHELL HITS BACK AT FOES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Hitting back at his foes and critics, Brig. General William Mitchell, assistant chief of Army air service, appeared again before the house aircraft investigating committee and declared that a group of enemy airplane could "wipe out New York in a day".

Mitchell gave his opinion to one committee almost at the same time that Theodore Roosevelt, ex-assistant secretary of the Navy, was telling another committee that aircraft was a supplimentary arm of national defense, and should be kept that way.

Mitchell vigorously denied that his advocacy of a unified air service was inspired by hope of personal reward or advancement.

"Do you hope for personal reward", bluntly asked Representative McKenzie, Republican of Illinois, chairman.

"No", snapped Mitchell. "I only want to have America realize the vital importance of airplanes as a unit of offense and defense".

FRAMES ANSWER TO MANDAMUS

Solicitor to Make Next Move in Stone Damage Case Saturday.

The next move in the Jesse W. Stone mandamus action against the city of Wellsville is scheduled for common pleas court on Saturday when City Solicitor George D. Ingram will file his answer.

As a result of injuries he alleged he sustained over two years ago in a fall in Third street, Stone sued the city.

In common pleas court at Lisbon Stone obtained a judgement of $1,500.

The judgement has never been paid, it is claimed. Recently, counsel for Stone filed a mandamus against City Auditor Fred Eckfeld asking that he be compelled to certify to council the necessity of meeting the judgment rendered in the case.

City Solicitor Ingram appeared yesterday before Judge James M. Moore and was allowed until Saturday to file answer. Solicitor Ingram is asking that the judgement be set aside on the ground of fraud.

Similar action, it is expected, will be taken in the Friedman case, in which $3,000 damages are sought.

Why A Woman's Age Shows In Her Hands

A noted beauty specialist recently said that she could invariably judge a woman's age by her hands. Worry and hard work often shows in the hands when it does not show in the face, and as a rule women give more attention to their face than to their hands. The hands however, should not be neglected because pretty, soft, white hands are really the true marks of refinement, and they should be cared for. Any woman can have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands, regardless of the work she has to do, if she will simply spend a minute or two just before retiring, rubbing a little plain Ice-mint on them. In the morning she will be greatly surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does, she should have pretty hands. As the hands, if neglected are bound to show the hard work nad worry of our lives. A few applications of Ice-mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

Policeman Must Pay Sailor For Unlawful Arrest as Vagrant

NORFOLK, Va., Feb.—A jury in City Circuit court here decided that Police Lieutenant W. S. White will have to pay Otto Foerster, a bluejecket stationed at Hapton Roads Naval Base, $35 for alleged unlawful arrest as a vagrant.

Foerster charged, in a suit for $1,500 damages, that the officer arrested him and detained him for two hours, and "greatly exposed and injured his credit and circumstances and caused him great pain." And it was not until he produced papers to show he was a United States sailor that Foerster was acuitted in police court.

Winnetka, Ill., Generously Supplies Funds to Meet Expense.

WINNETKA, Ill., Feb. — To her other laurels of having, as attested by a recent university professorial survey, the best-managed town of its size in the United States, as well as a school system that excels in methods and achievements most of the larger cities, Winnetka, a north-shore lake suburb, 16 miles from Chicago, has added a third wreath of commendation. It is a correspondence school for the blind. Its pupils include residents of all sections of this continent and of far-off India and China. Twenty-four separate courses are taught. The pupils choose their own courses, with the aid and suggestion of the school. They include grade school, high school and college work.

The institution is called the Hadley Correspondence School for the Blind. It takes its name from its founder and head, William A. Hadley, an eminent educator, of Chicago, who was suddenly stricken with blindness in 1915.

Was Stunned.

Professor Hadley was stunned. For five years he sat in darkness and in thought. After the first years of slightlessness began to be somewhat assuaged in the readjustment of his life and his affairs, and in the growing belief that his loss might be made a gain to others because of his former studies and experiences as an instructor, he decided to try an experiment. It was the starting of his correspondence school for the blind. The seed was planted when an old friend asked one time if it would not be possible to teach the Braille system by mail.

Publishers of the Matilda Ziegler Magazine, a publication for the blind, were interested in the project. A three-line paragraph in that periodical announced that Professor Hadley would be glad to correspond with anyone interested in receiving instruction, without any cost.

The response was an avalanche of replies. Dr. Hadley's friends in Winnetka were appealed to on the plea that in such a cause all who asked for is should be given the instruction. Winnetkans generously supplied the necessary funds.

For the first year there was necessary some little haphazardness in the financing of the school. Since then, however, the school has been put on a firm organization structure, with some of Chicago's most eminent men, residents of Winnetka, serving as advisory officials. But the roster of pupils grows faster than resources. Steps are now being taken to remedy this. In this connection there is some discussion as to whether Chicago University will take over the school as a branch of that great institution.

There is a world of human interest in the personal letters exchanged between pupils and the school, which is located on the second floor of a small building at No. 584 Lincoln avenue, Winnetka. One of the first blind students to take a course in short story writing expressed her gratitude by writing:

"When the light went out of Professor Hadley's eyes, the windows of Heaven were opened for the rest of us!"

And Professor Hadley himself recently expressed the thought behind his work when he remarked to the writer:

"If I had to choose between having my sight back or my work, I would choose my work."

FRAMES ANSWER TO MANDAMUS

Solicitor to Make Next Move in Stone Damage Case Saturday.

The next move in the Jesse W. Stone mandamus action against the city of Wellsville is scheduled for common pleas court on Saturday when City Solicitor George D. Ingram will file his answer.

As a result of injuries he alleged he sustained over two years ago in a fall in Third street, Stone sued the city.

In common pleas court at Lisbon Stone obtained a judgement of $1,500.

The judgement has never been paid, it is claimed. Recently, counsel for Stone filed a mandamus against City Auditor Fred Eckfeld asking that he be compelled to certify to council the necessity of meeting the judgment rendered in the case.

City Solicitor Ingram appeared yesterday before Judge James M. Moore and was allowed until Saturday to file answer. Solicitor Ingram is asking that the judgement be set aside on the ground of fraud.

Similar action, it is expected, will be taken in the Friedman case, in which $3,000 damages are sought.

Why A Woman's Age Shows In Her Hands

A noted beauty specialist recently said that she could invariably judge a woman's age by her hands. Worry and hard work often shows in the hands when it does not show in the face, and as a rule women give more attention to their face than to their hands. The hands however, should not be neglected because pretty, soft, white hands are really the true marks of refinement, and they should be cared for. Any woman can have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands, regardless of the work she has to do, if she will simply spend a minute or two just before retiring, rubbing a little plain Ice-mint on them. In the morning she will be greatly surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does, she should have pretty hands. As the hands, if neglected are bound to show the hard work nad worry of our lives. A few applications of Ice-mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

Music Flourishing

"Music," says an observer of public amusements, "can hardly be said to be a neglected art in the United States."

Verily not, if the figures he quotes are correct. The nation's music bill is said to be $600,000,000 a year, not counting the cost of radio sets, which are really the leading musical instruments today.

Also consider this fact: There are 13,000 music clubs in the country. Twenty-five years ago there were only 38, and musical writers were despairing of the musical soul of America.

And East Liverpool, with the Civic Music association, the Male chorus, Ohio Valley Choral society and several clubs, shows her keen interest.

Artistically, America is certainly coming along. There is great progress in literature, and much fine activity in painting and architecture. Sculpture lags, but even that shows some promise.

Starving Mosquitoes

At the recent twelth annual convention of the New Jersey Mosquito Extermination association at Atlantic City, a new method of ridding any community of this pest was set forth by a bio-chemist.

This is to starve the mosquito larvae to death by putting certain chemicals in the ponds and tiny creeks where the infant anopheles spend their babyhood.

The mosquito larvae feeds on bacteria and other minute forms of animal life in the water, all of which can be killed by these chemicals without in any way affecting the visible vegetation or fish.

In the past the method was to kill the eggs or larvae outright by pouring kerosene into the water. But this was hard on harmless fish or plant life there.

It sounds a little complicated to the layman, who wonders at the chemist's cleverness in determining exactly how much of the chemical substance must be used to destroy only the mosquito's food without injuring anything else in the water. But if this works successfully in New Jersey, as it is said to do, it should promptly be introduced at several summer resorts we know of.

New Health Records

As a health year, 1924 is expected to rank high. Statistics disclosed by a life insurance company indicate that the general death rate for the past year will be the lowest in its history. Specific facts are as follows:

A new minimum death rate for tuberculosis and typhoid fever has been established; the diphtheria rate is lower than ever before; deaths from measles are fewer than in 1923; mortality from influenza is less than half that of 1923; diabetes deaths have declined 11.4 per cent; and mortality from causes incidental to maternity has reached a new low level.

Even violent deaths among the 15,000,000 policy holders of the company have decreased. These include suicides, homicides and accidents.

It is a distinctly encouraging report, not simply because of the lower death rates for these and other causes, but because it proves that health education and public health work are effective.

Child Labor in Argentina

A national child labor law was enacted in Argentina last September. It makes 14 the minimum age for industrial and commercial employment all over the country. It restricts the gainful employment of children under 18 to six hours a day, six days a week, and prohibits night work in certain dangerous occupations for boys under 18 and for girls and women of all ages.

This law is said by the children's bureau at Washington to set a higher standard than exists in any state in our union.

Evidently Anglo-Saxon civilization in this hemisphere will have to hump itself to keep up with Latin civilization in the matter of safeguarding its young people.

That world flight of American aviators cost Uncle Sam $177,000, and was cheap at the price, when you consider that Sir Thomas Lipton usually spends more than that to be beaten in a yacht race.

Haskin Letter

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The world is said to be in such a hopeless state of strife and distrust that it appears almost impossible that any lasting understanding and feeling of good will can exist among the grownups of the nations. Therefore many advocates of world peace are pinning their hopes upon the youth of the universe.

The Junior Red Cross is working toward this goal. There are at the present time 35 or 40 countries in the world which have Junior Red C. s organizations. The object of all of these is two-fold: First, to teach service; and, second, to promote understanding and friendship among the various nations. Most of the organizations publish a monthly magazine which is subscribed to by the members. Many of these magazines contain not only stories of the activities of the Junior Red Cross in the countries in which they are published, but of others.

The American Junior Red Cross had its origin after the United States entered the world war. It was decided by educational leaders that the children of the nation could participate profitably in the work of making surgical dressings, socks, sweaters and similar articles for the comfort and care of our soldiers. It would make them feel that they had an active part in the solution of national problems, and would create a greater interest in current events. More than 12,000,000 children enrolled and they sent money and materials amounting to more than $10,000,000 for the use of our soldiers and for the relief of suffering children in foreign countries.

After the war a National Children's fund was established for the purpose of rebuilding the schools in the devastated areas. In Belgium and France part of this money was also used to furnish hot lunches for the school children.

EXCHANGING PORTFOLIOS

The peace-time activities of the Junior Red Cross are even more interesting and equally important, particularly the exchange of portfolios between the school children of the world. This not only establishes a personal interest among the children, but it brings to their minds a clearer vision of the countries of the world, their customs and their history. In this way it aids in the study of geography and history.

These portfolios are intensely interesting. They are made under the supervision of the teacher and are sent from school to school, instead from one individual pupil to another. They contain letters, which may tell about the city, the games played, or other activities; photographs or pictures clipped from newspapers or magazines; samples of school work and sometimes even simple little girls. A portfolio received from a school in Austria contained several unusual and vivid cover designs. Another from Belgium included a colorful sketch of a church in the city in which this school was located. Red Cross authorities say that the art work of some of the pupils in these European schools is remarkable.

The distribution of these portfolios is made in the following fashion: After the school has prepared the portfolio it is sent to the American Red Cross headquarters in Washington, D. C., and thence to the League of Red Cross societies in Paris. There the contents are translated into the native language of the country or province to which the portfolio is to be sent.

The following excerpt of a letter written by an American junior to a European illustrates how this correspondence may be co-ordinated with the work of the classroom:

"We have read with particular interest what you wrote about the form of your government. Naturally, we have read all this in our history lessons, but it is so much more interesting to read those things in a personal letter than in a book composed a long time ago."

Some children in Holland wrote to children in Washington: "How strange that you in America should think that we all wear wooden shoes. Why only the people of certain of our provinces do."

In reply the Washington children wrote: "But we always see the children of Holland pictured as wearing wooden shoes. But after all, mistaken ideas are common to both of us, for you seem to think that Indians and cowboys are ever in our midst, and we have never seen any of them excepting at the circus."

A LETTER FROM POLAND

A school in Zolkiew, Poland, writes to one in North Dakota: "We read the description of your town with great interest. Our town, like yours, has over 10,000 inhabitants, is situated beautifully and possesses many historical places. Our houses are not tall; so many storied houses prevent us from seeing the sun. Automobiles are not often seen in the streets, nor the aeroplanes in the air. We don't feel the feverish hurry, or the whirl of the great city's life; it flows here quietly, undisturbed.

"Our favorite game is football. We have also some literary evening parties, some theatrical plays which give rest to our minds."

Certainly such a letter as the last would impress more forcibly the town of Zolkiew upon a child's mind than would a black dot on a map.

In addition to preparing portfolios for exchange, the Junior Red Cross has many other activities. Each school which is enrolled has its own fund which it uses locally. There is no membership fee and contributions are voluntary. The only object which the Junior Red Cross as a national organization presents to the schools for their voluntary support is the National Children's fund for foreign service projects. Since the foreign program is a rapidly diminishing one, the collections and expenditures are decreasingly yearly.

Some of the local uses to which the school fund may be put are flowers for a sick member, baskets for the poor and milk for undernourished children. The organization in Porto Rico, reported such activities as glasses for several children with defective eyes; scholarships to schools and colleges in the United States, and in one instance a student was loaned $500 with which to pursue his study of medicine. The stipulation was made that he should repay this when he began practicing.

In some of the manual training schools pupils are making bed-side tables for the sick in hospitals. This not only stirs in them a sense of rendering service, but creates more interest in their manual training course than they would probably have if they were simply making models which would be of no use to anyone.

During the past year the Indian Reservation schools have enrolled with the Junior Red Cross and the instructors are pleased and enthusiastic over the result. It has given a new impetus to the beadwork and basketry. It had been noted that in many instances the Indian children seemed ashamed of this work, and were endeavoring to copy designs which they found on magazines. Upon receiving many requests from their white correspondents asking for information regarding their legends and customs, and samples of their basketry and pottery, they again became interested in their inherited art. The head of one school says that they now have two of the best potters of the tribe teaching and many fine specimens have been evolved.

The European director of the Junior Red Cross says, "If we can link together the children of all nations in world-wide bonds of understanding and friendship, there will have been achieved an unrivaled power for the future welfare of nations, and for the guaranteeing of international justice and peace."

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By WILLIAM R. CURRY.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Whether you are a blond or a brunette doesn't matter. It has nothing to do with personality. It is merely a pigmentary accident. Out of 300,000 blonds that have been psycho-analyzed about half of them had the "come hither;" the other half didn't. The same was true of 250,000 brunettes.

These are random sentences taken from the lecture of Pauline Dunston Belden, personality architect, delivered here recently before members of the Women's Athletic club. Miss Belden's subject was "Building a Personality."

"Line, color and clothes and manner may be necessary to personality," Miss Belden said, "but they are not of the essence of it. They are important, but they are expressive of personality rather than creative of it.

"That elusive, intangible, much desired thing about us that makes people love us, or hate us, or simply not know we are around, and which we call personality and interpret as charm, or the lack of it, is something quite other," Miss Belden continued.

"It cannot be put on from the outside. It is an emanation. It is the 'song the inner spirit sings,' and the body is its instrument.

"The personality that charms, that wins, that goes out and gets and comes home with the goods, spiritually speaking, is outgoing, not ingrowing. It is colorful, not gray. It doesn't just give you its fingertips to shake. It gives you its whole hand, and it holds on an instant for good measure. It doesn't make its bow and hand its 'how-do-you-do' off the edge of its lips. It looks at you, and its greeting comes from a locality much nearer the heart.

"It doesn't look at the mezzanine when it enters a building, but directs its gaze somewhere on the main floor. You don't hustle the family skeleton into the closet when it rings the doorbell, nor lock up the records when it enters your business office, because its curiosity is noble and intellectual, rather than animal and instinctive. It is curious about ideas and not about the weaknesses or the possessions of its fellow beings.

"There is no definition for personality; but the woman who is interested in people—not in dogs—is on the way to possessing it. If she 'sells' her husband a good cup of coffee, a downy couch, a comfortable and 'slippered' corner of the living room—if she doesn't neglect her home and just takes it out in loving the whole world, she's camping on the trail"—Miss Belden is from the west—"of personality, if she does not actually possess it."

There are three types of personality, according to Miss Belden. These she defined as "the mental, the emotional and the vital."

"Each may be attractive," she continued, "but each is incomplete unless it is balanced by the other two.

"Does your husband pound the table?" Miss Belden asked. "That means he has a temper, but it doesn't necessarily mean that he is a bad husband.

"On the contrary, provided he has developed control, he's the making of a very good husband. He has a big heart, and of all people in the world he's the least vindictive and, very likely, the most sympathetic. He's the kind of husband, too, that brings home the beautiful things that make the home-nest soft and downy and attractive."

Life as the wife of a strong and strenuous chiropractor is all right when one does not talk and live shop, but when the practice is carried into the home it is time to call a halt.

The above is the tenor of a divorce suit on file here in behalf of Mrs. Blanche Alberta Dennis, wife of Dr. Cyril Clark Dennis, of Port Huron, Mich. Cruelty is charged.

Among other incidents of alleged cruelty set out in the petition is that the chiropractor husband "twisted my arm, massaged my face with his fists and clasped his hands about my neck and held me tight. I call that choking."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Motoring in New York is like a football game. You make a few yards and come to a full stop. Then you wait again for the signals and buck the line again. Traffic increases at the rate of 20 per cent a year.

During the rush hours it requires five minutes to travel a short block. Either New York must return to the old-fashioned habit of walking or the main streets will become clogged and inert. Solving the traffic problem is one of the most serious problems the metropolic faces.

The idea of going out for a spin in a pleasure car is what the chorus girls call "ridic." It cannot be done. The skip stop and one way street plans have done very little to help. The city loses $1,250,000 daily by traffic congestion in shipping delays and the burning of gasoline.

Just now there seems to be only one worthwhile plan. This is to triple deck the streets—a lower and higher level from the surface. This will cost millions but not a million aday, as it does now. All hotels display warnings for patrons to walk to the stations.

Otherwise, they warn, one is more than likely to miss the train. Empty taxicabs are immediately ordered from Fifth avenue. Only three buses are permitted at the same time in a block and the street has the most highly perfected traffic system in the world. Yet it is always clogged.

Columbus circle, the biggest local point of traffic, cannot stop congestion with 20 policemen on duty from 8 in the morning until midnight. The entire situation results in New York being unfit for either pedestrians or motorists. (Voice: "Why don't you get out of it?")

Fire wagons have to go at a snail-like pace through mid-town despite their bell clanging and sirening. Police are unable to get the traffic out of the way for them and this entails the danger of a heavy loss of life and property.

Patterson McNutt is William McSlaven McNutt's "kid" brother. McNutt has won great prominence as a writer. Now his "kid" brother comes along and writes a Broadway play that is a wow and is also a frequent contributor to the magazines. The crowning insult happened one day last week when a lady was introduced to the elder McNutt.

"O!" she said, "I wonder if you are a relative of Patterson McNutt?"

"Just his sappy brother," replied Bill.

There is a pleasant spot above Riverside Drive called Inspiration Point. At the peak there is a beautiful view of the Hudson and purpling Palisades. It is an inspirational point for lovers and many young men inspired by the breath-taking beauty of it all pop the question. COOLIDGE HORSE

President Coolidge, to get exercise necessary for work, rides an electric horse. It is an imitation, and remains in one place, but gives you the walking, trotting, galloping exercise of a live horse.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as becomes a man, at least twice as rich as the president, rides an electris horse and also an electric camel. The latter, a true ship of the desert, shambles, rocks and lurches, exercising the liver and spleen as well as any osteopath can do. And you don't have to go to the desert of Sahara. You can ride your camel between directors' meetings.

Samuel Johnson, on his trip to the Hebrides, wrote Mrs. Thrale that a ship has all the disadvantages of a prison, with the additional disadvantage of being unsafe. An electrical camel has the same advantages of a real camel, with the additional advantage of being safe.

ROCKEFELLER CAMEL

On the west bank of the Hudson, near the Catskills, only two generations ago, Mr. Rockefeller's great-uncle would go out trading horses, usually starting with two second-class horses, and coming back with two first ones.

Little did he dream that his great-nephew would live to ride an electric camel and be the richest man in the world.

What will the Rockefellers be doing two generations from now? Not all the power of money can control that.

DON'T SELL FRANCS

France is alarmed about another serious drop in the value of the franc. French financiers have sold, according to a dispatch from Edwin L. James, of the New York Times, 14,000,000,000 francs in foreign countries. If accurate, this means that Frenchmen are exchanging French money for foreign money.

But no matter what French and foreign financiers may do, the wise man will remember that 999 out of 1,000 Frenchmen have absolute faith in their country. The French people are thrifty and enormously rich. Gambling in the franc to diminish its value is not only a hostile act to a friendly nation, but also a very dangerous game.

NEXT SUMMER'S WAR GAME

A "war game" this summer will test Hawaii's defenses. The United States Atlantic and Pacific fleets combined will try to take the Hawaiian islands. Theorists will decide which side won.

The main idea is to test the Hawaiian islands' protection for the Panama canal in case of war starting from Asia.

If war should come from Asia, the Hawaiian islands would be no more important than Timbuctoo, so far as defending the United States is concerned.

Attack from Asia would come through the air, far above Hawaii and the Hawaiians wouldn't know anything about it.

The government might better make experiments as regards the defense of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, New York, Chicago and other cities, all open to airplane attack.

The general staff says the Hawaiian islands could not be captured if well supplied with fighting airplanes. That shows at least a gleam of intelligence. But the main supply of airplanes is needed on the American continent, on both sides and in the middle, not merely off in Hawaii.

If this country had not been painfully foolish at the Washington conference we should have our great protective battleships for airplanes at Guam, maintaining there at all times an airplane force sufficient to serve as a permanent warning to all A

This continent ought to be able to point to Guam as the leading airplane base of the world and say "strike at the United States, and from this point we shall destroy you."

Instead we became sloppily sentimental, shed silly tears down the backs of the British, the Japanese and everybody else, lent them our money, agreed to protect them permanently in their Pacific island possessions. We crowned our display of idiocy by agreeing not to fortify Guam, which should have been our most valuable possession in the way of defense, and is now utterly wasted.

The eastern states soon will witness the birth of a gigantic power concern, harnessing up various power sources and supplying many states. In the beginning the great enterprise, which promises "a smokeless age and smokeless cities" will probably be divided into two huge concerns that will fight each other for supremacy.

Rates, of course, will be agreed upon, as high as the public will stand.

It may seem strange to you that Niagara, created some time ago, should be harnessed to pay profit to a few private individuals, instead of being used to supply power at the lowest possible rates, to all the people. But console yourself.

There is no use worrying about the inevitable. For many years to come you will live in a country managed by and for intelligent minds that understand finance and organization.

But years pass, other generations come. What has been taken from the people in one generation can be taken back by the people in another. A handful of Indians once owned all of New York. A handful of royalty, nobility and clergy once owned all of France. That has changed. Other things will change. Common sense and the majority rule in the end. And, meanwhile, individual selfishness builds up useful organizations.

DINNER STORIES

The city kid was roaming about in the country when he came upon a dozen or so empty condensed milk cans. Greatly excited, he yelled to his companions:

"Hey, fellers, come here quick! I've found a cow's nest!"

He risked his life to rescue the fair maid from a watery grave, and, of course, her father was duly grateful.

"Young man," he said, "I can never thank you sufficiently for your heroic act. You incurred an awful risk in saving my only daughter."

"None whatever," replied the amateur lifesaver; "I am already married."

A lady who took great interest in her servants and their welfare recently engaged a new maid.

"Have you any special interest, Mary?" she asked, in her kind way. "Anything you are taking up or that you care about?"

"Well, mum," replied the simple Mary, "I 'ave been taking up with the baker's boy, but I don't know as 'ow I cares for 'im much!"

Music Flourishing

"Music," says an observer of public amusements, "can hardly be said to be a neglected art in the United States."

Verily not, if the figures he quotes are correct. The nation's music bill is said to be $600,000,000 a year, not counting the cost of radio sets, which are really the leading musical instruments today.

Also consider this fact: There are 13,000 music clubs in the country. Twenty-five years ago there were only 38, and musical writers were despairing of the musical soul of America.

And East Liverpool, with the Civic Music association, the Male chorus, Ohio Valley Choral society and several clubs, shows her keen interest.

Artistically, America is certainly coming along. There is great progress in literature, and much fine activity in painting and architecture. Sculpture lags, but even that shows some promise.

Starving Mosquitoes

At the recent twelth annual convention of the New Jersey Mosquito Extermination association at Atlantic City, a new method of ridding any community of this pest was set forth by a bio-chemist.

This is to starve the mosquito larvae to death by putting certain chemicals in the ponds and tiny creeks where the infant anopheles spend their babyhood.

The mosquito larvae feeds on bacteria and other minute forms of animal life in the water, all of which can be killed by these chemicals without in any way affecting the visible vegetation or fish.

In the past the method was to kill the eggs or larvae outright by pouring kerosene into the water. But this was hard on harmless fish or plant life there.

It sounds a little complicated to the layman, who wonders at the chemist's cleverness in determining exactly how much of the chemical substance must be used to destroy only the mosquito's food without injuring anything else in the water. But if this works successfully in New Jersey, as it is said to do, it should promptly be introduced at several summer resorts we know of.

New Health Records

As a health year, 1924 is expected to rank high. Statistics disclosed by a life insurance company indicate that the general death rate for the past year will be the lowest in its history. Specific facts are as follows:

A new minimum death rate for tuberculosis and typhoid fever has been established; the diphtheria rate is lower than ever before; deaths from measles are fewer than in 1923; mortality from influenza is less than half that of 1923; diabetes deaths have declined 11.4 per cent; and mortality from causes incidental to maternity has reached a new low level.

Even violent deaths among the 15,000,000 policy holders of the company have decreased. These include suicides, homicides and accidents.

It is a distinctly encouraging report, not simply because of the lower death rates for these and other causes, but because it proves that health education and public health work are effective.

Child Labor in Argentina

A national child labor law was enacted in Argentina last September. It makes 14 the minimum age for industrial and commercial employment all over the country. It restricts the gainful employment of children under 18 to six hours a day, six days a week, and prohibits night work in certain dangerous occupations for boys under 18 and for girls and women of all ages.

This law is said by the children's bureau at Washington to set a higher standard than exists in any state in our union.

Evidently Anglo-Saxon civilization in this hemisphere will have to hump itself to keep up with Latin civilization in the matter of safeguarding its young people.

That world flight of American aviators cost Uncle Sam $177,000, and was cheap at the price, when you consider that Sir Thomas Lipton usually spends more than that to be beaten in a yacht race.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The world is said to be in such a hopeless state of strife and distrust that it appears almost impossible that any lasting understanding and feeling of good will can exist among the grownups of the nations. Therefore many advocates of world peace are pinning their hopes upon the youth of the universe.

The Junior Red Cross is working toward this goal. There are at the present time 35 or 40 countries in the world which have Junior Red Cross organizations. The object of all of these is two-fold: First, to teach service; and, second, to promote understanding and friendship among the various nations. Most of the organizations publish a monthly magazine which is subscribed to by the members. Many of these magazines contain not only stories of the activities of the Junior Red Cross in the countries in which they are published, but of others.

The American Junior Red Cross had its origin after the United States entered the world war. It was decided by educational leaders that the children of the nation could participate profitably in the work of making surgical dressings, socks, sweaters and similar articles for the comfort and care of our soldiers. It would make them feel that they had an active part in the solution of national problems, and would create a greater interest in current events. "It doesn't look at the mezzanine when it enters a building, but directs its gaze somewhere on the main floor. You don't hustle the family skeleton into the closet when it rings the doorbell, nor lock up the records when it enters your business office, because its curiosity is noble and intellectual, rather than animal and instinctive. It is curious about ideas and not about the weaknesses or the possessions of its fellow beings.

"There is no definition for personality; but the woman who is interested in people—not in dogs—is on the way to possessing it. If she 'sells' her husband a good cup of coffee, a downy couch, a comfortable and 'slippered' corner of the living room—if she doesn't neglect her home and just takes it out in loving the whole world, she's camping on the trail"—Miss Belden is from the west—"of personality, if she does not actually possess it."

There are three types of personality, according to Miss Belden. These she defined as "the mental, the emotional and the vital."

"Each may be attractive," she continued, "but each is incomplete unless it is balanced by the other two.

"Does your husband pound the table?" Miss Belden asked. "That means he has a temper, but it doesn't necessarily mean that he is a bad husband.

"On the contrary, provided he has developed control, he's the making of a very good husband. He has a big heart, and of all people in the world he's the least vindictive and, very likely, the most sympathetic. He's the kind of husband, too, that brings home the beautiful things that make the home-nest soft and downy and attractive."

Life as the wife of a strong and strenuous chiropractor is all right when one does not talk and live shop, but when the practice is carried into the home it is time to call a halt.

The above is the tenor of a divorce suit on file here in behalf of Mrs. Blanche Alberta Dennis, wife of Dr. Cyril Clark Dennis, of Port Huron, Mich. Cruelty is charged.

Among other incidents of alleged cruelty set out in the petition is that the chiropractor husband "twisted my arm, massaged my face with his fists and clasped his hands about my neck and held me tight. I call that choking."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Motoring in New York is like a football game. You make a few yards and come to a full stop. Then you wait again for the signals and buck the line again. Traffic increases at the rate of 20 per cent a year.

During the rush hours it requires five minutes to travel a short block. Either New York must return to the old-fashioned habit of walking or the main streets will become clogged and inert. Solving the traffic problem is one of the most serious problems the metropolis faces.

The idea of going out for a spin in a pleasure car is what the chorus girls call "ridic." It cannot be done. The skip stop and one way street plans have done very little to help. The city loses $1,250,000 daily by traffic congestion in shipping delays and the burning of gasoline.

Just now there seems to be only one worthwhile plan. This is to triple deck the streets—a lower and higher level from the surface. This will cost millions but not a million aday, as it does now. All hotels display warnings for patrons to walk to the stations.

Otherwise, they warn, one is more than likely to miss the train. Empty taxicabs are immediately ordered from Fifth avenue. Only three buses are permitted at the same time in a block and the street has the most highly perfected traffic system in the world. Yet it is always clogged.

Columbus circle, the biggest local point of traffic, cannot stop congestion with 20 policemen on duty from 8 in the morning until midnight. The entire situation results in New York being unfit for either pedestrians or motorists. (Voice: "Why don't you get out of it?")

Fire wagons have to go at a snail-like pace through mid-town despite their bell clanging and sirening. Police are unable to get the traffic out of the way for them and this entails the danger of a heavy loss of life and property.

Patterson McNutt is William McSlaven McNutt's "kid" brother. McNutt has won great prominence as a writer. Now his "kid" brother comes along and writes a Broadway play that is a wow and is also a frequent contributor to the magazines. The crowning insult happened one day last week when a lady was introduced to the elder McNutt.

"O!" she said, "I wonder if you are a relative of Patterson McNutt?"

"Just his sappy brother," replied Bill.

The sunburn parlor of West Forty-third street, which was opened to give cliff dwellers a gentle tanning in 15 minutes, has closed. No explanation was offered. The big idea was to give people a chance to be sunburned and to appear as though they had just returned from Miami or Palm Beach.

There is a pleasant spot above Riverside Drive called Inspiration Point. At the peak there is a beautiful view of the Hudson and purpling Palisades. It is an inspirational point for lovers and many young men inspired by the breath-taking beauty of it all pop the question. This happens so often that there is a group of "marriage runners" who hang about the point and pass out cards showing where young couples may go to be speedily wed.

A New Yorker sailed for Italy recently to see a sister aged 20 and a brother aged 18 whom he had never seen before. They were born after he came to America.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

COOLIDGE HORSE

President Coolidge, to get exercise necessary for work, rides an electric horse. It is an imitation, and remains in one place, but gives you the walking, trotting, galloping exercise of a live horse.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as becomes a man, at least twice as rich as the president, rides an electris horse and also an electric camel. The latter, a true ship of the desert, shambles, rocks and lurches, exercising the liver and spleen as well as any osteopath can do. And you don't have to go to the desert of Sahara. You can ride your camel between directors' meetings.

Samuel Johnson, on his trip to the Hebrides, wrote Mrs. Thrale that a ship has all the disadvantages of a prison, with the additional disadvantage of being unsafe. An electrical camel has the same advantages of a real camel, with the additional advantage of being safe.

ROCKEFELLER CAMEL

On the west bank of the Hudson, near the Catskills, only two generations ago, Mr. Rockefeller's great-uncle would go out trading horses, usually starting with two second-class horses, and coming back with two first ones.

Little did he dream that his great-nephew would live to ride an electric camel and be the richest man in the world.

What will the Rockefellers be doing two generations from now? Not all the power of money can control that.

DON'T SELL FRANCS

France is alarmed about another serious drop in the value of the franc. French financiers have sold, according to a dispatch from Edwin L. James, of the New York Times, 14,000,000,000 francs in foreign countries. If accurate, this means that Frenchmen are exchanging French money for foreign money.

But no matter what French and foreign financiers may do, the wise man will remember that 999 out of 1,000 Frenchmen have absolute faith in their country. The French people are thrifty and enormously rich. Gambling in the franc to diminish its value is not only a hostile act to a friendly nation, but also a very dangerous game.

NEXT SUMMER'S WAR GAME

A "war game" this summer will test Hawaii's defenses. The United States Atlantic and Pacific fleets combined will try to take the Hawaiian islands. Theorists will decide which side won.

The main idea is to test the Hawaiian islands' protection for the Panama canal in case of war starting from Asia.

If war should come from Asia, the Hawaiian islands would be no more important than Timbuctoo, so far as defending the United States is concerned.

Attack from Asia would come through the air, far above Hawaii and the Hawaiians wouldn't know anything about it.

The government might better make experiments as regards the defense of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, New York, Chicago and other cities, all open to airplane attack.

The general staff says the Hawaiian islands could not be captured if well supplied with fighting airplanes. That shows at least a gleam of intelligence. But the main supply of airplanes is needed on the American continent, on both sides and in the middle, not merely off in Hawaii.

If this country had not been painfully foolish at the Washington conference we should have our great protective battleships for airplanes at Guam, maintaining there at all times an airplane force sufficient to serve as a permanent warning to all Asia.

This continent ought to be able to point to Guam as the leading airplane base of the world and say "strike at the United States, and from this point we shall destroy you."

Instead we became sloppily sentimental, shed silly tears down the backs of the British, the Japanese and everybody else, lent them our money, agreed to protect them permanently in their Pacific island possessions. We crowned our display of idiocy by agreeing not to fortify Guam, which should have been our most valuable possession in the way of defense, and is now utterly wasted.

The eastern states soon will witness the birth of a gigantic power concern, harnessing up various power sources and supplying many states. In the beginning the great enterprise, which promises "a smokeless age and smokeless cities" will probably be divided into two huge concerns that will fight each other for supremacy.

Rates, of course, will be agreed upon, as high as the public will stand.

It may seem strange to you that Niagara, created some time ago, should be harnessed to pay profit to a few private individuals, instead of being used to supply power at the lowest possible rates, to all the people. But console yourself.

There is no use worrying about the inevitable. For many years to come you will live in a country managed by and for intelligent minds that understand finance and organization.

But years pass, other generations come. What has been taken from the people in one generation can be taken back by the people in another. A handful of Indians once owned all of New York. A handful of royalty, nobility and clergy once owned all of France. That has changed. Other things will change. Common sense and the majority rule in the end. And, meanwhile, individual selfishness builds up useful organizations.

DINNER STORIES

The city kid was roaming about in the country when he came upon a dozen or so empty condensed milk cans. Greatly excited, he yelled to his companions:

'Hey, fellers, come here quick! I've found a cow's nest!"

He risked his life to rescue the fair maid from a watery grave, and, of course, her father was duly grateful.

"Young man," he said, "I can never thank you sufficiently for your heroic act. You incurred an awful risk in saving my only daughter."

"None whatever," replied the amateur lifesaver; "I am already married."

A lady who took great interest in her servants and their welfare recently engaged a new maid.

"Have you any special interest, Mary?" she asked, in her kind way. "Anything you are taking up or that you care about?"

"Well, mum," replied the simple Mary, "I 'ave been taking up with the baker's boy, but I don't know as 'ow I cares for 'im much!"

'SINNERS IN HEAVEN," AT CERAMIC, SCORES WITH MOVIE FANS HERE

Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix Portray Two Leading Roles in Latest Cinema Opus From Paramount Organization.

The blue ribbon as the week's best picture goes to "Sinners in Heaven," the latest cinema opus from the Paramount organization, which opened last night at the Ceramic Theatre for a three days run. For dramatic strength of story, excellent characterization, pictorial beauty and able direction, this picturization of the famous novel of the same name by Clive Arden, adapted to the screen by James Creelman and produced by Alan Crosland, is miles ahead of many of the recent screen offerings.

If the word "super-film" had not fallen into disrepute because of misuse and abuse, we would be sorely tempted to apply it to this photoplay. As it is we will have to content ourselves by heartily recommending it to each and every motion picture "fan."

The usual theme of the story made its transfer to the silver sheet a delicate operation, so to speak: and the fact that it has been accomplished with admirable finesse, so that even the most rabid puritan will find nothing to criticize, reflects great credit on scenarist and producer. And yet, all the vitality and dynamic dramatic power of the story, which won the prize in England as the best novel of the year, has been preserved intact. Personally we believe that "Sinners in Heaven" as a picture will be even more enthusiastically received than was "Sinners in Heaven" as a book.

Briefly, the plot unfolds the adventures of a man and girl who find themselves cast away on a desert island with no apparent hope of rescue. Bound by a lifetime of conventions and tradition and loyalty to her fiance back in England, the girl struggles against her overwhelming love for the man—but in vain! And the manner in which these two work out their salvation provides some of the most gripping drama ever flashed on the screen.

Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix portray the two leading roles, and to say that each scores a distinct personal triumph is but stating a fact. The other members of the excellent cast include some of filmdom's most popular favorites. Montague Love, Holmes Herbert, Florence Billings, Betty Hilburn, Effie Shannon and Marcia Harris.

By all means see "Sinners in Heaven." It is screen fare de luxe!

KOA, DENVER RADIO, SPANS BOTH OCEANS

Heard in New Zealand and by English Listener.

BREAKS RECORDS

Previous Distances Were Alaska and Peru.

DENVER, Feb.—Heard in New Zealand, on the west, and in England on the east, Station KOA, at Denver, latest Western broadcasting radio station, built at a cost of approximately $200,000, has successfully spanned the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans and has established its record long distance for program reception.

From New Zealand, approximately 8,000 miles from Denver, word has just been received that the newly opened broadcasting station first was heard on New Year's Eve. Report of reception was received from E. F. Blackwood, Till street, Omaru, in the State of Otago. Omaru is on the east coast of the South Island of New Zealand.

Frank Bartlett, of Birmingham, England, wrote his cousin in Denver, Dr. M. F. Bartlett, that he remained up until 4 a. m. recently listening to a Denver orchestra—a regular Saturday night feature over KOA. The distance from Denver to Birmingham, England, is 5,700 miles. Officials pointed out that the total distance between New Zealand and England embraces half the globe.

Previous high records for KOA were Alaska, on the north, and Arequipa, Peru, in South America. From the latter point L. Anciaux wrote an appreciation for KOA's concert December 26, 1924. He reported cloudy weather and heavy atmosphere, but good volume. The distance to Denver is 5,200 miles.

"Just a few lines from little old New Zealand to let you know that your transmission of New Year's Eve was received here with good volume on the loud speaker," reads the letter from Amaru. "The jazz music came through fine, as also did the cheering and the calls for encores.

"Your volume was splendid, and modulation just perfect."

KOA staff members declare that words of praise from radio listeners have reached them in letters written in several different languages, in addition to English.

Since the opening date of KOA the new international radio voice has been heard in virtually every important point on the North American continent, Central America, Cuba, the West Indies, Hawaii and points in Suoth America.

A recent innovation at KOA was the broadcasting of the Roman Catholic mass services and the sermon from the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception here.

The Prince of Wales' use of a cigarette holder while visting in this country caused such a demand for the once-popular article that one London firm was almost swamped with orders from New York tobacco dealers.

Waited on Customers in Stocking Feet Until "Blue-jay" Put On Her Shoes

Mrs. Clara E. Patterson, 6403 Superior Ave., a saleswoman in one of Cleveland's largest department stores, tells an interesting experience. She says:

"I've had to walk behind the counter in my stocking feet, because my corns pained so. Now, I buy 'Blue-jay' Corn Plasters and get immediate relief. An unfailing remedy. I would recommend them to anybody."

"Blue-jay" is made in liquid and in plaster form. For INSTANT RELIEF, we recommend the PLASTER, because the soft felt ring encircles the corn and at once removes the painful shoe pressure.

In this soft ring is the "Blue-jay" preparation, prescribed by a famous chemist. Not too much—not too little—just the right amount to remove the corn GENTLY. Leave it on 48 hours. The corn lifts right out. Sometimes a stubborn corn requires a second plaster. Apply immediately after soaking off the first.

To avoid infection corns should never be pared except by skilled chiropodists. For corn removal at home, our advice is to try the safe "Blue-jay" Plasters. For a liquid cannot remove shoe pressure; you may get on too much, or not enough, or drop it a little off the corn. So ask for the shapely, comfortable "Blue-jay" Plasters. So much in demand all druggists sell them. Package of six, 25c. Then write us your experience. "Blue-jay" Laboratories, Chicago, Ill.

BIG ESTATE FOR UNKNOWN HEIRS

CHICAGO, Feb.—Unknown heirs, believed to be "somewhere in Ohio," will inherit a fortune of $25,000 left by Enos J. Walker, aged "mystery man," if these relatives can be located, according to W. B. Cox, probate genealogist, here. Cox, whose vocation is the tracing of family trees in connection with settlement of estates, took up the Walker case—one of the strangest on record—after attorneys failed to penetrate the dead man's past. Cox has started an intensive search in Ohio for Walker's heirs. Unless he unravels the paradox, the money left by Walker will revert to the state, it was announced.

Walker is believed to have been born in Ohio in 1844. Family quarrels are blamed for his leaving his "Ohio home" when he was 24. A daughter of a United States senator in Springfield it was said, was Walker's sweetheart. He claimed to have been educated at Columbus, O., in his youth, and became a school teacher and surveyor. He, also, is said to have had relatives about 50 years ago at Springfield and Lima, Ohio, and in other Ohio and Kentucky towns, and a cousin in Philadelphia, who was a lawyer. Walker is believed to have changed his name and settled in Illinois a short time before drifting further west, eventually acquiring land in Mexico.

For dramatic strength of story, excellent characterization, pictorial beauty and able direction, this picturization of the famous novel of the same name by Clive Arden, adapted to the screen by James Creelman and produced by Alan Crosland, is miles ahead of many of the recent screen offerings.

If the word "super-film" had not fallen into disrepute because of misuse and abuse, we would be sorely tempted to apply it to this photoplay. As it is we will have to content ourselves by heartily recommending it to each and every motion picture "fan."

The usual theme of the story made its transfer to the silver sheet a delicate operation, so to speak: and the fact that it has been accomplished with admirable finesse, so that even the most rabid puritan will find nothing to criticize, reflects great credit on scenarist and producer. And yet, all the vitality and dynamic dramatic power of the story, which won the prize in England as the best novel of the year, has been preserved intact. Personally we believe that "Sinners in Heaven" as a picture will be even more enthusiastically received than was "Sinners in Heaven" as a book.

Briefly, the plot unfolds the adventures of a man and girl who find themselves cast away on a desert island with no apparent hope of rescue. Bound by a lifetime of conventions and tradition and loyalty to her fiance back in England, the girl struggles against her overwhelming love for the man—but in vain! And the manner in which these two work out their salvation provides some of the most gripping drama ever flashed on the screen.

Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix portray the two leading roles, and to say that each scores a distinct personal triumph is but stating a fact. The other members of the excellent cast include some of filmdom's most popular favorites. Montague Love, Holmes Herbert, Florence Billings, Betty Hilburn, Effie Shannon and Marcia Harris.

By all means see "Sinners in Heaven." It is screen fare de luxe!

KOA, DENVER RADIO, SPANS BOTH OCEANS

Heard in New Zealand and by English Listener.

BREAKS RECORDS

Previous Distances Were Alaska and Peru.

DENVER, Feb.—Heard in New Zealand, on the west, and in England on the east, Station KOA, at Denver, latest Western broadcasting radio station, built at a cost of approximately $200,000, has successfully spanned the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans and has established its record long distance for program reception.

From New Zealand, approximately 8,000 miles from Denver, word has just been received that the newly opened broadcasting station first was heard on New Year's Eve. Report of reception was received from E. F. Blackwood, Tiff street, Omaru, in the State of Otago. Omaru is on the east coast of the South Island of New Zealand.

Frank Bartlett, of Birmingham, England, wrote his cousin in Denver, Dr. M. F. Bartlett, that he remained up until 4 a. m. recently listening to a Denver orchestra—a regular Saturday night feature over KOA. The distance from Denver to Birmingham, England, is 5,700 miles. Officials pointed out that the total distance between New Zealand and England embraces half the globe.

Previous high records for KOA were Alaska, on the north, and Arequipa, Peru, in South America. From the latter point L. Anclaux wrote an appreciation for KOA's concert December 26, 1924. He reported cloudy weather and heavy atmosphere, but good volume. The distance to Denver is 5,200 miles.

"Just a few lines from little old New Zealand to let you know that your transmission of New Year's Eve was received here with good volume on the loud speaker," reads the letter from Amaru. "The jazz music came through fine, as also did the cheering and the calls for encores.

"Your volume was splendid, and modulation just perfect."

KOA staff members declare that words of praise from radio listeners have reached them in letters written in several different languages, in addition to English.

Since the opening date of KOA the new international radio voice has been heard in virtually every important point on the North American continent, Central America, Cuba, the West Indies, Hawaii and points in South America.

A recent innovation at KOA was the broadcasting of the Roman Catholic mass services and the sermon from the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception here.

The Prince of Wales' use of a cigarette holder while visting in this country caused such a demand for the once-popular article that one London firm was almost swamped with orders from New York tobacco dealers.

Waited on Customers in Stocking Feet Until "Blue-jay" Put On Her Shoes

Mrs. Clara E. Patterson, 6403 Superior Ave., a saleswoman in one of Cleveland's largest department stores, tells an interesting experience. She says:

"I've had to walk behind the counter in my stocking feet, because my corns pained so. Now, I buy 'Blue-jay' Corn Plasters and get immediate relief. An unfailing remedy. I would recommend them to anybody."

"Blue-jay" is made in liquid and in plaster form. For INSTANT RELIEF, we recommend the PLASTER, because the soft felt ring encircles the corn and at once removes the painful shoe pressure.

In this soft ring is the "Blue-jay" preparation, prescribed by a famous chemist. Not too much—not too little—just the right amount to remove the corn GENTLY. Leave it on 48 hours. The corn lifts right out. Sometimes a stubborn corn requires a second plaster. Apply immediately after soaking off the first.

To avoid infection corns should never be pared except by skilled chiropodists. For corn removal at home, our advice is to try the safe "Blue-jay" Plasters. For a liquid cannot remove shoe pressure; you may get on too much, or not enough, or drop it a little off the corn. So ask for the shapely, comfortable "Blue-jay" Plasters. So much in demand all druggists sell them. Package of six, 9.3c. Then write us your experience. "Blue-jay" Laboratories, Chicago, Ill.

BIG ESTATE FOR UNKNOWN HEIRS

CHICAGO, Feb.—Unknown heirs, believed to be "somewhere in Ohio," will inherit a fortune of $25,000 left by Enos J. Walker, aged "mystery man," if these relatives can be located, according to W. B. Cox, probate genealogist, here. Cox, whose vocation is the tracing of family trees in connection with settlement of estates, took up the Walker case—one of the strangest on record—after attorneys failed to penetrate the dead man's past. Cox has started an intensive search in Ohio for Walker's heirs. Unless he unravels the paradox, the money left by Walker will revert to the state, it was announced.

Walker is believed to have been born in Ohio in 1844. Family quarrels are blamed for his leaving his "Ohio home" when he was 24. A daughter of a United States senator in Springfield it was said, was Walker's sweetheart. He claimed to have been educated at Columbus, O., in his youth, and became a school teacher and surveyor. He, also, is said to have had relatives about 50 years ago at Springfield and Lima, Ohio, and in other Ohio and Kentucky towns, and a cousin in Philadelphia, who was a lawyer. Walker is believed to have changed his name and settled in Illinois a short time before drifting further west, eventually acquiring land in Mexico.

KOENIG SOUNDS WARNING NOTE

County Health Physician Points Out Danger From Colds.

Dr. Charles A. Koenig, county health officer, has sounded a warning on the danger of colds, which, he asserts are prevalent at this season of the year.

His statement follows:

"This is the season for 'colds.' Many people with 'colds' are serving customers in stores, especially groceries, restaurants, confectionery, and other food handling establishments. That is how many 'colds' are brought into the homes. Such people must stay out of the food handling establishments. The use of a good handkerchief in such cases is filthy. A handkerchief full of mucous and pus is dangerous to handle. In any case, food handlers should use a handkerchief only once. That could be either cloth or paper. It should then be burned, and the hands washed. Customers should refuse to be served by the sick storekeepers."

LIGHT CONTRACT RENEWED HERE

Renewal of the light contract for a period of five years and approving a petition presented by merchants asking for the appointment of an additional patrolman was the chief business transacted last evening at the regular meeting of council.

The light ordinance as adopted only differs from the present contract in that 100 candle power will be the minimum used in the city instead of 60 and 80 as at present. The petition asking for another officer was unanimously approved. The business men agree to pay half the salary of the patrolman who will be named at the next meeting if a suitable applicant is found.

Thousands of pounds of world's choicest wool is produced in the Wheeling district every year. With the wool market on the up trend and choice wool such is produced in this district commanding a premium, the growers are looking forward to a very successful year.

Plans are to be discussed for bringing more of the wool producers into the fold of the association and having them take an active part in the organization's work.

YOUR HEALTH

Phosphorus In Food Aids Broken Bones to Mend

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR COPELAND

FROM Johns Hopkins Hospital the scientific world has received much valuable information. The latest report from there relates to the effects of diet in hastening the knitting of broken bones.

The experiments were conducted by a famous expert on foods, Prof. E. V. McCollum, and by Dr. Henry A. Peterson. Twenty dogs were submitted to the dietary tests. The conclusions were founded on facts established in some cases by six or eight weeks of treatment of the dogs.

It appears to be established by these tests that the rapidity of healing of the broken bones depends on the quantities of phosphorous taken in the food. By well directed dieting the phosphorus in the blood can be reduced or increased. If there is not enough phosphorus the bones become brittle. They are easily broken and do not heal as they should.

On the contrary, if the phosphorus content of the blood is increased, the broken bones heal promptly. To accomplish this in the dogs under test they were fed food rich in phosphorus and in addition were given cod liver oil.

The progress of the experiments was under constant observation by the aid of the x-ray.

If experience verifies the conclusions this knowledge will prove of the greatest value to the human family. For instance fracture of the hip bone in old persons is very serious because of the failure to heal. The knitting is delayed and perhaps never takes place. If phosphorus fed will help it is certainly an easy way to overcome the lack of an important mineral and its use will make broken bones in elderly persons an accident of less moment than it is at present.

So that you may know some of the foods rich in phosphorus will name a few. Among such are lean beef, yolk of egg, liver, cheese, milk, whole wheat, oatmeal, dried beans, carrots, cabbage, turnips, lettuce, prunes, oranges, peanuts, almonds and other nuts.

Soups or chowder containing some of these elements or other dishes may be to include these will give the necessary supply of phosphorus. Of course most of the foods I have named are pretty hearty and good sense must be used in giving them to a bed patient.

Cod liver oil can be had in palatable form and according to the Baltimore tests should be added to the diet in liberal quantities.

I am giving you this recently acquired information hoping if it is really useful that somebody may be benefited by it. I shall send a copy of this little talk to the doctor of a friend of mine who fell down last week and broke his hip. I want this friend to have the immediate benefit of the Johns Hopkins tests and I pray that he and other sufferers may be helped by the work of Doctors Peterson and McCollum.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause — Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the REAL cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

On thy cold gray stones, O Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay!

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.

At the foot of thy crags, O Sea!
But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.

—Tennyson.

Niagara Falls Backing Up.

Water falling at Niagara Falls eats away about a foot of cliff each year. In this way a deep cleft has been cut back from Queenstown for a distance of seven miles to the place where the falls now are located. At this rate it is figured it took more than 35,000 years to dig out the seven mile channel that now exists.

KOENIG SOUNDS WARNING NOTE

County Health Physician Points Out Danger From Colds.

Dr. Charles A. Koenig, county health officer, has sounded a warning on the danger of colds, which, he asserts are prevalent at this season of the year.

H's statement follows:

"This is the season for 'colds.' Many people with 'colds' are serving customers in stores, especially groceries, restaurants, confectionery, and other food handling establishments. That is how many 'colds' are brought into the homes. Such people must stay out of the food handling establishments. The use of a good handkerchief in such cases is filthy. A handkerchief full of mucous and pus is dangerous to handle. In any case, food handlers should use a handkerchief only once. That could be either cloth or paper. It should then be burned, and the hands washed. Customers should refuse to be served by the sick storekeepers."

YOUR HEALTH

Phosphorus In Food Aids Broken Bones to Mend

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR COPELAND

FROM Johns Hopkins Hospital the scientific world has received much valuable information. The latest report from there relates to the effects of diet in hastening the knitting of broken bones.

The experiments were conducted by a famous expert on foods, Prof. E. V. McCollum, and by Dr. Henry A Petersen. Twenty dogs were submitted to the dietary tests. The conclusions were founded on facts established in some cases by six or eight weeks of treatment of the dogs.

It appears to be established by these tests that the rapidity of healing of the broken bones depends on the quantities of phosphorous taken in the food. By well directed dieting the phosphorus in the blood can be reduced or increased. If there is not enough phosphorus the bones become brittle. They are easily broken and do not heal as they should.

On the contrary, if the phosphorus content of the blood is increased, the broken bones heal promptly. To accomplish this in the dogs under test they were fed food rich in phosphorus and in addition were given cod liver oil.

The progress of the experiments was under constant observation by the aid of the x-ray.

If experience verifies the conclusions this knowledge will prove of the greatest value to the human family. For instance fracture of the hip bone in old persons is very serious because of the failure to heal. The knitting is delayed and perhaps never takes place. If phosphorus food will help it is certainly an easy way to overcome the lack of an important mineral and its use will make broken bones in elderly persons an accident of less moment than it is at present.

So that you may know some of the foods rich in phosphorus will name a few. Among such are lean beef, yolk of egg, liver, cheese, milk, whole wheat, oatmeal, dried beans, carrots, cabbage, turnips, lettuce, prunes, oranges, peanuts, almonds and other nuts.

Soups or chowder containing some of these elements or other dishes may be to include these will give the necessary supply of phosphorus. Of course most of the foods I have named are pretty hearty and good sense must be used in giving them to a bed patient.

Cod liver oil can be had in palatable form and according to the Baltimore tests should be added to the diet in liberal quantities.

I am giving you this recently acquired information hoping if it is really useful that somebody may be benefited by it. I shall send a copy of this little talk to the doctor of a friend of mine who fell down last week and broke his hip. I want this friend to have the immediate benefit of the Johns Hopkins tests and I pray that he and other sufferers may be helped by the work of Doctors Peterson and McCollum.

Art Paints Hard to Make

Paints used by artists are quite difficult to make and many of the pigments are not found in the United States, but are imported from Europe. In grinding these pigments they are placed between two soapstone disks and ground down to a butter-like smoothness to break down all crystalline structures.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause — Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the REAL cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

On thy cold gray stones, O Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay!

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.

At the foot of thy crags, O Sea!
But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.

—Tennyson.

Niagara Falls Backing Up.

Water falling at Niagara Falls eats away about a foot of cliff each year. In this way a deep cleft has been cut back from Queenstown for a distance of seven miles to the place where the falls now are located. At this rate it is figured it took more than 35,000 years to dig out the seven mile channel that now exists.

BOARD ORDERS ROAD SURVEY

Grading of Highway In St. Clair Township Seems Assured.

County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk has been ordered by the county commissioners to make a survey of the East Liverpool-East Palestine road from the northern terminus of the paved road northeast of Calcutta northward to the St. Clair-Middleton township line.

This is taken to indicate that this road in St. Clair township will be graded this year, and will be a continuation of the grading job now in progress in Middleton township on this highway.

The commissioners have been informed indirectly that St. Clair township trustees and farmers living along the route of this road look with favor upon this grading project upon plans that were followed in Middleton township. In the latter instance the commissioners and Middleton trustees aided by farmers put over this grading project, and because of the donation work the job is being completed at a very low cost.

It is likely that the county steam shovel will be used on any grading on this road in St. Clair township, but the work will be under the direction of County Curveyor Lloyd C. Kirk.

County Commissioners Order New Shovel for Work on Highways

At a cost of upwards of $8,000 the county commissioners have awarded the contract to the Erie Shovel Co., for the delivery to this county of a model "A" Erie steam shovel, which will replace the steam shovel that has been in service in this county several years.

For a while the board was of the opinion that a gasoline shovel would meet the requirements of the road jobs in this county, but following an inspection of several types of shovels, it was the opinion of the board that the Erie type would be the best for all needs at this time.

Delivery is to be made before the opening of spring, it being the intent of the commissioners to keep this shovel working at least eight months in the year if possible.

Gross neglect of duty is charged in the petition, which also relates that the whereabouts of Rumberger are unknown to the plaintiff.

Seek To Transfer Money.

An application has been filed in common pleas court by L. M. Kyes, as attorney for the township trustees of Unity, asking permission of the court to transfer $1,000 from its general fund to its road fund.

"There are 71 miles of township roads in need of immediate attention in Unity township,' the petition discloses, "and the transfer of $1,000 is a matter of necessity."

Divorce Case Entry Made.

Another entry has been made in the divorce case of Irene Lutton, who was granted a decree against her husband, George R. Lutton Feb. 4. The case, as to the child in this action, has been now certified to the juvenile court, for such action as the law may hereafter permit. Attorney Charles Boyd represented Mrs. Lutton in this action, while the defendant was represented by Attorney George S Thompson.

STACY IS NAMED MOTOR CYCLE COP

The letter of Mayor F. E. Albright of Lisbon to the county commissioners, asking for the appointment of Robert Stacy as deputy sheriff, following his appointment as motor cycle police of Lisbon was placed on file during a meeting of the board Monday.

It was suggested by Mayor Albrecht that the village of Lisbon be given the preference when arrests were made for violation of the state traffic laws.

The commissioners took action upon the suggestion of Mayor Albrecht, and now that Henry Burbon of Salem has been appointed for this particular purpose, it has not been indicated what future action will be taken upon the suggestion made in the letter from Mayor Albrecht.

Case Appealed.

An appeal bond of $50 has been filed in common pleas court by Elmo Roe, who was sued in the court of Justice of the Peace P. V. Mackall of East Liverpool by Cordelia Witherow, who claimed the defendant was indebted to her in the sum of $6 for a board bill. Judgment by default was rendered by the court, and then Roe appealed the case.

Judgment Claimed.

Claiming a judgment of $2,300 on a promissory note secured by a mortgage on a piece of property in Columbiana, George Pine, through Attorney W. E. Warren, have filed a petition in common pleas court against Harry Innman and others. The petition recites that the note for $2,300 was given Sept. 23, 1921.

Asked To Improve Road.

The State Highway Department has been asked to improve that section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road known as No. 502 north of the Cox highway in Fairfield township on a 50-50 basis with the county. This improvement would take an improved road to the Columbiana-Mahoning county line where an improved road into Youngstown would be tapped.

All work on this road in Fairfield township has been held up on account of the weather. The southern end of this road will be the last to be finished, all of which lies in St. Clair township.

Improving Home Building.

Considerable progress is being made in the stucco work at the county home, and the county commissioners have blackboarded a proposal to stucco the milk house at this institution.

The contract for this improvement was awarded to an Alliance concern after the commissioners advertised for bids twice. It is the opinion of Supt. John P. Neill that the stucco contract will be finished within the next six weeks.

BOARD ORDERS ROAD SURVEY

Grading of Highway In St. Clair Township Seems Assured.

County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk has been ordered by the county commissioners to make a survey of the East Liverpool-East Palestine road from the northern terminus of the paved road northeast of Calcutta northward to the St. Clair-Middleton township line.

This is taken to indicate that this road in St. Clair township will be graded this year, and will be a continuation of the grading job now in progress in Middleton township on this highway.

The commissioners have been informed indirectly that St. Clair township trustees and farmers living along the route of this road look with favor upon this grading project upon plans that were followed in Middleton township. In the latter instance the commissioners and Middleton trustees aided by farmers put over this grading project, and because of the donation work the job is being completed at a very low cost.

It is likely that the county steam shovel will be used on any grading on this road in St. Clair township, but the work will be under the direction of County Curveyor Lloyd C. Kirk.

County Commissioners Order New Shovel for Work on Highways

At a cost of upwards of $8,000 the county commissioners have awarded the contract to the Erie Shovel Co., for the delivery to this county of a model "A" Erie steam shovel, which will replace the steam shovel that has been in service in this county several years.

For a while the board was of the opinion that a gasoline shovel would meet the requirements of the road jobs in this county, but following an inspection of several types of shovels, it was the opinion of the board that the Erie type would be the best for all needs at this time.

Delivery is to be made before the opening of spring, it being the intent of the commissioners to keep this shovel working at least eight months in the year if possible.

An application has been filed in common pleas court by L. M. Kyes, as attorney for the township trustees of Unity, asking permission of the court to transfer $1,000 from its general fund to its road fund.

The case, as to the child in this action, has been now certified to the juvenile court, for such action as the law may hereafter permit. Attorney Charles Boyd represented Mrs. Lutton in this action, while the defendant was represented by Attorney George S Thompson.

STACY IS NAMED MOTOR CYCLE COP

The letter of Mayor F. E. Albright of Lisbon to the county commissioners, asking for the appointment of Robert Stacy as deputy sheriff, following his appointment as motor cycle police of Lisbon was placed on file during a meeting of the board Monday.

It was suggested by Mayor Albrecht that the village of Lisbon be given the preference when arrests were made for violation of the state traffic laws.

The commissioners took action upon the suggestion of Mayor Albrecht, and now that Henry Burbon of Salem has been appointed for this particular purpose, it has not been indicated what future action will be taken upon the suggestion made in the letter from Mayor Albrecht.

Case Appealed.

An appeal bond of $50 has been filed in common pleas court by Elmo Roe, who was sued in the court of Justice of the Peace P. V. Mackall of East Liverpool by Cordelia Witherow, who claimed the defendant was indebted to her in the sum of $6 for a board bill. Judgment by default was rendered by the court, and then Roe appealed the case.

Judgment Claimed.

Claiming a judgment of $2,300 on a promissory note secured by a mortgage on a piece of property in Columbiana, George Pine, through Attorney W. E. Asked To Improve Road.

The State Highway Department has been asked to improve that section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road known as No. 502 north of the Cox highway in Fairfield township on a 50-50 basis with the county. This improvement would take an improved road to the Columbiana-Mahoning county line where an improved road into Youngstown would be tapped.

All work on this road in Fairfield township has been held up on account of the weather. The southern end of this road will be the last to be finished, all of which lies in St. Clair township.

Improving Home Building.

Considerable progress is being made in the stucco work at the county home, and the county commissioners have blackboarded a proposal to stucco the milk house at this institution.

The contract for this improvement was awarded to an Alliance concern after the commissioners advertised for bids twice. It is the opinion of Supt. John P. Neill that the stucco contract will be finished within the next six weeks.

A. The assistant secretary of the University of Michigan says: "I presume the person making the inquiry of your office means the University of Michigan. There is no Ann Arbor college. No gold mine in Ontario, worthless or otherwise, has been given to the University of Michigan, so far as we know. Some time ago the newspapers referred to some lands in the Garden River Indian Reserve in Ontario, which is near the Canadian Soo, as 'valuable copper lands.' This land was given to the university about fifteen years ago. The deed especially reserves gold and silver to the Province of Ontario. It undoubtedly contains copper ore, but this ore is, as far as we know, low grade and not suitable for mining under the present processes in commercial use."

COMMON SENSE IN SMALL DOSES

He who lives by the undrained pond
Waves a magic mosquito wand.

A heavy diet and a heavy head.

While it's mighty fine to be able to apply proper first aid, preventing the accident is of greater importance.

If your weight is two-twenty
And you look like a tub,
To accomplish reduction
Begin on the grup.

Most of us who do not perform manual labor could subsist very well on just one of the three big meals that we daily consume.

One well known authority recommends that the annual physical examination should include a careful examination for evidence of beginning cancer.

And another good way to prepare for war is to live so that we won't be rejected by the recruiting officer.

And it seemed such a pity,
So young and so fair—
When all that she needed
Was lots of fresh air.

Too many folks who keep up appearances don't pay their doctors.

Stuffy bed rooms in the night,
Windows down and fastened tight,
Things like this make doctors fight
pneumonia.

The fellow who wants all he eats has a stomach that doesn't.

The prompt application of iodine or mercurochrome (a new substitute for iodine) to minor cuts and scratches, beats an application for a bed in the hospital.

Famous Racoon Is Caught.

"Old Ringtail," a giant racoon which has defied dogs and hunters near Hoopeston, Ill., for years, was finally caught recently by "Old Trailer," a hound owned by Carl Owens of Rossville, Ill. The hound overtook the coon in a cornfield and killed it after a desperate battle. Brought to bay numberless times in the last six years, it had always heretofore fought its way to freedom.

Taking the baby to the movie annoys both the child and the audience

Although phosphate deposits of the Djebel-Onk fields of Algeria were discovered 20 years ago, and are known to contain 1,000,000,000 metric tons, work never has been started because rival efforts of Algiers and Tunisia have prevented construction of a railroad to the field from either city.

All Druggists Great Offer To Chronic Rheumatic Sufferers

Money Back If Allenrhu Fails to Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.

"It does not matter to me whether you are disabled with cursed rheumatism or have only occasional twinges," says James H. Allen. "I know that Allenrhu, my own discovery, will stop the agony, do away with the gnawing pains and reduce the swollen joints."

"I know it will dissolve the uric acid deposits that have become deeply imbedded in joints and muscles and quickly drive every trace of rheumatism from your body. I know this because I was crippled for years and many times was unable to work, and Allenrhu made a well, robust, healthy man of me."

"I know because since I cured myself, hundreds have taken Allenrhu and speedily rid themselves of this agonizing disease."

Allenrhu is no laggard; it starts right in at once; it gets into the blood, searches out the poisonous uric acid deposit and in two days starts to drive the concentrated impurities that cause rheumatism, out of the body through the natural channels.

It's marvelous how quickly it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two days—even in cases where the suffering has been most painful all traces have disappeared in a few days.

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases.

With this understanding he has instructed all druggists everywhere to guarantee it in every instance.

"During 60 years of Married Life"...
Three Generations Kept Healthy and Happy

"Beecham's Pills were always considered indispensable by my parents during sixty years of married life and I am never without them in my home, as they are used when required by myself (aged sixty-one), and wife and children. This covers a period of over eighty years.

My wife and sons also believe there is no remedy for constipation and biliousness equal to Beecham's Pills.

So many so-called "cures" for biliousness and kindred troubles leave after effects that are certainly injurious, but Beecham's Pills give prompt relief and leave one in a healthy and happy condition." N. J. M. Ramsay, N. J.

Use Beecham's Pills for constipation, biliousness and sick headache.

How to Quickly Gain Strength After Attack of Grippe

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets full of Best Body Building Vitamines.

60 TABLETS 60 CENTS

Make no mistake—if you are weak and exhausted after the flu or a heavy cold or a lingering cough and need something to build you up and send you back to work healthy and happy put your faith in McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Your great grandparents knew that Cod Liver Oil made weak people strong made scrawny folks take on weight—made puny children eat with relish and put roses in their cheeks.

They didn't know anything about vitamines in those days or that Cod Liver Oil was full of them but after bronchitis or a heavy cold or pneumonia or any illness that saps vitality they took it religiously. It was nasty and some folks say vile and it made the grown-ups gag, and the kids yell in protest and many times it turned delicate stomachs almost inside out—then there was trouble.

But now, thank goodness, all that has passed—and McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are praised and blessed from one end of this broad land of ours to the other.

Sugar coated they are and easy to take as candy—as any druggist will tell you and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents.

They are fine for old people too—those that are getting feeble and need something to keep their strength at par.

Thousands and thousands of boxes sold every day, but ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine. And remember this—we want to be fair—so we say if McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets don't help any thin, weak, run-down, tired-out man, woman or child to grow strong and well in 30 days—get your money back. Anderson, Larkin, Carnahan and Mathews Medicine store knows all about them, so do druggists anywhere in the U. S. A. and Canada.

Do You Believe In Health-Enough?
If so, Your whole family can have it, Always!

The Holland Health Heating System

After cleaning air, and warming it to the desired temperature, and moistening it properly, the Holland Heating System circulates it, besides—circulates it all through the house. And as the air is humidified, the ashes are dampened to eliminate dust, and the fuel steamed to get the maximum heating efficiency.

Do you know of any other heating system, AT ANY PRICE, that does all of that? Is it any wonder that hundreds of thousands of people are repeating so frequently that "Holland Furnaces Make Warm Friends"? And the average heating system costs much more than the Holland.

Why pay an unnecessarily high price for a heating plant? Why waste fuel and then not have enough warmth? And why breathe dry, stale air when circulated air, properly moistened, actually costs less?

The New Holland Humidifier

The Holland Heating System is equipped now with an air-moistener that is not only highly efficient, but is so extremely simple that it positively can not get out of order.

Everyone who has had the experience of going to California in February or March knows how it feels to leave bad weather and the train's stuffiness on the eastern side of the mountains, and glide down into the delightful atmosphere of the valleys where the air is balmy and fresh and inviting and so marvelously cheerful, that you just take big, deep breaths and smile even when you're all by yourself, just for the very joy of living.

The Holland is not a pipeless furnace. It is a complete pipe system, with cold air returns from rooms above the basement.

It is much this same feeling that you have, now, when you step into a Holland-heated home.

Recommended By Doctors

The Holland Health Heating System is highly recommended by physicians. Ask your own doctor. You and the family can and do catch colds and sore throats because of dry, stale air. So why not think seriously about such an important matter right away?

The Holland is sold on the easy payment plan, if you prefer, or there is a fair discount for cash.

You will enjoy the call of a Holland representative. He is a gentleman and one who knows his business.

FREE BOOK "The Whole House Comfortable and Clean" is an attractive book—a guide you should have in furnace buying. Send the coupon to us or get in touch with the nearest Holland Branch today.

Q. What are the sources of government income? Do the states contribute to it? A. K. W.

A. The principal sources of revenue of the United States are from excise duties on imports and exports, taxes upon liquors, tobacco, certain luxuries, such as theatre admissions and income tax, which is at present by far the greatest source of revenue. Q. Was a gold mine in Ontario given to Ann Arbor college, which has since proved very valuable? T. E. P.

A. The assistant secretary of the University of Michigan says: "I presume the person making the inquiry of your office means the University of Michigan. There is no Ann Arbor college. No gold mine in Ontario, worthless or otherwise, has been given to the University of Michigan, so far as we know. Some time ago the newspapers referred to some lands in the Garden River Indian Reserve in Ontario, which is near the Canadian Soo, as 'valuable copper lands.' This land was given to the university about fifteen years ago. The deed especially reserves gold and silver to the Province of Ontario. It undoubtedly contains copper ore, but this ore is, as far as we know, low grade and not suitable for mining under the present processes in commercial use."

COMMON SENSE IN SMALL DOSES

He who lives by the undrained pond
Waves a magic mosquito wand.

A heavy diet and a heavy head.

While it's mighty fine to be able to apply proper first aid, preventing the accident is of greater importance.

If your weight is two-twenty
And you look like a tub,
To accomplish reduction
Begin on the grup.

Most of us who do not perform manual labor could subsist very well on just one of the three big meals that we daily consume.

One well known authority recommends that the annual physical examination should include a careful examination for evidence of beginning cancer.

And another good way to prepare for war is to live so that we won't be rejected by the recruiting officer.

And it seemed such a pity,
So young and so fair—
When all that she needed
Was lots of fresh air.

Too many folks who keep up appearances don't pay their doctors.

Stuffy bed rooms in the night,
Windows down and fastened tight,
Things like this make doctors fight pneumonia.

The fellow who wants all he eats has a stomach that doesn't.

The prompt application of iodine or mercurochrome (a new substitute for iodine) to minor cuts and scratches, beats an application for a bed in the hospital.

Famous Racoon Is Caught.

"Old Ringtail," a giant racoon which has defied dogs and hunters near Hoopeston, Ill., for years, was finally caught recently by "Old Trailer," a hound owned by Carl Owens of Rossville, Ill. The hound overtook the coon in a cornfield and killed it after a desperate battle. Brought to bay numberless times in the last six years, it had always heretofore fought its way to freedom.

Taking the baby to the movie annoys both the child and the audience

Although phosphate deposits of the Djebel-Onk fields of Algeria were discovered 20 years ago, and are known to contain 1,000,000,000 metric tons, work never has been started because rival efforts of Algiers and Tunisia have prevented construction of a railroad to the field from either city.

All Druggists Great Offer To Chronic Rheumatic Sufferers

Money Back If Allenrhu Fails to Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.

"It does not matter to me whether you are disabled with cursed rheumatism or have only occasional twinges," says James H. Allen. "I know that Allenrhu, my own discovery, will stop the agony, do away with the gnawing pains and reduce the swollen joints."

"I know it will dissolve the uric acid deposits that have become deeply imbedded in joints and muscles and quickly drive every trace of rheumatism from your body. I know this because I was crippled for years and many times was unable to work, and Allenrhu made a well, robust, healthy man of me."

"I know because since I cured myself, hundreds have taken Allenrhu and speedily rid themselves of this agonizing disease."

Allenrhu is no laggard; it starts right in at once; it gets into the blood, searches out the poisonous uric acid deposit and in two days starts to drive the concentrated impurities that cause rheumatism, out of the body through the natural channels.

It's marvelous how quickly it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two days—even in cases where the suffering has been most painful all traces have disappeared in a few days.

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases.

With this understanding he has instructed all druggists everywhere to guarantee it in every instance.

They didn't know anything about vitamines in those days or that Cod Liver Oil was full of them but after bronchitis or a heavy cold or pneumonia or any illness that saps vitality they took it religiously. It was nasty and some folks say vile and it made the grown-ups gag, and the kids yell in protest and many times it turned delicate stomachs almost inside out—then there was trouble.

But now, thank goodness, all that has passed—and McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are praised and blessed from one end of this broad land of ours to the other.

Sugar coated they are and easy to take as candy—as any druggist will tell you and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents.

Do You Believe In Health-Enough?

If so, Your whole family can have it, Always!

The Holland System for Good Health

After cleaning air, and warming it to the desired temperature, and moistening it properly, the Holland Heating System circulates it, besides—circulates it all through the house. And as the air is humidified, the ashes are dampened to eliminate dust, and the fuel steamed to get the maximum heating efficiency.

Do you know of any other heating system, AT ANY PRICE, that does all of that? Is it any wonder that hundreds of thousands of people are repeating so frequently that "Holland Furnaces Make Warm Friends"? And the average heating system costs much more than the Holland.

The Holland is not a pipeless furnace. It is a complete pipe system, with cold air returns from rooms above the basement.

Why pay an unnecessarily high price for a heating plant? Why waste fuel and then not have enough warmth? And why breathe dry, stale air when circulated air, properly moistened, actually costs less?

The New Holland Humidifier

The Holland Heating System is equipped now with an air-moistener that is not only highly efficient, but is so extremely simple that it positively can not get out of order.

Everyone who has had the experience of going to California in February or March knows how it feels to leave bad weather and the train's stuffiness on the eastern side of the mountains, and glide down into the delightful atmosphere of the valleys where the air is balmy and fresh and inviting and so marvelously cheerful, that you just take big, deep breaths and smile even when you're all by yourself, just for the very joy of living.

It is much this same feeling that you have, now, when you step into a Holland-heated home.

Recommended By Doctors

The Holland Health Heating System is highly recommended by physicians. Ask your own doctor. You and the family can and do catch colds and sore throats because of dry, stale air. So why not think seriously about such an important matter right away?

The Holland is sold on the easy payment plan, if you prefer, or there is a fair discount for cash.

You will enjoy the call of a Holland representative. He is a gentleman and one who knows his business.

"Is it generally known that Mrs. Dascome is living?" Rossiter asked drily.

"Not yet. Mr. Dascome thinks that if it gets talked about it will make it more difficult to discover the criminals." Karesia's anger was rising. It was cruel to hate a man as Rossiter hated Dascome. Dascome had never harmed him; if there was a fault, it was hers.

"They've not been told at the hospital who she is, I suppose?"

Karesia controlled herself with difficulty. "I don't know how much they know of the circumstances—they call her Mrs. Bliss."

Rossiter had been speaking with face turned; now he looked at Karesia and his tone was different, genuinely affectionate and concerned. "Poor Kara! It's no fun, loving and then having to relinquish, is it? Don't I know! I'm darned glad this has happened, though—it'll be best for you in the end. It was horrible, the thought of your marrying him. No, don't go off with a wrong idea now! I'm not saying that because I'm jealous! You were right in what you said to me that night—we should never have been happy together. I know that now. I care enough for you yet, though, to rejoice over his not having taken you in. You saved yourself from that!"

Karesia did not grasp what he meant. "Saved myself?" she asked, too surprised and puzzled to be angry. "What do you mean by 'his not having taken me in'?"

Rossiter quieted suddenly. "Just that I'm glad it's all off, Kara. You won't marry him, and you're too straight to be led into anything else. We won't talk about it."

It occurred to Karesia what he had meant. She rose. "Did you mean to insinuate that John Dascome knew—that his wife was living?"

Rossiter had seen Karesia angry, defiant rather, but he had never seen her like this, literally white-hot, utterly and profoundly enraged. He possessed an inflammable temper; besides, his conviction was an honest one. "I mean exactly that!"

"Your hatred of him is beneath contempt," she said in level tones. "I am sorry I came into your house."

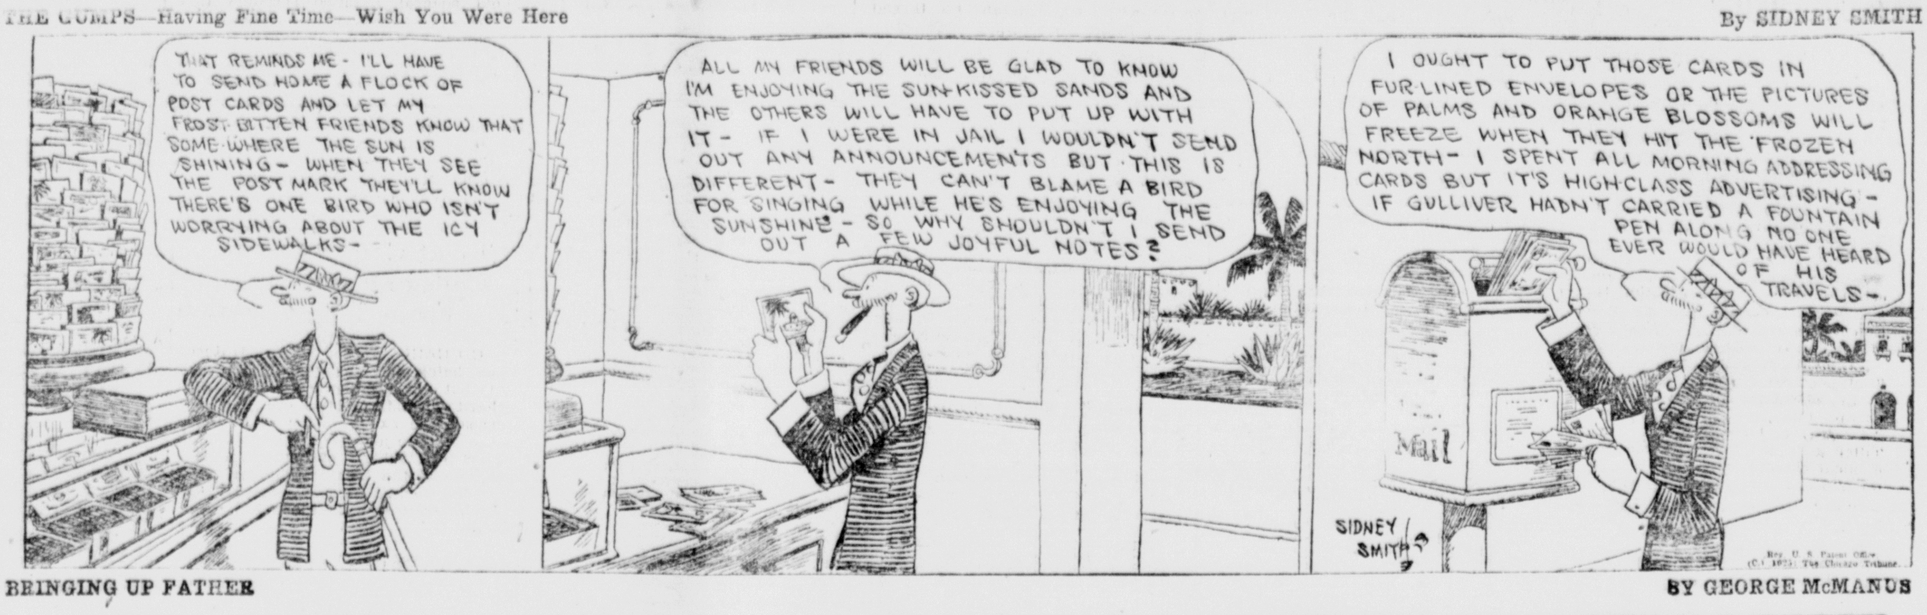

Rossiter grew white. He spoke very deliberately. "You have your conviction—I have mine. There were numbers who followed those trials who thought as I did. I was convinced that John Dascome was a very clever, utterly unscrupulous man who was capable of ridding himself of his wife and taking possession of her millions by any means that he thought safe. I think so still. Apparently, he did not murder his wife—I think he did something to her that was worse than murder, and, on the whole, I think that what he did was more in keeping with his character. I have no doubt that there was a 'plot,' but of his own making. It miscarried—he had not calculated on the presence of that boy, Jimmy Calhoun, that was all. I believe, as I always have believed, that Herbert Colt helped him in his bit of work, and there may have been another man in with them who, when he was afraid of being implicated, put that body in the other lake and did his best to finish John Dascome. Colt was in Proctorville on that sixth of April, doing Dascome's work, that was proved in the trial, but the other man was on the bank above the Dragon's Pool. It was he who took Elaine Dascome away, and I believe it was he who put that body in the lake—any one Dascome would employ would not be choice in his methods, he probably saw a chance at the ten millions, for himself, a huge ransom at any rate. He held off till the trials were over, then thought he could cope with John Dascome. He may have bled him, but I doubt it—I think that John Dascome saw to it that his wife 'incapacitated and unable to administer her own affairs,' or he may simply have been assured that she had been 'incapacitated' and rendered unrecognizable by the man from whom she either escaped or by whom she was turned loose to wander. I believe the latter—that the man was afraid to keep her, that his own plans miscarried.

"A mysterious crime is usually uncovered because of some strange chance, Kara. Chance, or purpose rather—for I believe this is not a haphazard world—brought Elaine Dascome out to this part of the country. Dascome learned of it, and Colt, 'the long-faced man, waiting and watching and peering' at that poor soul through the garage window, drove her to you. What happens then? Mr. Dascome appears promptly and takes your house. Then he furnishes you with her history—she was born half-witted—there is nothing in particular that can be done for her. I have no doubt that he told you it would be best to find some place for her where she could have care; he must have had some plan for getting her out of your house, cautiously, of course.

"Dascome wanted you, Kara, if he could get you. He didn't tell you his history, he left you to find it out, knowing perfectly well that you were growing more and more in love with him every day and that, when you did make the discovery, you would believe in him. His next step would have been to remove his wife from your home. Then you find that proof. It was a pretty severe shock to him, I fancy! There was nothing left for him to do but just what he has done. You wouldn't have stood for anything else. But he didn't dare to come out publicly with the truth, there are too many who would think just as I do. Do you suppose for a moment that Mrs. Ormsby will not reopen this thing—give him all the trouble she can? She hates John Dascome, and she loves money quite as dearly as he does. He plotted to get that ten million, in the first place, and he'll plot again to keep it, but I fancy his days and night haven't been pleasant. Give the thing to the public! Not until he has to—he's sparring for time. I'll wager he has Colt busy covering up their tracks. I didn't mean to say all this, and I'm sorry if I've hurt you, but I have a perfect right to my conviction. When I sat in that court room, I didn't hate John Dascome; in a way, I admired him—he was so clever and such a superb actor! I wouldn't have touched his hand though, not for a good deal! I have exactly the same feeling now, only, in addition, I utterly detest him for what he has done to you, scheming himself into your house and your heart—a fine, clean woman like you! I am not forcing my convictions on you, I have simply stated them."

ADA MAY HERE IN "LOLLIPOP"

Big Musical Comedy Comes to Ceramic on March 3.

A South Bend, Indiana, dramatic critic praises "Lollipop," the Henry W. Savage musical comedy production which comes to the Ceramic on March 3. He says:

Bright, pleasing and tuneful, "Lollipop" was danced and sung into the affections of playgoers at the Oliver theatre Tuesday night by Ada May and a chorus of London Tiller girls as the most entrancing musical comedy of the season. "Lollipop" is as sweet as its name.

Ada May, the youthful star, perhaps better known in these parts as Ada May Weeks, who several years ago was featured in "Listen Lester," has advanced during the intervening time into the foremost rank of musical comedy stars. Always a finished dancer who performed as though inspired by sheer delight, she now possesses a magnetic and tuneful voice, which is one of the features of "Lollipop." Certain it is that Miss Ada May now yields precedence to no one.

While other musical shows have had choruses, "Lollipop" is distinctive in being one of the very few whose chorus is featured along with the star. Ziegfeld's "Follies" compels admiration with its beautiful members who use their looks chiefly as a pleasing background for stately poses; but the London Tiller girls are not only pleasing to the eye but are living proof that a chorus can be made one of the animate entertaining features if the members are chosen for ability and trained carefully. The Tiller girls have gained fame because they are all finished dancers.

Dancing Especially Good.

"Lollipop" charms with tuneful music, unusually good dancing, considerable clean fun and a dainty libretto with just enough of a thread of a story to hold interest in itself. When one leaves the theatre, it is with a sense of exhilaration and enjoyment that lingers long after the final curtain has descended. More praise than that can not be accorded a musical comedy for not always are they an unstinted delight.

Vincent Youman wrote the score and Zelda Sears was responsible for the libretto. Ada May is surrounded by a capable cast, including Gus Shy, Walter Craig, Mark Smith, Florence Webber, Leonard Ceiley, Marie Stagg, Evelyn Bennett, Adore Andrews, Leonard Lea, Rita Townsend, Williams Bolds and William Gordon, all of whom ably contribute with song, dance and laughter. In addition to the 12 Tiller girls is a large ensemble of American dancers who ably uphold the honors of this side of the Atlantic.

Ada May Charms.

Dancing, all kinds of it, is one of the features of the show. Ada May has some of the most amusing eccentric dances seen here in a long time. Mention should also be made of the dancing "plumbers," Guy Shy and Walter Craig, the latter Ada May's partner in many specialties, who provides a wholesome supply of laughs. In fact, the entire company is unusually good.

It should be stated that Ada May, in addition to her dancing and singing ability, has become a comedienne of distinctive merit. She makes the most of every situation, without having to resort to too many "gags."

The libretto concerns one Laura Lamb, an orphan, otherwise known as "Lollipop" who is an inmate of an orphan asylum. She is adopted by a wealthy woman and forced to perform the work of a drudge. Suddenly she finds she is the heiress of her uncle, with a fabulous income at her command. The junior member of the "plumbing" firm, played by Mr. Craig, is in love with her, and needless to say, in the end they are happily mated. Incidentially, "Lollipop" is his nickname for the loveable Laura.

Every tune in the show is a lifting one, though there are few that the audience will hum for many days after they have left the theater. Probably the favorites with the Oliver audience were two, "Tie a String Around Your Finger," and "Take a Little One Step." There are several others that have a more decided appeal than the rest, but none that lasts quite as long as "Tie a String."

Good voices abound in the cast, an unusual distinction in our present day musical shows. While Ada May carries the burden of the songs she is not left to do so alone and there are probably twice as many numbers divided among the rest of the cast, but no other individual has an allotment as large she.

"Lollipop" remains at the Oliver for two performances today, a matinee and the evening performance, and if you desire real wholesome entertainment, you should see this, one of the real hits of the season in every city in which it has played.

Saying that it is now safer to fly than to motor in England, the Earl of Kinnoull has purchased an airplane to travel between his country place and London, and plans to teach his wife to operate the plane.

Circuit Court Rules College Frats Exempt From State Taxation

CHICAGO, Feb.—College fraternities, being "corporations not for profit, but organized and existing for charitable educational use and purposes," are exempt from State taxes, according to a decision of the Circuit court in a test case brought by Omega chapter of the Use Upsilon Fraternity at the University of Chicago.

The fraternity, taxed $1,500 on its building, refused to pay.

Many College Romances Last.

Miss Agnes Husband, dean of women at the University of Kansas, has come forward with the statement that college romances which result in marriage seldom end in divorce. Miss Husband does not agree with the popular misconception that the principal function of a dean of women in a college is to smash up college love affairs, but on the other hand maintains her function is partly to encourage marriage between college men and women.

Art.sity.

They never could have painted them,
the tables and the walls
That line my house and beautify its parlors and its halls—
The greatest of the painters; for a touch of charm is theirs
That only little children leave on cabinets and chairs.
And beauty lingers with them that is
more than artist's touch,
A beauty that is mine to claim and
cherish over-much.

A finger print has fallen here and
smudged the painted top;
A dinge is there where baby toe in
force had chanced to stop;
A chip is sadly missing where a block
of wood has hit;
And here a heel has landed down and
left the mark of it.
And there are untold beauties left by some one passing by
That never artist painted or could do
if he should try.

They never could have painted them
—the wizards of the brush;
For dinges in mahogany or tears in silk or plush
Are never made by artists; and 'tis
better thus, for oh!
We should have never caught their
charm or ever loved them so.
And as their marks from off the wood
can never quite depart,
So dreams of those who put them
there lie printed on my heart.

Certain it is that Miss Ada May now yields precedence to no one.

While other musical shows have had choruses, "Lollipop" is distinctive in being one of the very few whose chorus is featured along with the star. Ziegfeld's "Follies" compels admiration with its beautiful members who use their looks chiefly as a pleasing background for stately poses; but the London Tiller girls are not only pleasing to the eye but are living proof that a chorus can be made one of the animate entertaining features if the members are chosen for ability and trained carefully. The Tiller girls have gained fame because they are all finished dancers.

Dancing Especially Good.

"Lollipop" charms with tuneful music, unusually good dancing, considerable clean fun and a dainty libretto with just enough of a thread of a story to hold interest in itself. When one leaves the theatre, it is with a sense of exhilaration and enjoyment that lingers long after the final curtain has descended. More praise than that can not be accorded a musical comedy for not always are they an unstinted delight.

Vincent Youman wrote the score and Zelda Sears was responsible for the libretto. Ada May is surrounded by a capable cast, including Gus Shy, Walter Craig, Mark Smith, Florence Webber, Leonard Ceiley, Marie Stagg, Evelyn Bennett, Adore Andrews, Leonard Lea, Rita Townsend, Williams Bolds and William Gordon, all of whom ably contribute with song, dance and laughter. In addition to the 12 Tiller girls is a large ensemble of American dancers who ably uphold the honors of this side of the Atlantic.

Ada May Charms.

Dancing, all kinds of it, is one of the features of the show. Ada May has some of the most amusing eccentric dances seen here in a long time. Mention should also be made of the dancing "plumbers," Guy Shy and Walter Craig, the latter Ada May's partner in many specialties, who provides a wholesome supply of laughs. In fact, the entire company is unusually good.

It should be stated that Ada May, in addition to her dancing and singing ability, has become a comedienne of distinctive merit. She makes the most of every situation, without having to resort to too many "gags."

The libretto concerns one Laura Lamb, an orphan, otherwise known as "Lollipop" who is an inmate of an orphan asylum. She is adopted by a wealthy woman and forced to perform the work of a drudge. Suddenly she finds she is the heiress of her uncle, with a fabulous income at her command. The junior member of the "plumbing" firm, played by Mr. Craig, is in love with her, and needless to say, in the end they are happily mated. Incidentally, "Lollipop" is his nickname for the loveable Laura.

Every tune in the show is a lifting one, though there are few that the audience will hum for many days after they have left the theater. Probably the favorites with the Oliver audience were two, "Tie a String Around Your Finger," and "Take a Little One Step." There are several others that have a more decided appeal than the rest, but none that lasts quite as long as "Tie a String."

Good voices abound in the cast, an unusual distinction in our present day musical shows. While Ada May carries the burden of the songs she is not left to do so alone and there are probably twice as many numbers divided among the rest of the cast, but no other individual has an allotment as large she.

"Lollipop" remains at the Oliver for two performances today, a matinee and the evening performance, and if you desire real wholesome entertainment, you should see this, one of the real hits of the season in every city in which it has played.

Saying that it is now safer to fly than to moter in England, the Earl of Kinnoull has purchased an airplane to travel between his country place and London, and plans to teach his wife to operate the plane.

Circuit Court Rules College Frats Exempt From State Taxation

CHICAGO, Feb.—College fraternities, being "corporations not for profit, but organized and existing for charitable educational use and purposes," are exempt from State taxes, according to a decision of the Circuit court in a test case brought by Omega chapter of the Use Upsilon Fraternity at the University of Chicago.

The fraternity, taxed $1,500 on its building, refused to pay.

Many College Romances Last.

Miss Agnes Husband, dean of women at the University of Kansas, has come forward with the statement that college romances which result in marriage seldom end in divorce. Miss Husband does not agree with the popular misconception that the principal function of a dean of women in a college is to smash up college love affairs, but on the other hand maintains her function is partly to encourage marriage between college men and women.

They never could have painted them,

That line my house and beautify its

touch of charm is theirs
That only little children leave on cabinets and chairs.
And beauty lingers with them that is
more than artist's touch,
A beauty that is mine to claim and
cherish over-much.

A finger print has fallen here and
smudged the painted top;
A dinge is there where baby toe in

A chip is sadly missing where a block

And there are untold beauties left by some one passing by
That never artist painted or could do
if he should try.

They never could have painted them
—the wizards of the brush;
For dinges in mahogany or tears in

Are never made by artists; and 'tis

We should have never caught their

So dreams of those who put them

Walter Johnson Reported to Be Nat Club Holdout

Menke's Daily Sport Letter

By Frank G. Menke

(Copyright, 1925, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The hoi polloi which hunted around for the Golden Fleece never concentrated more feverish energy into the task than baseball leaders now are doing in questing for third sackers and backstops.

Only a few seasons ago the world seemed to be cluttered up with great guardians of the difficult corner, and with receivers who deserved ranking with Ewing, Flint, Bennet, Kling, Archer, Bresnahan and other satellites of long gone days.

But now—how vastly changed is everything. For, of a sudden, the Major leagues are depleted of catching stars and within the 16 clubs of today, there are only a few third basemen who can be regarded as above the ordinary.

Groh, Traynor, Dugan, Hale, Blenge—when you've mentioned them you have embraced about all who really are stars. Pinelli, of the Reds, is a good man and he's improving. But it is unlikely that he has enough native ability ever to blaze a trial into immortality.

Kamm is a worth while citizen—but if he were placed on the auction block he wouldn't command anything grand in the matter of offers. Lutzke is a brilliant fielder who cannot hit. Stock is growing old—and slowing up. Forberg, Wrightstone, Forgaue, Padgett, Jones—they do well. But there isn't one of that group who could refain a regular job if a rookie came along with the fundamental greatness of a Collins, a Bradley, a Cross, a Groh, a Gagan or a Traynor.

Those men, therefore, are big leaguers today not because they are of greatness or because they measure up to the definite standard but because there's an appaling scarcity of third sackers who are worthy of hire.

It seems but yesterday when Ray Schack was regarded as one of the greatest catchers of all time; when Walter Schmidt was a wonder of wonders; when Steve O'Neil was lauded in song and story; when Ivy Wingo was performing brilliantly; when Hank Severeid was a marvel; when Wallie Schang was on his heydey and Frank Snyder was a great youngster.

Then every club in each circuit semed to have not merely one great backstop but a youngster or two who seemed able to stop behind the plate and perform in ways that were glorious. In those days the catching department of each club was the least of a manager's worry. Now it is the greatest.

Schalk, O'Neill, Schang, Snyder, Severed—all have slipped near to the zero hour of baseball lifetime. They've grown old in the game, they are bowing under the impress of the years. They have slowed—and yet they still remain because a whim of baseball fate has ruled that just now there shall be none to take their places.

In other years, managers ever assumed that a kindly fortune would care for them; that it wasn't necessary for them either to seek or to attempt development of young catchers. of greatness would just happen along.

Now they realize the folly of that thought. They've scoured the bushes for backstopping youngsters, found many—but only a few could stand the big league gaff. As elderly and as slow as the Schalks, the O'Neills and the Severeds may be, they are still a dozen jumps better than most of the catching youngsters who have been given tryouts through the past two seasons.

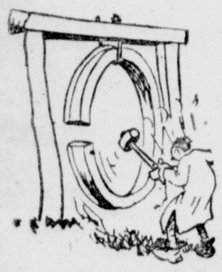

There aren't in the big leagues today more than six young catchers who can be reckoned as really worth while. The Dodgers have a star in Taylor; the Cubs have a peppery fighting kid in Hartnett; the Pirates have a great one in Gooch. Beyond those are Bassler of the Tigers, Henline of the Phillies, Hargraves of the Reds. But the latter trio are making good only after their second trials—and all are far beyond the initial voting age.

So in this era of baseball, the managers have sidetracked the old slogan of "Pitchers—and more pitchers" and have demanded of their scouts:

Burning Question of the Day Is Did Dundee Duck This Battler?

Acting on the request of French boxing authorities or on facts printed in news dispatches boxing officials of a score of states and cities have barred Johnny Dundee from appearing within their jurisdictions until he explains satisfactorily why he failed to go through with his battle with Fred Bretonnel, French lightweight champ, in Paris. Dundee "ran out" of the bout to hasten home, ostensibly to claim the world title when Benny Leonard retired.

RICKEY SAYS CARDS NEED AN INFIELDER

St. Louis Manager Makes no Pennant Claims for His Team This Season.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Show Branch Rickey the left side of an infield and a pitcher or so who can win more than ten games and he will show you a ball club. At least, that is how Branch himself views the matter.'

"That's all I need," he said, with the manner of one who mentions a scarcity of sleeve garters. "With Bottomley on first base and Hornsby at second, is it hardly necessary to comment on the right side of the infield. They are the best two-man combination in baseball.

"My pitchers will have to do better. Allan Sothoron was the best last year and he won only ten games. I can't go anywhere with a staff like that."

More Experimenting.

In brief, Rickey will do more experimenting than the bright man who is taking a post-graduate course in a barber school. For third base, he has Lester Bell, who hit .365 in the American Association last year. But Lester seems to have only a vague idea of the location of first base when making a throw and may have to be shifted to shortstop.

In the event he must do battle with one Cooney. And as Rickey says: "May the best man win.'

Howard Freigau, ex-water boy, and George Toporcer, the man behind the spectacles, are candidates for third base. Toporcer is a fine utility man, but seems to be a trifle short of making the grade at steady employment. Freigau, like Bell, is inclined to throw them far away. Tomy Thevenow, ex-Syracuse short-stop, probably will not linger long. He can't hit the size of his neckband.

Outside of Sothoron, the Cards have prospective winners in the pitching averages, but their actual performance is open to doubt. Rated in the order of their importance, they are:

Cardinal Pitchers.

Walter "Dusty" Mails, who left-handed the Indians into a pennant with seven straight victories in 1929. He had a big year with Oakland and is said to be on his way back.

Flint Rhem, strike-out king of the Western Association last year.

Clyde Day, who pitched and won five double headers for Muskoges in 1924.

Southpaw Hallahan, of Kalmazoo; Shields, from Nova Scotia; Wigington, from New Haven, and Allyn Stout, a St. Louis semi-pro.

Holdovers on the staff are Eddie Dyer, Lee Dickerman, Bill Shordel, Jesse Haines, Johnny Stuart and Sothoron.

Of outfielders there is quantity without particular quality. The list includes Ray Blades, Heinie Mueller, Jack Smith, Roscoe Holm, Chick Hafey, a slugger from Houston; Taylor Douthit, from St. Joe; Ralph Shiners, ex-Giant from Toledo, and Charley Hughes, a callow young man from the University of Kentucky.

Mike Gonzales remains as dean of the catching corps, which shows not a new face. Charley Niebergall, Erne Vick and Al. Boel make up the rest of the staff.

Wheeling Fighter Arrives in City Looking for Bout

The city today boasts an addition to its pugilistic ranks, which at the present time happen to be well thinned out, with the arrival of one Al. Williams, better known in some places as Battling Reno.

Williams' home is in Sistersville, W. Va. During the past year he has been boxing out of Wheeling. In recent months he has been mingling with the lightweights successfully, Bobby Stafford, of Tacoma, Wash., and Bob Jones, of Pittsburgh, being included among his recent opponents.

Efforts are being made to steam up a scrap for Williams under auspices of a local club, it is said, the bout depending upon the success of promoters in obtaining a suitable opponent.

Stribling to Meet Delaney In Garden Go

Agrees to Fight Slattery's Substitute on Feb. 26.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—With the withdrawal of Jimmy Slattery from the negotiations, owing to his desire for a brief rest, the prospects today were that Jack Delaney would be substituted for the Buffalo entry against Young Stribling in the proposed bout at Madison Square Garden on February 26. The match will be closed this afternoon if Stribbling can extricate himself from a previous ring engagement to meet Warnie Smith of Oklahoma, who is laid up in a local hospital with a broken jaw. The Stribling-Smith bout was to have been held in Milwaukee on February 27.

Pirates to Try Out Semi-pro Hurler of Tri-state District

Alf Schmidt, semi-pro hurler and ex-University of Pittsburgh pitcher, who at various times in recent years did slab duty for the former Cord Tires and Man O'War teams, has been given a contract by the Pirates and will accompany the club to the Pacific Coast.

Schmidt, who possesses one of the best records in Tri-State semi-pro and college baseball, is 22 years old and a right hander. He weighs 170 pounds.

Schmidt attracted notice when he won four no-hit games for Allegheny high school. In 1921 he signed with Bellevue. He also hurled for Jeanette, Wheeling Bauers, Chester and East Liverpool clubs and others in the district.

Mountaineer Squad Is Due For Shakeup

Shift is Rumored After Team Suffers Eighth Reverse.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 17.—West Virginia cagers have dropped eight straight games and unless they mend their ways the string of reverses will reach ten this week when they meet Washington and Jefferson college at Washington, Pa., Friday and Grove City college at Grove City, Pa., Saturday evening.

The Mountaineer losing streak is a month old, their last victory having been registered at the expense of the University of Pittsburgh on January 16.

As the defeats mount the sport curb here is alive with gossip and today there were strong rumors of another change in the lineup. After six games had been dropped Coach Stadsvold shifted Oliker, a guard, to forward for Graham and placed Ed Morrison alongside Natus Rohrbaugh. it was a wise move. Morrison has more than made good at guard and Rohrbaugh's play has also improved. The offense, however, is still shaky and if Stadsvold makes a change this week it will be at the forwards.

The Murrin brothers, Clarence and Julian, have done well when injected into games this season and many of the team's followers believe that if they are given an opportunity to start they will make good. Although in the Wesleyan game last Friday for only a few minutes Julian Murrin did some fine work and scored the only points made by West Virginia in the last eleven minutes of play. The senior Murrin, Clarence, has acquired the aggressiveness he lacked last year and when the Mountaineers take the floor against the Presidents at Washington this week he may be at one of the forward posts.

At no time this year has Fred Funk, veteran forward, shown the caging ability that made him so valuable in 1923 and 1924. His friends believe that a short rest will enable him to windup his collegiate career with a burst of his old form.

Columbiana Quint Defeats Fairfield Squad Decisively

COLUMBIANA, Feb. 17.—Columbiana High school broke even in their game Saturday evening at Fairfield Centralized High, the suburban girls winning 22 to 15, while the Columbiana boys won to the tune of 29 to 15, the second team playing the first and last quarters. Burkle starred for the first team in the second and third quarters. The local boys have now won sixteen of their twenty games played.

Fairfield girls ran away with the game in the first half, the low ceiling and small floor greatly hampering the Columbiana lassies. However, they staged a comeback in the second half and held their opponents about even. Capt. Gleckler and Elizabeth Orr played best for C. H. S.

Only one game is booked for local teams this week, Lisbon being played at Lisbon Friday night. Salem was to have been played at Salem on Saturday night but that was cancelled by Salem authorities on account of the smallpox scare there. This game may be played later if the situation should improve within the next few days.

Veteran Slab Star Said to Value His Efforts At $25,000

Muddy Ruel, Peckinpaugh and McNeeley Also Listed Among Those Who Would Make Overtures on Griffith's Pocketbook.

By David J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—According to the best and most recent advices, Clark Griffith is beginning to pay the first installment on the price of success, an ante that all pennant winners of recent years, particularly the New York Yankees have been forced to meet.

The good word from the fried ham belt is to be the effect that Walter Johnson has come out in the open as a holdout for the first time in his career and wants $25,000, no less, for another season under the senatorial yoke. Walter is merely one of several of Mr. Griffith's young men obsessed with expensive ideas.

Muddy Ruel, star catcher; Roger Peckinpaugh, short-stop, and Earl McNeely, outfielder, are among those who live only to harrass Mr. Griffith with thoughts of foreclosure of the mortgage on the old homestead. Even Stanley Harris, the boy manager, put the financial slug on Clark at a very early moment and possibly it was Harris' initial success that inspired the others if a ball player ever needs monetary inspiration.

It is the old Army game, to wit: you got yours, now give me mine.

And, as such, it is entirely justified, according to the standards of human instinct. Yet, if you happen to be looking out and not in, through the paymaster's window, the justification might seem slightly out of focus.

Johnson, for example, is not worth $25,000 as he stands today. He is nearly at the end of his rope and might not last another season as a headliner. So much for the commercial side of it. But taking the matter from its human angle, it is a fact that Johnson never got the money he deserved during the years he pitched his arm off for Griffith. We wants it now, particularly since his cherished ambition to buy a minor league club has been thwarted.

It is understood that Johnson has become slightly miffed because Griffith didn't rush to the rescue with assistance in the project. However, one doesn't buy the cleaver for the gent with designs upon one's right arm.

Peckinpaugh's case is similar to Johnson's. Roger came through for Griffith last season after several years of mediocrity. But his future hangs in the balance. He also is slightly aged, and no one knows whether his breakdown in the last world's series will be repeated this season.

He, of course, is entitled to an increase. So is Muddy Ruel, and in fact every regular on a championship team. The size of the increase forms the difficulty. Ruel should get a good one. Never a heavily paid young man, he developed into what many critics hailed as the best catcher in baseball in 1924 and is just about due to collect dividends.

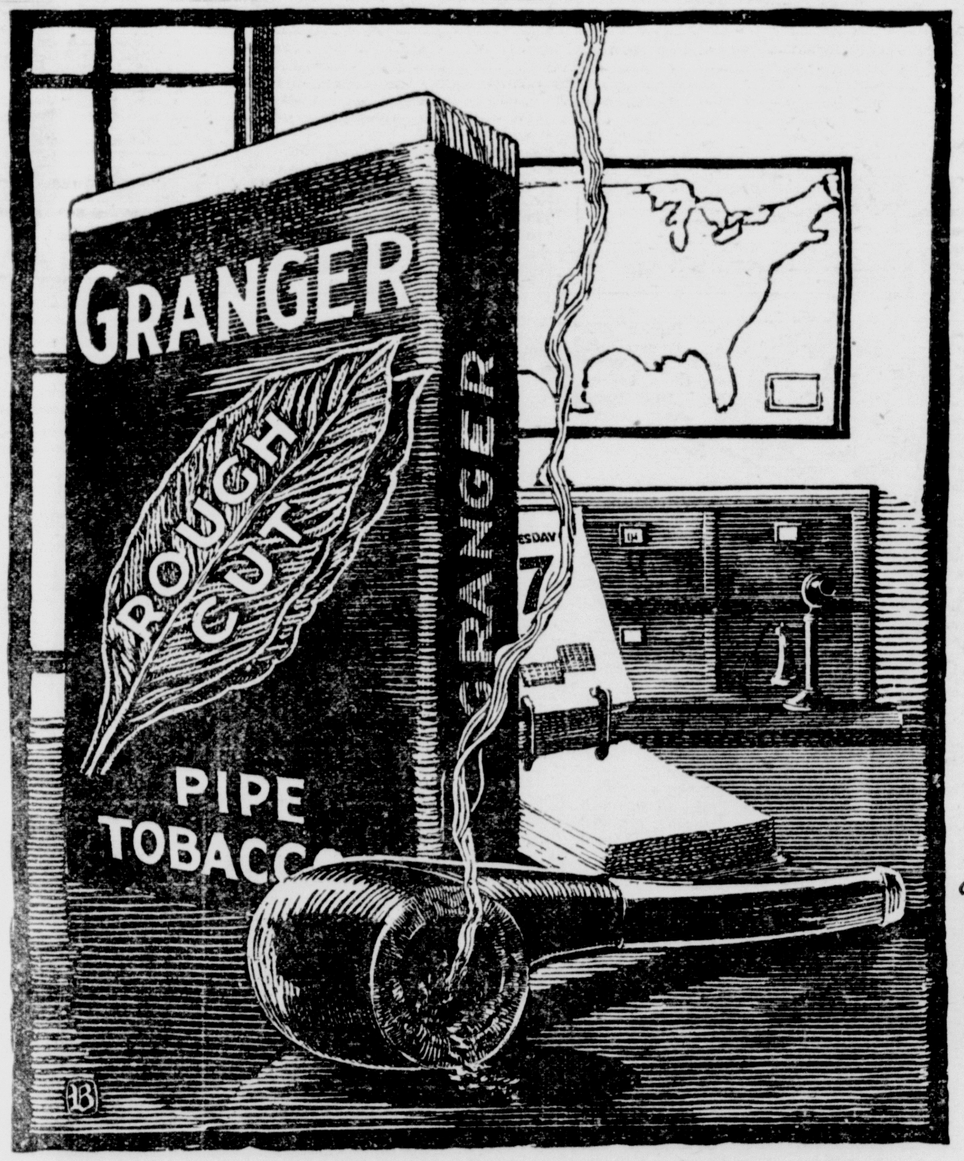

As for McNeeley, it looks as though he has placed an immoderate value on a series-winning base hit that only became finite because a convenient stone caused a bad bound.

Dundee "ran out" of the bout to hasten home, ostensibly to claim the world title when Benny Leonard retired.

RICKEY SAYS CARDS NEED AN INFIELDER

St. Louis Manager Makes no Pennant Claims for His Team This Season.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Show Branch Rickey the left side of an infield and a pitcher or so who can win more than ten games and he will show you a ball club. At least, that is how Branch himself views the matter.

"That's all I need," he said, with the manner of one who mentions a scarcity of sleeve garters. "With Bottomley on first base and Hornsby at second, is it hardly necessary to comment on the right side of the infield. They are the best two-man combination in baseball.

"My pitchers will have to do better. Allan Sothoron was the best last year and he won only ten games. I can't go anywhere with a staff like that."

More Experimenting.

In brief, Rickey will do more experimenting than the bright man who is taking a post graduate course in a barber school. For third base, he has Lester Bell, who hit .365 in the American Association last year. But Lester seems to have only a vague idea of the location of first base when making a throw and may have to be shifted to shortstop.

In the event he must do battle with one Cooney. And as Rickey says: "May the best man win."

Howard Freigau, ex-water boy, and George Toporcer, the man behind the spectacles, are candidates for third base. Toporcer is a fine utility man, but seems to be a trifle short of making the grade at steady employment. Freigau, like Bell, is inclined to throw them far away. Tony Thevenow, ex-Syracuse shortstop, probably will not linger long. He can't hit the size of his neckband.

Outside of Sothoron, the Cards have prospective winners in the pitching averages, but their actual performance is open to doubt. Rated in the order of their importance, they are:

Cardinal Pitchers.

Walter "Dusty" Mails, who left-handed the Indians into a pennant with seven straight victories in 1920. He had a big year with Oakland and is said to be on his way back.

Flint Rhem, strike-out king of the Western Association last year.

Clyde Day, who pitched and won five double headers for Muskogee in 1924.

Southpaw Hallahan, of Kalmazoo; Shields, from Nova Scotia; Wigington, from New Haven, and Allyn Stout, a St. Louis semi-pro.

Veldovers on the staff are Eddie Dyer, Lee Dickerman, Bill Shordel, Jesse Haines, Johnny Stuart and Sothoron.

Of outfielders there is quantity without particular quality. The list includes Ray Blades, Heinie Mueller, Jack Smith, Roscoe Holm, Chick Hafey, a slugger from Houston; Taylor Douthit, from St. Joe; Ralph Shiners, ex-Giant from Toledo, and Charley Hughes, a callow young man from the University of Kentucky.

Mike Gonzales remains as dean of the catching corps, which shows not a new face. Charley Niebergall, Erne Vick and Al. Beel make up the rest of the staff.

Mountaineer Squad Is Due For Shakeup

Shift is Rumored After Team Suffers Eighth Reverse.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 17.—West Virginia cagers have dropped eight straight games and unless they mend their ways the string of reverses will reach ten this week when they meet Washington and Jefferson college at Washington, Pa., Friday and Grove City college at Grove City, Pa., Saturday evening.

The Mountaineer losing streak is a month old, their last victory having been registered at the expense of the University of Pittsburgh on January 16.

As the defeats mount the sport curb here is alive with gossip and today there were strong rumors of another change in the lineup. After six games had been dropped Coach Stadsvold shifted Oliker, a guard, to forward for Graham and placed Ed Morrison alongside Natus Rohrbaugh. It was a wise move. Morrison has more than made good at guard and Rohrbaugh's play has also improved. The offense, however, is still shaky and if Stadsvold makes a change this week it will be at the forwards.

The Murrin brothers, Clarence and Julian, have done well when injected into games this season and many of the team's followers believe that if they are given an opportunity to start they will make good. Although in the Wesleyan game last Friday for only a few minutes Julian Murrin did some fine work and scored the only points made by West Virginia in the last eleven minutes of play. The senior Murrin, Clarence, has acquired the aggressiveness he lacked last year and when the Mountaineers take the floor against the Presidents at Washington this week he may be at one of the forward posts.

At no time this year has Fred Funk, veteran forward, shown the caging ability that made him so valuable in 1923 and 1924. His friends believe that a short rest will enable him to windup his collegiate career with a burst of his old form.

Columbiana Quint Defeats Fairfield Squad Decisively

COLUMBIANA, Feb. 17.—Columbiana High school broke even in their game Saturday evening at Fairfield Centralized High, the suburban girls winning 22 to 15, while the Columbiana boys won to the tune of 29 to 15, the second team playing the first and last quarters. Burkle starred for the first team in the second and third quarters. The local boys have now won sixteen of their twenty games played.

Fairfield girls ran away with the game in the first half, the low ceiling and small floor greatly hampering the Columbiana lassies. However, they staged a comeback in the second half and held their opponents about even. Capt. Gleckler and Elizabeth Orr played best for C. H. S.

Only one game is booked for local teams this week, Lisbon being played at Lisbon Friday night. Salem was to have been played at Salem on Saturday night but that was cancelled by Salem authorities on account of the smallpox scare there. This game may be played later if the situation should improve within the next few days.

Veteran Slab Star Said to Value His Efforts At $25,000

Muddy Ruel, Peckinpaugh and McNeeley Also Listed Among Those Who Would Make Overtures on Griffith's Pocketbook.

By David J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—According to the best and most recent advices, Clark Griffith is beginning to pay the first installment on the price of success, an ante that all pennant winners of recent years, particularly the New York Yankees have been forced to meet.

The good word from the fried ham belt is to be the effect that Walter Johnson has come out in the open as a holdout for the first time in his career and wants $25,000, no less, for another season under the senatorial yoke. Walter is merely one of several of Mr. Griffith's young men obsessed with expensive ideas.

Muddy Ruel, star catcher; Roger Peckinpaugh, short-stop, and Earl McNeely, outfielder, are among those who live only to harrass Mr. Griffith with thoughts of foreclosure of the mortgage on the old homestead. Even Stanley Harris, the boy manager, put the financial slug on Clark at a very early moment and possibly it was Harris' initial success that inspired the others if a ball player ever needs monetary inspiration.

It is the old Army game, to wit: you got yours, now give me mine.

And, as such, it is entirely justified, according to the standards of human instinct. Yet, if you happen to be looking out and not in, through the paymaster's window, the justification might seem slightly out of focus.

Johnson, for example, is not worth $25,000 as he stands today. He is nearly at the end of his rope and might not last another season as a headliner. So much for the commercial side of it. But taking the matter from its human angle, it is a fact that Johnson never got the money he deserved during the years he pitched his arm off for Griffith. We wants it now, particularly since his cherished ambition to buy a minor league club has been thwarted.

It is understood that Johnson has become slightly miffed because Griffith didn't rush to the rescue with assistance in the project. However, one doesn't buy the cleaver for the gent with designs upon one's right arm.

Peckinpaugh's case is similar to Johnson's. Roger came through for Griffith last season after several years of mediocrity. But his future hangs in the balance. He also is slightly aged, and no one knows whether his breakdown in the last world's series will be repeated this season.

He, of course, is entitled to an increase. So is Muddy Ruel, and in fact every regular on a championship team. The size of the increase forms the difficulty. Ruel should get a good one. Never a heavily paid young man, he developed into what many critics hailed as the best catcher in baseball in 1924 and is just about due to collect dividends.

As for McNeeley, it looks as though he has placed an immoderate value on a series-winning base hit that only became finite because a convenient stone caused a bad bound.

Rock Kansas Trims New Orleans Boxer But Fractures Hand

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 17—Rocky Kansas, Buffalo, gave Redcap Wilson of New Orleans, a bad beating in six rounds here last night but suffered a broken hand that may keep him out of the lightweight tourney. Bob Tracey, Buffalo, defeated Pal Moran of New Orleans in six rounds.

Wheeling Fighter Arrives in City Looking for Bout

The city today boasts an addition to its pugilistic ranks, which at the present time happen to be well thinned out, with the arrival of one Al. Williams, better known in some places as Battling Reno.

Williams' home is in Sistersville, W. Va. During the past year he has been boxing out of Wheeling. In recent months he has been mingling with the lightweights successfully, Bobby Stafford, of Tacoma, Wash., and Bob Jones, of Pittsburgh, being included among his recent opponents.

Efforts are being made to steam up a scrap for Williams under auspices of a local club, it is said, the bout depending upon the success of promoters in obtaining a suitable opponent.

Stribling to Meet Delaney In Garden Go

Agrees to Fight Slattery's Substitute on Feb. 26.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—With the withdrawal of Jimmy Slattery from the negotiations, owing to his desire for a brief rest, the prospects today were that Jack Delaney would be substituted for the Buffalo entry against Young Stribling in the proposed bout at Madison Square Garden on February 26. The match will be closed this afternoon if Stribbling can extricate himself from a previous ring engagement to meet Warnie Smith of Oklahoma, who is laid up in a local hospital with a broken jaw. The Stribling-Smith bout was to have been held in Milwaukee on February 27.

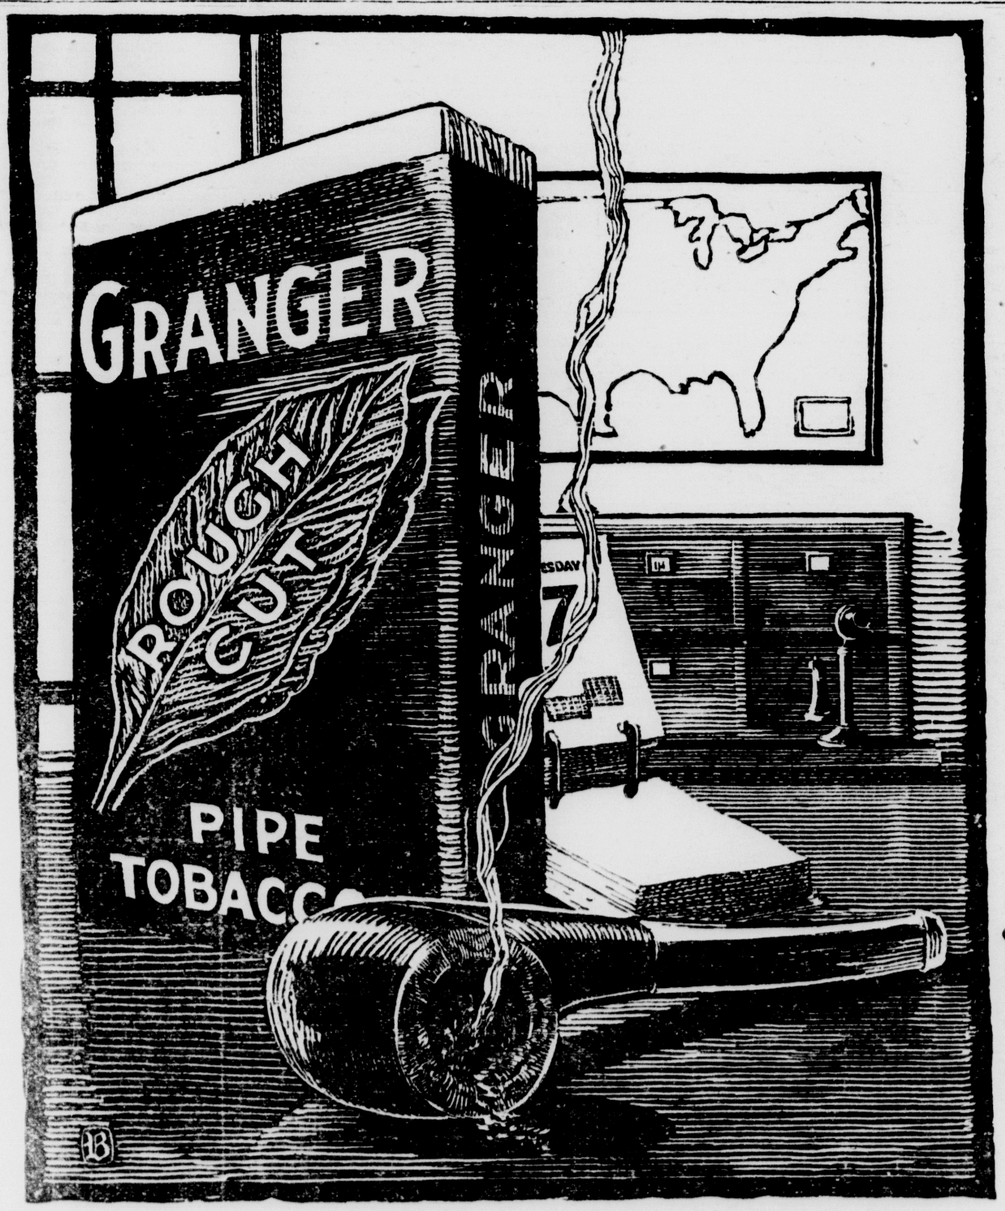

Pirates to Try Out Semi-pro Hurler of Tri-state District

Alf Schmidt, semi-pro hurler and ex-University of Pittsburgh pitcher, who at various times in recent years did slab duty for the former Cord Tires and Man O'War teams, has been given a contract by the Pirates and will accompany the club to the Pacific Coast.

Schmidt, who possesses one of the best records in Tri-State semi-pro and college baseball, is 22 years old and a right hander. He weighs 170 pounds.

Schmidt attracted notice when he won four no-hit games for Allegheny high school. In 1921 he signed with Bellevue. He also hurled for Jeanette, Wheeling Bauers, Chester and East Liverpool clubs and others in the district.

Speedsters Await First 1925 Event

Altoona Saucer Being Polished Off for June 13 Race.

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 17.—Spring is here even though the proverbial first robin hasn't yet appeared. Although four months must pass before the first of the season's two great events, squads of workmen have already started preparing the famous Altoona speedway for the sensational racing classics of 1925.

Waiting only for the first early thaws, carpenters are swarming over the huge grandstands and mammoth mile-and-a-quarter broad saucer renewing and repairing everything in readiness for the starter's flag of the first championship event on Saturday, June 13. Snorting tractors and steam rollers are working from morning until night that when race day dawns the renowned bowl here will be the finest in the history of this most thrilling of sports.

Although the wild swept turns of the massive racing course are still banked deep in snow, the fans already are braving the weather to watch the preparations. Interest has been aroused to the highest pitch since the track was built as automotive engineers predict that the remarkable record established at the new Culver City, Calif., track by Bennie Hill of 126 miles an hour will be shattered here as the Altoona saucer has been firmly established as the world's fastest speedway. Every new record made at the other four great bowls of the country has been beaten here in past seasons.

When Fred J. Wagner, internationally known starter of world's championship classics, lines up the cars on June 13 he will face the greatest roster of racing pilots ever entered in one event. In addition to the stellar drivers of the American continent, headed by Tommy Milton, Ralph De Palma, Earl Cooper, Bennie Hill and others, the management is now arranging with European representatives for the appearance of the most noted of French, Italian, German and English cars and drivers.

With the settlement of the reparations question, the German racing car manufacturers can ship their mounts to this country without the risk of seizure that withheld them in recent years. None dared the national barrier last season because four machines, valued at more than $100,000, were virtually interned here in 1923 when they couldn't pass back through the French occupation zones without heavy risks.

Oxford-Cambridge Track Stars Will Run in U. S. Meets

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 17.—The joint track teams of Oxford and Cambridge universities will journey to this country and will appear in meets with Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Cornell.

The English athletes will meet the combined teams of Harvard and Yale at the Harvard stadium, and the following week they will meet Princeton and Cornell, probably in or near New York.

The exact dates of the meets have as yet not been determined, but it is believed the meet with Harvard and Yale will come early in July. The time depends on the dates of their final examinations, which have not yet been announced.

It is expected that the events to be contested will be the same as those at the last meet between Oxford and Cambridge and Harvard and Yale, held at Wembley in July, 1923.

These were twelve in number, as follows:

Flat races: 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards, one mile and two miles.

Hurdle races: 120 yards, high; 220 yards, low.

Field events: Shot, pole vault, broad jump, high jump.

First places only will count in the scoring, except in case of a tie, when second place and, if necessary, third places will be counted.

Lutherans to Meet Presbyterian Five In League Contest

The Lutherans and Chester Presbyterians will clash in a Sunday school league engagement this evening at 8:15 on the high school court.

The Lutherans easily defeated the Chester five earlier in the season but will have something more difficult to reckon with tonight, inasmuch as the Presbyterians have become stronger and will make a more determined bid for victory.

The two teams are tied with the Park Boulevards for third place in the circuit. Both are confident of winning.

The Lutheran Juniors and the M. E. Juniors will meet in the preliminary at 7:15.

Following the two Sunday school league contests, a third engagement will be put on by the Power class five of the M. E. church and the Trotter Chevrolets.

The Park Boulevards will tackle the M. E. five and the U. P. quint will meet the Presbyterians in contests carded for the M. E. court These games were postponed from Monday night.

Hoppe Consistent And Goes Into Lead Over Bob Cannefax

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Having uncovered the best billiards either champion has shown since the start of the match in winning the third and fourth blocks, Willie Hoppe, balkline king, today made ready for the fifth block of his three cushion match with Champion Bob Cannefax entrenched behind a lead of 240 to 227. The sudden shift in honors from Cannefax to Hoppe created a small sensation in billiard ranks and the Friars' Club was prepared to play host to a capacity house for the fifth and sixth blocks this afternoon and tonight.

The match is to go six hundred points and, unofficially, will decide the championship of the world at the angle game.

Hoppe trailed by 120 to 100 when he entered the third block yesterday, but playing consistently and even brilliantly at times he won the third block, 65 to 60, and in the evening fairly buried Cannefax under a score of 75 to 47.

The balkline champion abandoned his conservative, safety first game of the first two blocks and went after every point without hesitancy. His best run was six. Cannefax had a seven but lacked Hoppe's consistency.

Speedsters Await First 1925 Event

Altoona Saucer Being Polished Off for June 13 Race.

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 17.—Spring is here even though the proverbial first robin hasn't yet appeared. Although four months must pass before the first of the season's two great events, squads of workmen have already started preparing the famous Altoona speedway for the sensational racing classics of 1925.

Waiting only for the first early thaws, carpenters are swarming over the huge grandstands and mammoth mile-and-a-quarter broad saucer renewing and repairing everything in readiness for the starter's flag of the first championship event on Saturday, June 13. Snorting tractors and steam rollers are working from morning until night that when race day dawns the renowned bowl here will be the finest in the history of this most thrilling of sports.

Although the wild swept turns of the massive racing course are still banked deep in snow, the fans already are braving the weather to watch the preparations. Interest has been aroused to the highest pitch since the track was built as automotive engineers predict that the remarkable record established at the new Culver City, Calif., track by Bennie Hill of 126 miles an hour will be shattered here as the Altoona saucer has been firmly established as the world's fastest speedway. Every new record made at the other four great bowls of the country has been beaten here in past seasons.

When Fred J. Wagner, internationally known starter of world's championship classics, lines up the cars on June 13 he will face the greatest roster of racing pilots ever entered in one event. In addition to the stellar drivers of the American continent, headed by Tommy Milton, Ralph DePalma, Earl Cooper, Bennie Hill and others, the management is now arranging with European representatives for the appearance of the most noted of French, Italian, German and English cars and drivers.

With the settlement of the reparations question, the German racing car manufacturers can ship their mounts to this country without the risk of seizure that withheld them in recent years. None dared the national barrier last season because four machines, valued at more than $100,000, were virtually interned here in 1923 when they couldn't pass back through the French occupation zones without heavy risks.

Last Night's Fights

At Kenton—Maxie Holub, Akron, drew with Mutt Snyder, Dayton, ten rounds. Frankie Bobb, Toledo, defeated Tommy Warren, Lima, eight rounds. Young Maxwell, Lima, scored technical knockout over Young Protzman, Lima, in second round. Young Irwin, Columbus, drew with Gene Sheeney, Sheldon, Kenton, four rounds.

AT BUFFALO—Rocky Kansas, Buffalo, defeated Red Cap Wilson, New Orleans, six rounds. Bobby Tracy, Buffalo, defeated Pal Moran, New Orleans, six rounds. Luke Carr, Buffalo, defeated Phil Gasmano, New York, six rounds. Fred Mueller, Buffalo, defeated Chris Newton, Toronto, six rounds.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Frankie Genaro awarded judge's decision over Kid Wolfe, of Philadelphia, 10 rounds.

Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore, outpointed Joe Coletti, of Jersey City, 10 rounds.

Marty Gold, of New York, outpointed Bobby Green, New York, 10 rounds.

Oxford-Cambridge Track Stars Will Run in U. S. Meets

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 17.—The joint track teams of Oxford and Cambridge universities will journey to this country and will appear in meets with Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Cornell.

The English athletes will meet the combined teams of Harvard and Yale at the Harvard stadium, and the following week they will meet Princeton and Cornell, probably in or near New York.

The exact dates of the meets have as yet not been determined, but it is believed the meet with Harvard and Yale will come early in July. The time depends on the dates of their final examinations, which have not yet been announced.

It is expected that the events to be contested will be the same as those at the last meet between Oxford and Cambridge and Harvard and Yale, held at Wembley in July, 1923.

These were twelve in number, as follows:

Flat races: 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards, one mile and two miles.

Hurdle races: 120 yards, high; 220 yards, low.

Field events: Shot, pole vault, broad jump, high jump.

First places only will count in the scoring, except in case of a tie, when second place and, if necessary, third places will be counted.

Lutherans to Meet Presbyterian Five In League Contest

The Lutherans and Chester Presbyterians will clash in a Sunday school league engagement this evening at 8:15 on the high school court.

The Lutherans easily defeated the Chester five earlier in the season but will have something more difficult to reckon with tonight, inasmuch as the Presbyterians have become stronger and will make a more determined bid for victory.

The two teams are tied with the Park Boulevards for third place in the circuit. Both are confident of winning.

The Lutheran Juniors and the M. E. Juniors will meet in the preliminary at 7:15.

Following the two Sunday school league contests, a third engagement will be put on by the Power class five of the M. E. church and the Trotter Chevrolets.

The Park Boulevards will tackle the M. E. five and the U. P. quint will meet the Presbyterians in contests carded for the M. E. court. These games were postponed from Monday night.

Hoppe Consistent And Goes Into Lead Over Bob Cannefax

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Having uncovered the best billiards either champion has shown since the start of the match in winning the third and fourth blocks, Willie Hoppe, balkline king, today made ready for the fifth block of his three cushion match with Champion Bob Cannefax entrenched behind a lead of 240 to 227. The sudden shift in honors from Cannefax to Hoppe created a small sensation in billiard ranks and the Friars' Club was prepared to play host to a capacity house for the fifth and sixth blocks this afternoon and tonight.

The match is to go six hundred points and, unofficially, will decide the championship of the world at the angle game.

Hoppe trailed by 120 to 100 when he entered the third block yesterday, but playing consistently and even brilliantly at times he won the third block, 65 to 60, and in the evening fairly buried Cannefax under a score of 75 to 47.

The balkline champion abandoned his conservative, safety first game of the first two blocks and went after every point without hesitancy. His best run was six. Cannefax had a seven but lacked Hoppe's consistency.

A WORD FOR BEGINNERS.

The best way to solve a cross-word puzzle is to run quickly over the list of horizontal and vertical synonyms and compare them to the spaces in the puzzle extending crosswise or downward from the number of the synonym. Some word which will just fit in the number of space available will quickly occur to you in some instances, giving you a foundation from which to solve the more difficult words. The words must interlock perfectly.

MARK TWAIN AND ABRAHAM LINCOLN WERE FEAR-RIDDEN, AUTHOR SAYS

Charles Milton Newcomb, of Chicago, Declares False Idea of God Frightened Them All Their Lives.

CHICAGO, Feb.—Abraham Lincoln and Mark Twain were obsessed by fear all their lives, according to Charles Milton Newcomb, author, lecturer and newspaper columnist, who, by the way, wasn't one bit scared when the addressed 300 members of the Chicago Executive club.

"They had to watch Abraham Lincoln when he was a child to keep him from committing suicide," Newcomb said "Lincoln was afraid. He wasn't afraid of war or failure or sudden death. He was afraid of God.

"Mark Twain was also afraid of God. Both were afraid of an angry and avenging God.

"Twain absorbed this fear obsession at his mother's knee. Lincoln had it preached into him during his backwoods boyhood by a 'hell-fire' evangelist. Neither was ever free from its shadow as long as he lived.

Carnegie Unafraid.

"This fear showed in the fair lines in their faces. Andrew Carnegie, on the other hand, had been taught to believe in a loving and merciful God. There were no fear lines in his face. His was a happy face."

Fear, Newcomb explained, had a biological origin. We owe our lives to the fact that our ancestors were afraid, he said.

"There are two glands that respond to the emotion of fear," Newcomb continued, "the thyroid and adrenal. When danger threatened primitive man it lay with his discretion to do one of two things. He could fight or he could run. The emotion of fear organized him to do either efficiently."

"Men are afraid of five things," Newcomb said at another point in his talk. "They fear (1 mental or bodily harm; (2) they fear loss; (3) fear group displeasure; (4) fear failure and (5) soul fear."

Classifies Fear.

Explaining his classifications of fear, Newcomb said:

"We live in a machine age and the law of averages works. The machine gets us in about the proportion in which it is enttitled to get us.

"Disease and insanity are, within limits, legitimate subjects of fear. The one lays waste and destroys the body the other the mind. But it is well to remember the horrible example of the man who worried all his life lest he die of hardening of the arteries and finally passed away from softening of the brain.

"The fear of loss includes loss of material possessions, or friends, or loved ones.

'Fear of group displeasure comes in for a little more discussion. What will the neighbors say?

Neighbor's View.

"Neighbors of three kinds, of course—the Jeremiahs, the fixers and the dirt washers. The Jeremiahs are perpetually discouraged. The fixers suffer from chronic dissatisfaction. They are the something-ought-to-be-done about-it people.' The dirt washers, of course, are the character destroyers. They keep all the commandments except the one that says: 'Thou shalt not bear false witness.'

"But after all, why worry about what the neighbors will say? They will say it anyway.

"Fear of failure is really fear of self. It is the fear type that keeps one in a rut, that forever keeps its victims from venturing, from achieving.

Soul fear is the fear that Lincoln and Twain had. It comes invariably from a false idea of God.

"The antidotes of fear are knowledge and faith. We live in a universe governed by law. If we know the law we are not afraid. Man stands in a circle of light. Faith is the thing that enables him to step out of this circle of light into the surrounding darkness."

Man Found Dead.

A WORD FOR BEGINNERS.

The best way to solve a cross-word puzzle is to run quickly over the list of horizontal and vertical synonyms and compare them to the spaces in the puzzle extending crosswise or downward from the number of the synonym. Some word which will just fit in the number of space available will quickly occur to you in some instances, giving you a foundation from which to solve the more difficult words. The words must interlock perfectly.

MARK TWAIN AND ABRAHAM LINCOLN WERE FEAR-RIDDEN, AUTHOR SAYS

Charles Milton Newcomb, of Chicago, Declares False Idea of God Frightened Them All Their Lives.

CHICAGO, Feb.—Abraham Lincoln and Mark Twain were obsessed by fear all their lives, according to Charles Milton Newcomb, author, lecturer and newspaper columnist, who, by the way, wasn't one bit scared when the addressed 300 members of the Chicago Executive club.

"They had to watch Abraham Lincoln when he was a child to keep him Efrom committing suicide," Newcomb said "Lincoln was afraid. He wasn't afraid of war or failure or sudden death. He was afraid of God.

"Mark Twain was also afraid of God. Both were afraid of an angry and avenging God.

"Twain absorbed this fear obsession at his mother's knee. Lincoln had it preached into him during his backwoods boyhood by a 'hell-fire' evangelist. Neither was ever free from its shadow as long as he lived.

Carnegie Unafraid.

"This fear showed in the fair lines in their faces. Andrew Carnegie, on the other hand, had been taught to believe in a loving and merciful God. There were no fear lines in his face. His was a happy face."

Fear, Newcomb explained, had a biological origin. We owe our lives to the fact that our ancestors were afraid, he said.

"There are two glands that respond to the emotion of fear," Newcomb continued, "the thyroid and adrenal. When danger threatened primitive man it lay with his discretion to do one of two things. He could fight or he could run. The emotion of fear organized him to do either efficiently."

"Men are afraid of five things," Newcomb said at another point in his talk. "They fear (1 mental or bodily harm; (2) they fear loss; (3) fear group displeasure; (4) fear failure and (5) soul fear."

Classifies Fear.

Explaining his classifications of fear, Newcomb said:

"We live in a machine age and the law of averages works. The machine gets us in about the proportion in which it is entitled to get us.

"Disease and insanity are, within limits, legitimate subjects of fear. The one lays waste and destroys the body the other the mind. But it is well to remember the horrible example of the man who worried all his life lest he die of hardening of the arteries and finally passed away from softening of the brain.

"The fear of loss includes loss of material possessions, or friends, or loved ones.

'Fear of group displeasure comes in for a little more discussion. What will the neighbors say?

Neighbor's View.

"Neighbors of three kinds, of course—the Jeremiahs, the fixers and the dirt washers. The Jeremiahs are perpetually discouraged. The fixers suffer from chronic dissatisfaction. They are the something-ought-to-be-done about-it people.' The dirt washers, of course, are the character destroyers. They keep all the commandments except the one that says: 'Thou shalt not bear false witness.'

"But after all, why worry about what the neighbors will say? They will say it anyway.

"Fear of failure is really fear of self. It is the fear type that keeps one in a rut, that forever keeps its victims from venturing, from achieving.

Soul fear is the fear that Lincoln and Twain had. It comes invariably from a false idea of God.

"The antidotes of fear are knowledge and faith. We live in a universe governed by law. If we know the law we are not afraid. Man stands in a circle of light. Faith is the thing that enables him to step out of this circle of light into the surrounding darkness."

Man Found Dead.

BUCYRUS, Feb. — Charles T. Krauth, 69, retired butcher, was found dead in his chair when his son, Vincent, 18, returned home from work. Krauth had been in ill health about two years.

Missouri Woman Constable.

Mrs. J. J. Shepard, of Kansas City, Mo., has been made a deputy constable, the position being one that is rewarded by large fees. Mrs. Shepard won considerable attention at the Democratic convention in 1924 by being one of the few supporters of Alfred E. Smith from the Missouri delegation.
